TECH HIGH NINE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Tech High school certainly intends to cop the Prep league baseball gonfalon this year, and, according to the authorities, the other six teams in the league have got to give them substantial reasons why the above statement is not going to hold true before they will be content to take any other place than on the top.

The team that will represent the junior Smithies this season will be a better aggregation than the one last season, even though the team did lose the services of Captain Jim Parks and Hooper, their big catcher. They have better new material, and the spirit of the men is running high.

The team will line up about as follows: Harlan and R. Smith, catcher; Brock, G. Smith and Owens, pitcher; White or Kelly, first; Cole, Ingram or Wallace, second; Andrews, short; Wallace Smith, third. The outfield is a proposition yet to be determined.

Four Places Settled.

Four places are settled. Juday Harlan will catch; Brock and Smith and Owen are sure to pitch; Andrews will play short, and Wallace Smith will hold down the hot corner. Harlan is captain of the team this season, and is sure to be a big factor in the team's success, as he is a hitter par excellent. Brock is well known to Prep league fans, having performed for Marist college for a couple of seasons, and being their mainstay in the race last year. Smith is the young scout with the team last year, as is Dillard Owens. Owens is also another good hitter, and during the games he does not pitch will more than likely be switched to the outfield.

For the initial bag the fight has narrowed down to the two candidates named above, Kelly and White, and its a toss up as to who will be the final choice of the coach.

A merry scramble is taking place for the position at the keystone station. Five players are all trying to oust the other for the job, and Coach Pitts is having a hard job in selecting the most adequate member for the place. Sebe Wallace, Bill Fincher, both of football fame; Cole, a recruit from a south Georgia metropolis, and Clarence Diehl are the ones trying for the place. They all are good fielders, and the way they stack up in walloping the horsehide will be a big factor in determining which of them will nail the job. Provided more than one proves to be a good hitter, he will be shifted to the outfield, as there is plenty of opportunity for a good man there.

Andrews Looks Good.

Frank Andrews, another recruit from the same place as Cole, has discouraged all opposition for the short field. Tech High is strong for this player, and declare that he is going to prove to be the best shortstop the Prep league has uncovered since the days of Jack Donaldson and Blu Spurlock, old Boys' High warriors. Andrews is a nifty fielder, and can more than wallop that old pill. He handles himself in jamup style, and gets the ball away to first right now. Tech High is confident that he is going to set the league on fire, and is sure that he will be the unanimous choice for the all-prep place.

Wallace Smith has also got third base thrown and hog tied. Wallace is a younger brother of Red Smith, the Braves' third sacker, and gives promise of developing into as great a star as his brother. He is a fast fielder, but not so strong on the batting proposition. This is his last season as a local prep, and it is expected that he will make it his best one.

Setz, Hurt, Harwell and Robert Smith are the best looking candidates for the outfield places, although none of them have yet shown anything startling. With Owens, and probably one of the players trying for second in the outfield, Coach Pitts should be able to round out a good team.

Tech High will have a team that will be well balanced. It will be one of the best, if not the best fielding team in the league, and will be better than the average in hitting. Therefore, the statement made in the beginning is more than likely to hold good throughout the prep season. Their first test will come on April 7, when they play the first game of the league season.

YELLOW JACKETS DEFEAT GORDON

Tech defeated Gordon 15 to 0 yesterday afternoon at Grant field in the opening game of the local baseball season. The visitors never had much chance to win as Tech started off the first inning with three runs.

The only real chance that Gordon had of scoring was in the initial inning when the bases were filled with none out on two infield hits and a fielder's choice. However, Captain Senter tightened at this juncture, making the next three batters hit weak grounders to the infield. Gordon got but two men as far as third base after this.

Due to a number of infield hits and wild throws, mixed in with numerous bases on balls, the Gordon twirlers were kept in hot water all the time. On one of these occasions, with the bases filled, Brickley Smith landed on a fast one for a three-base drive down the left-field foul line.

As a whole the Tech team showed up well and gives indication of developing into a strong contender for the southern championship.

Coach Heisman used the three pitchers, Senter, Bryant and Puckett, that he is counting on to do the hurling this season. They all showed up good, Puckett fanning two of the three men who faced him in the one inning that he worked.

Jim Preas clouted the first homer of the season when he sent a hard drive to right center for the circuit in the fifth inning. The two Smiths, Hill and Preas each secured two safeties apiece. Hill stole home in the sixth inning, while Simms was winding up.

The Gordon team stacks up well and should put in a strong claim for the prep championship of the state.

The game was called in the eighth on account of an injury to the Gordon catcher, Fox. But one receiver was brought along.

CHAMPION WILLARD OUTPOINTS MORAN IN THE TITLE BATTLE

Champion Earned Decision by Margin in Seven Rounds—Only One Round Went to Moran — Two Were Even.

CHAMPION WAS NEVER IN ANY REAL DANGER

Reported to Have Broken His Hand in Third Round. Referee White Says Bout Was Cleanest He Ever Handled.

New York, March 25.—Jess Willard, champion heavyweight of the world, easily outpointed Frank Moran in a 10-round bout here tonight. Willard had the better on points in every round except the third, which went to Moran by a narrow margin and the eighth and ninth which were even.

The conqueror of Jack Johnson claimed to have broken all the bones in the back of his right hand during a slashing rally in the third, and it was notable that he did not use his right to any extent in later rounds. Occasionally he uppercut to Moran's body or jaw with that hand, but it lacked the punishing power shown in his training work.

Jess Never in Danger.

The champion never was in danger from Moran's blows, although a number landed with crashing force on his jaw and body. Most of these, however, either were blocked or avoided by the Kansas cowboy, who took full advantage of his great height and extraordinary reach.

Referee Charley White said after the bout that it was one of the cleanest at which he ever officiated, and that he had to caution the boxers only once. Moran landed dangerously low on Willard at one time in in-fighting, but the blow was unintentional and did not appear to distress Willard seriously.

Willard, whose weight was announced as 259½ pounds in ring costume, towered over Moran, who weighed only 201½ pounds when the pair shook hands a few minutes before 10 o'clock.

Moran Bored In.

The third and only round in which Moran had the advantage opened with the Pittsburger landing a hard left on the body. Willard sent his right with full force to Moran's ribs and put a straight left on the latter's nose. Frank rushed in again with three swings, landing his right three times overhand on the head, but he didn't seem to be hurting the cowboy. Moran then swung his left to the head, following with a right to the other side of the head.

Willard held him away again with his long left jabs, but Moran got in close with both hands. This was Moran's best round, and after the bout was over his advantage was explained by Willard's manager, who stated that the champion had broken some bones in his right hand during this round. If Willard met with an accident he did not show it, as he used his right occasionally but not forcefully during the next three rounds.

Moran Bleeds Badly.

In the seventh, after Willard had inflicted a good deal of punishment on the challenger, Moran, in a wonderful rally, landed his left and four rights in succession on Willard's head and forced the champion to the ropes at the bell. Moran's face was covered with blood from his eye and nose in the eighth round, but he withstood several hard jabs and doggedly kept on boring in on Willard. He swung both hands to the head, but Willard was still too cool with his long left for Moran's blows to take effect. Moran landed a good left swing on Jess' ear at the bell sounded and earned an even break in this round.

Award Unanimous.

The awarding of the bout to Willard was virtually unanimous among the experts about the ringside, although all gave Moran credit for his gameness.

Among the papers whose representatives gave Willard the bout were the following:

Honus Wagner's Own Baseball Story.

By Honus (John H.) Wagner, the Grand Old Man of Baseball

11. THE 1916 OUTLOOK

I will be turning my face northward for the nineteenth time in about five days and if ever I faced a jig-saw puzzle with regard to the outcome of the National league race it is this year. It has been hard enough to figure things in normal years, and Fred Clarke and I never ventured a prediction excepting among ourselves.

Too many complex situations have come up this year even to guess to yourself, let alone offer an opinion of any worth. I have seen years where I confidently expected a club to repeat because of its latent strength and the confidence born by an easy victory the year before. The stampede of the Braves in 1914 and the Phillies last year proved surprising, and with the upsets and rearrangements of clubs through Federal league amalgamations, almost anything may happen this year.

I once heard it expressed that Grover Alexander, and not Pat Moran, should be awarded the major portion of credit for the Phillies' 1915 triumph. Granting Alex every possible bit of credit, it is hard to see the argument against Moran. Alexander was a great fixture on the Phillies for four years prior to the elevation of Moran to the leadership. Pat's elevation was the potent change—no other. He accomplished many things—one a notable and a profitable move in undoing the act that sent Chalmers to the Giants. Moran's connivance in getting "Dut" back was one of many of Moran's pivots on which swung Philadelphia's first pennant in thirty-one years.

Will Phillies Repeat?

There isn't any sound reason to expect the Phillies to repeat this year, and yet they may do that very thing. Their spurt last season was attended by many hazards and was not the steady march of the Braves in the year before, when the Stallings forces cut loose in June, forged their way upward from last place, cut through the first division, overtook the Giants and held the lead to the end. That was a spirit born of amazing team work. Prophecies favored the Braves to repeat in 1915. The Phillies came through with the unexpected—they are not picked to repeat, and yet they might do that very thing.

Our loss of the pennant in one afternoon on October 4, 1908, so jarred the fans and critics in Pittsburg that little hope was expressed for the fall of 1909. The crushing blow administered by the Cubs that afternoon, it was thought, would leave us wilted all winter and unfit in the spring. One writer wired a long yarn from the training camp that the top of the second division would, indeed, be a 1909 solace. But such things are not worth the paper on which they are written. The Pirates were of better stuff. They made a poor start in 1909 at a gait that was none too reassuring, but they rallied after two weeks, forged ahead, took the lead early in May and were never headed, though the Cubs came within half a game by taking two from us on Labor day. But we cinched the flag in St. Louis on our last western trip with games to spare and saw Detroit play at Browns' park that same day. The rest of the baseball program of that fall is history and Babe Adams shone as the bright star.

Had the Pirates taken such a gloomy view of the situation when the Cubs crept within a half game of us, as some fans did, we would have gone to pieces. Following the afternoon game I heard loud voices under the stadium.

"If the players were quitters like you," yelled a big chap, "we never would win a game."

"Oh, I guess I've got a right to my opinion," whined the other.

A New Complexion.

An entirely new complexion has been added to almost all of the sixteen major league clubs and any attempt at guessing is foolish. That the clubs in the aggregate will be strengthened goes without saying. There was just a good enough scattering of talent from the Federal league wreck, particularly pitchers, to give a better edge to many clubs that were weak in the hurling departments. The Giants had their one poor year in ten in 1915, but I believe that McGraw, with Rariden behind the bat and Kauff in the outfield, has succeeded in bolstering his three-time pennant forces back to a threatening position over the race.

Not once in his whole career did Fred Clarke hint at who would win the pennant nor where the Pirates would finish. But he violated the rule following his retirement one day while joshing Jim Callahan, his successor. Fred came over from Kansas on some oil business and met Cal in the office of Dreyfuss. The reporters plied the usual time-worn and useless question just for fun:

"Say, Fred, who will win the pennant this year?"

"Pittsburg will, of course," replied Fred. "Why, there's nothing to it. I'm a fan now and not a manager, and I have a right to my opinion for the first time in eighteen years."

As we are about to turn our faces northward for the opening, we hear of this club being in great shape and that club being top-top for the opening. Also that this or that club is in bad shape, its pitchers out of gear, and so on. We opened in Cincinnati in 1911, and if you have never seen an opening there you have missed a lot.

The 1911 Opening.

The Reds had enjoyed fine weather in the south and had been kept busy every day of the exhibition tour. They were a fine and fit set of men. Fred Clarke had bronchitis. Adams suffered from stomach trouble. Jack Miller and Wilson were all out of sorts and when we left Columbus for Rhineland the night before we were the sickest and sorriest set you ever saw. Bands and wagons decorated with screamers and filled with fans paraded the streets next day at noon. German bands at the park made it lively, and the Reds were the chipperest set when they appeared on the field that Redland fans ever saw. When tall Larry McLean, leading the procession, popped his head from under the old bench, 20,000 people went wild. I limped out ahead of the crippled and sorry-looking Pirates.

Poor Adams, groaning with every motion, warmed up. Fromme burned them in and Redland cheered. Griffith, then manager, was given an ovation every time he appeared. In their bright red uniforms, the Reds were a dazzling set. But the Pirate cripples made Fromme's smile fade in three innings. Also, Mr. Fromme lost his good standing with the crowd. The rooters' bands played dirges and the crowds bombarded their hero Griffith with newspapers, score cards and other missiles when he went out to derrick Fromme in the seventh. The score then stood ten to nothing in favor of the Pirate cripples and Adams, with his bad stomach and headache, pitching the game of his life. Jess Tannehill tried a come-back against his old team by relieving Fromme, but received such a bad beating that he turned in his uniform after the game and quit. Though they won, fourteen to nothing, the Pirates might have made a better showing had they been in good condition like the Reds. But it was just like us that year to drop the next two by the score of 2 to 1.

Getting into condition in the spring is accomplished in various ways, but if I had my way it would all be confined to fishing. I once made a bad bargain politically. Being a ball player, I have about half of my Sundays in the six months idle. Yet didn't I forget myself one day and accept a fish commissionership from the governor of Pennsylvania?

Down here in camp I have to respect my position. Not that I am a violator in the sense of the word, but why should a man with only about ten Sundays off in the spring, summer and fall be a fish commissioner?

The thing dawned on me last fall and I asked Assistant Pirate Secretary Watters to write out my resignation as fish commissioner of Pennsylvania. He looked at me queerly and said:

"If you do that, I'm afraid you will offend the governor."

"That's so, isn't it?" I reflected. "Still, I don't want to be compelled by my oath of office to arrest some good friend for fishing on Sunday."

Watters wrote the resignation in his office and the next day he handed it to me without a word. I looked at it and it was addressed to the governor. I read it, thought a moment, and tore it up. Here I am again, everything dead on Sunday and shunning my friends who take a Sabbath chance at the fishing smacks.

Some Punning.

Punning is the cheapest form of wit and a cheap pair of puns by Jack Miller and Bobby Byrne one day nearly made me upset a boat while we were out fishing. Byrne, sitting in the bow of the boat, was paring an apple. I was at the stern, holding the rod, and Bobby and Dots were kidding. Holding up the dangling apple peelings before Miller's face, Bobby exclaimed in mock dramatic tones:

"Once more I ap-peel to you."

"Oh!" retorted Miller a la Henry Irving, his four fingers in his waistcoat, "there is nothing in your ap-peel."

The line almost slipped from my grasp and I fell on the bow. The boat nearly upset under my weight, and so far as those two crazy punsters were concerned I did not care. A man has to stand for a lot in this world.

The big trade with St. Louis in December, 1913, the passing of Donlin and the release of Mensor, robbed the club of many rich cards. I might also add the retirement of Clarke, although Callahan is about as irrepressible a fun-maker as there is in the game.

Nothing made Clarke more wrothy than wildness of his pitchers. One day on the Pirate bench someone remarked that if they were all Sheckards and Hugginses, the Pirate staff might get control. Scoops Carey remarked that Jim Sheckard had drawn 141 bases on balls in 1910.

"Yes," yelled Clarke, "and I'll bet a hat he made 100 off our pitchers."

About that time the ground keeper came along and examined a wooden post at one end of the concrete bench. It had been hacked and chopped into an unsightly shape by nervous bats.

"Mr. Clarke," asked the ground keeper, politely, "can ye tell me how that post got in such condition?"

"Why, yes," replied Clarke. "Every

DAY OF NOISY MOTOR HAS GONE, SAYS DEALER

Oakland Motor Co. Dealer Tells Reasons for Change of Autoists' Feelings.

"Motorists used to think that the ideal car to drive was one with a huge motor, having no muffler and making a noise like a steam rivetter," said Robert H. Martin, manager of the Southern Oakland Company, 456 Peachtree street. "Today they want an engine so silent that a hum is its only sound."

"The notion that power needs noise to make itself felt has passed away. It took some time, however, for people to wake up to the fact that there is a greater thrill in guiding a silent car than in riding in one with the roar of a battery of field artillery.

"Everyone can remember the popularity of the cut-out pedal, which allowed the exhaust to pass out without going through the muffler. The noise got to be so bad that in some places laws were passed to prohibit it. About that time, however, motorists began to try the silent high speed motor—the latest advance in motor designing. They found it far pleasanter to drive—and more powerful besides.

"Now, instead of being considered a mark of power, noise in a motor car stands for poor building. Instead of being lessened by the absence of noise, the sense of power is heightened by it.

"Take Oakland cars for example. Their silence, noise reduced to only a purr, is the result of careful study and experiment. The purr comes because the time between explosions is small and that is obtained by the high speed motor.

"To get high speed without hammering the motor to pieces was a big problem. The Oakland engineers solved it by the use of smaller cylinders and lighter moving parts. Both the Oakland 'Four' and 'Eight' are of this type, and the superiority of this type of motor has been demonstrated beyond question in past performances."

2,100,000 TRUCKS LICENSED LAST YEAR

Official figures show that close to 2,100,000 motor cars were licensed in this country in 1915, and it is conservatively estimated that at least one million persons are driving their own cars this year.

A significant thing about the large proportion of owners who run their machines themselves is that the sale of automobiles in the United States is far from being limited to those who understand mechanical things. In other words, the degree in which the automobile may be classed as a vehicle which requires an expert to operate it is diminishing rapidly.

Still, it is probable that not one person in ten who operates a car knows anything about its mechanism. Such a condition is bound to have an important influence in the future design of motor cars.

Americans Drive Own Cars.

It is a condition which means a tendency toward greater reliability in automobiles; simplicity in design and construction—the smallest possible number of things to look after and care for.

In this connection it is interesting to observe that there is a real distinction between American and European cars, based on the proposition that in this country cars are to a very large extent driven and taken care of by their owners, while in Europe probably the majority are looked after by mechanics and operated by chauffeurs.

For this reason, in selling cars to Europeans it probably is all right to equip the machines with four-speed transmission, for example. Complicated mechanism is not as serious an objection as in this country, where not one car in ten thousand has a four-speed transmission.

Simpler Development.

A three-speed transmission supplies all needs and is comparatively simple—there is less mechanism, less wear and less to look after.

It is predicted that the next few years are bound to bring a practical development—a refinement—which will make cars even simpler in design and construction than they are today. They will be easier to operate and need less attention.

Undoubtedly the time is not far distant when the car with the smallest number of parts will sell for the highest price because it will be the cheapest in the long run.

Fred's remark about taking a bite out of a wooden post recalls Ham Hyatt's description of batting in the pinches. Old Ham is gone from the big league, but there is many a memory of his long swats when others couldn't hit. On April 27, 1912, Pittsburg scored 23 runs and made 27 hits off Pitchers Fromme, Prough and Horsey, of the Reds. Nine Pirates officiated in the contest and about 18 for the Reds. After the game, Ham was dressed early. Walking up street, his meerschaum posed like a poet's, Ham was accosted by a fan, who said:

"Well, you see it's this way," drawled the big pinch artist, drawing the pipe from his mouth. "They don't give me anything soft and it's only when there's a piece of iron to bite on that I get a look-in."

Rube Robinson was another of the droll Pirate forces. One day he pulled the old "Reb" Russell stunt on Frank Kafora. With the Cardinals having the bases full and no one out, Robby went in to relieve another pitcher in the ninth. Kafora took his mask under his arm and started with authority for the box. Robby waved him back. Kafora stopped in his tracks and again made for the Arkansan to whisper some instructions in his ear.

"Get back, thar," ordered Robinson, "whar ye belong."

The tall chap from Arkansas fanned the first man, caused the second to foul out, and struck out the third, ending the game. As they were passing through the gates under the grandstand, Robby put his arm affectionately around Kafora's shoulder and asked:

"What was it ye were goin' to say tu me jest then?"

During the three-year baseball warfare many good players have passed out of the major league existence. A few well-known faces will be seen back on American and National league diamonds. I look for a strengthening of the majority of the sixteen clubs, and I don't think that any one will be impaired or feel the effect of any loss of talent incurred two or three years ago.

It is in pitching where both leagues will be most strengthened. The influx of old and young good ones from the Feds will mean good pitching every day. The Feds did not have any great quantity of fine players and pitchers, but enough came to the two majors as the spoils of war to bolster the staffs of many clubs.

As to a general decline in hitting because of the influx of pitchers, no one can tell. Only good pitchers take their turn and all pitchers are hit normally. But with three leagues professing themselves majors, the demand for good pitchers exceeded the supply.

Fill the Weak Spots.

It certainly was a great year when clubs could go into the market and fill the positions left vacant or poorly filled, instead of depending on youngsters from the minor league marts. This makes the coming race such a complex problem, that it is folly to speculate until it is seen what the effect of two and three years on the part of ball players has been in the Federal league. Perhaps they are not in the class with men who have developed in positions that the jumpers left vacant. It is best to wait and see, but the horizon in the majors this year to me shows less than ever before.

This is a bad year for the young ball player up from the minors for trial in the majors. With the 21-player limit again prevailing in the National, the clubs already are well stocked with their bush yield of last year, and with from one to three seasoned Federals probably snared by every club, the poor chap who dreamed of entry into fast company in 1916 is lost in the shuffle. Lucky is the minor leaguer who obtained a toehold last spring before baseball peace seemed even a remote possibility beyond newspaper talk. One of these was young Edgar Collins, whose batting kept up in the first division for a big time last year, and who is now with the Braves.

Collins did not land with the Pirates on his showing at Hot Springs. Indeed, he received scant notice from the newspapers. He thumbed over the papers, read of Pirate phenoms who would be retained, but nary a word about Collins, who might, indeed, prove a "second Eddie."

One day the youngster from Jamaica, L. I., stood poring over the hotel register at Hot Springs. He seemed rather cheerless and blue, and walking up to him, I said:

"What are you doing, Eddie?"

"Oh," he replied in a dismal tone, "I want to see if I can't find my name somewhere. Probably it's on this register. The reporters never print it."

Collins was sent away to Youngstown, but was soon yanked back and for a month or two he showed a streak of hitting in close games that made us all dizzy. Boston purchased him.

The indignation of Collins was probably on a par with that of a rube in a North Dakota town who thought the 1914 major league barnstormers were swindling patrons. The team played in one town on a Friday and proceeded to a place called Forsythe the next day. The rube scrawled the following postal to his friend in Forsythe, who showed it to the ball players. It read:

"Dear Hank—Don't fall for that big leeg bunk. Them guys is fakers. I seen that feller Skupes Carey try to sakrifis without no one on bases.

"Yuurs Trooly,

Perce."

There are a lot more yarns like these crowded into my many diamond years, but with the tale of the "Dakota rube" I guess I've tired my wad. To my million of kind friends I extend a greeting, also my heartiest thanks for gracious treatment accorded me in the long span of happy years, from my debut in 1897 and down to the present day while I am fitting myself to try it again.

EMPLOYEES' HEALTH WELL LOOKED AFTER BY FISK COMPANY

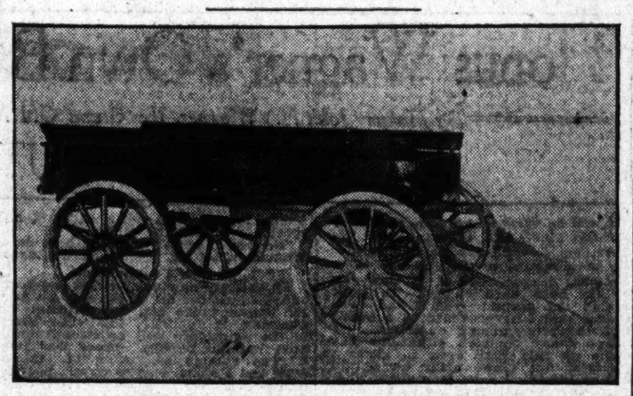

The Fisk Rubber company, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., has announced completion of its plans for the establishment of the department of industrial relations under the direction of Dr. William Hall Coon, formerly of the Massachusetts state board of health.

The Fish concern is one of the first of the large industrial concerns in Massachusetts to recognize the importance of conserving the health and well-being of its employees and to take these matters up in a scientific and comprehensive manner.

The new department will provide for safety and health of all the thousands of employees at the Fisk plant, for the increasing and bettering of the hospital service and will include a division given over to the study of all questions having to do with industrial relations.

In addition the Fisk company has provided free health insurance to all employees at the factories, and provisions are made for free life insurance as a reward for continuous service. The latter, starting at $500 in one year, increases $100 each year to a maximum of $1,000 in five years.

Trailmobile on Atlanta Market; Will Open Sales Rooms Soon

Trailmobile, unique motor car, which has just been put on sale in Atlanta.

H. C. Bright, Louisville, Ky., representing Sechler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, manufacturers of the Trailmobile, something new in the way of motor vehicles, spent the greater part of the week in Atlanta completing arrangements for the prosecution of sales of his product here.

A distributing depot has been established in Atlanta for the promotion of the trailmobile business, with E. W. More, an old Atlantan and a live wire, as state distributor, and Ben Lee Crew as sales manager. Mr. More is also state distributor for the Troy Trailer, which is manufactured at Troy, Ohio. Mr. More will have a location on Peachtree street within the next few days, and announces, for the benefit of any interested prospective buyer, that he is ready and fully equipped to make demonstrations of the machine anywhere in Georgia; in fact, several demonstrations, over the heaviest roads and under the most trying conditions to be found hereabouts, have been made since last Tuesday, and in each instance the Trailmobile has more than come up to the test.

The trailmobile is built on the principle of the draw-bar haul; the contention being, and which has been borne out time and again in actual demonstrations, that a truck will pull four times as great a weight as it can carry. Thus a one-and-a-half-ton truck will carry its rated capacity and pull approximately six tons in addition, making something like seven-and-a-half ton its total capacity by use of the trailmobile; a three-ton truck can carry its rated capacity and in addition haul twelve tons more, making a total of fifteen tons' capacity, etc.

The trailmobile simply applies to motor vehicles the same principle that enables a team of horses to develop a maximum draw-bar pull equal to one-quarter of its weight; that enables a locomotive to draw many times its weight, etc.

The machine is made in designs and size to meet practically every requirement, from the light grocer's delivery truck to the heaviest truck on the market, and whether the transportation required is of meat from the butcher's shop or loads of earth to be moved by the street contractor, there is a trailmobile ready for delivery that fills the demand.

Especially, where they have been put to test, been used, the trailmobile is popular with farmers and with contractors and heavy drayage men, where the work required is of the most arduous character and the conditions under which they are to be operated the most trying.

In Army Use on Border.

The trailmobile has been in use only since about December 1, 1915, though they were invented some two years prior to that time; the interim being employed by the manufacturer in consulting with the most eminent mechanical engineers in the country and in experimenting, to the end that it was not formally introduced until the principle had been as near perfectly applied and worked out as it has seemed possible to make it. Since last December it has been introduced and is now in use in twenty-two states, and in Kentucky alone there are today fifty-four of them in daily use by farmers and by business men and firms in the cities. Last week the company shipped four of the machines to the Mexican border, upon order of the United States government, for use by the army which has crossed the border in quest of the bandit Villa. This order was placed, of course, only after the machine had been thoroughly tested and tried out by the government's experts and its availability fully demonstrated.

Mr. More will have charge of the distribution throughout the southwest, and is in the market for reliable agents anywhere in his territory.

PACKARD MEN ENLIST FOR ACTIVE SERVICE

Stirring Scene Enacted When Special Call Is Made.

In less than 22 hours after receipt of an order last Monday night for twenty-seven war trucks, a special Packard train of fourteen steel freight cars and one Pullman sped away from the factory bearing 33 recruits for the motor transport service on the Mexican front.

The train was scheduled to make the trip to the Mexican border in 51 hours, the fastest time that has ever been made from border to border. The government has ordered all tracks cleared for this train, but refuses to state its exact destination.

Volunteers Asked.

A stirring scene was enacted in the Packard truck shops Tuesday morning when officials of the company called an assembly of the workers and asked for volunteers to enter the army for immediate service in Mexico. One thousand or more men shouted, struggled forward, raised their hands and waved them madly, to signify their willingness to volunteer for service. The thirty-three men finally selected were given six hours to get their effects, settle their business affairs and say goodby. It may be the last farewell for some of them, since the war in Europe has shown that the transport department of the army has dangers.

As an advocate of preparedness, the Packard company has shown its ability to deal promptly with an emergency. A special night shift of workmen was listed for call and was at work in the truck shops in less than two hours after receipt of the instructions from the war department. Trucks of the required capacity were ready for the final assembling operations so that they could be put in shape to meet government inspection. An advertisement for truck drivers to fill the places of men required for duty at the front appeared in print Tuesday morning.

Policy of "Americans First."

The truck master who accompanied the expedition carried with him the detailed instructions of the war department relative to the operation and maintenance of motor transport. Copies of this information had been secured from Washington in anticipation of the call.

The "Americans First" policy, originated by the Packard company, has awakened a deep sense of loyalty among native and foreign-born workmen as well. Men who had come to Detroit from various European countries competed with the American-born employees for the privilege of going to the front in Mexico.

TROPHIES OFFERED FOR SEASON'S BEST HITTERS

To the boy member of the City Baseball league who makes the most hits during the approaching season and also to the member of the Sunday School league who does the same, E. H. Jordan, representative of the Bradley Knitting company, has offered two fine coat sweaters as trophies.

Individual competition in the two leagues will be keen during the 1916 season, as there as a number of trophies which will be offered for individual brilliancy along different baseball lines.

NO GASOLINE SHORTAGE AT THE PRESENT TIME

Ample Supply for World's Demand in Spite of War.

"I can't see the reason for all this excitement about the price of gasoline," says Horace T. Thomas, chief engineer of the Elco Motor Car company, "nor can I understand why some folks who ought to know better take the matter so seriously.

"Of course, if there were the slightest chance of '40-cent' gasoline in the near future, or even a chance that the present prices would continue, it would be different. But anyone with even the most superficial knowledge of conditions knows that is impossible.

"No one worries about the price of aluminum—though that is now twice its normal price; nor brass, nor lead.

"The price of steel is high—but nobody supposes for a moment that those prices will obtain after the European war is over.

New York No Guide.

"So far as New York is concerned, that city is an exception to every rule anyway. At this time it is impossible to ship freight into New York, so most of it is hauled from far distant points, and the rest is shipped in by express. That is the reason for New York's 30-cent per gallon, and, of course, it is for the moment only.

"We are exporting tremendous quantities of gasoline to Europe. In fact, since the Galician, Rumania and Russian fields are inactive, we are supplying the world with gasoline as well as all other petroleum products.

"I noticed the other day that twelve big tank steamers had cleared on the same day—the biggest day's shipment ever made. And every available tank ship is in service. The Standard Oil company is rushing work on 30 of the largest tank steamers ever built.

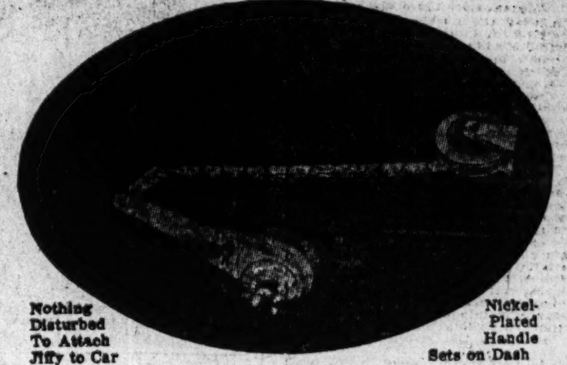

"Why, just think of it! Practically all the cooking at the front is done with gasoline. Then there are 40,000 motor trucks to be fed, as well as myriads of greedy aeroplanes. Every automobile in Europe is doing double duty—and little attention can be paid to economy in that service. Tremendous quantities are destroyed, too, in storage places by enemy aircraft and shells.

Reason for Shortage.

"Surely there's ample reason for the present shortage and for the present prices. They are war-time conditions, that is all. And they will end with the war. In fact, we are at the peak now, prices will go no higher and may be expected to come down any day.

"Incidentally I have it on pretty good authority that oil producers, like men in other lines, have been quick to take advantage of the situation and to temporarily advance prices just because they could. In fact, I am told that in order to uphold prices and for speculation purposes, a very large proportion of the oil wells of this country are actually 'plugged'—they are not pumping. Nor are these wells controlled by 'Standard Oil.' They are independent for the most part. Right now there are 300,000 barrels of crude petroleum in the big reservoirs on the hill at Oil City, held for '$3.00 per barrel' and speculators are paying that and more. There's 'war prices' for you!"

CHAMPION WILLARD OUTPOINTS MORAN

Promoter Tex Rickard announced that the gate receipts amounted to $151,245. Of this amount the state received 7½ per cent of the gross receipts, which amounted to $11,344.05. Willard's share was $47,500 and Moran's $23,750.

Combined with the percentage taken by the state and the $7,500 paid for the rental of the Garden the expenses totaled $90,094.05.

To this must be added other expenses which will bring the total up to about $100,000, so that Tex Rickard and his partner in the enterprise, Sam McCracken, will clear close to $50,000 profit on the bout.

Moran refused to make any statement after the bout other than to say there would have been no fighting if he had not taken the aggressive throughout the ten rounds.

Dr. Lewis Morris, who later attended the champion at his hotel, said that Willard had suffered a slight fracture of the joint of the first index finger of his right hand early in the fight. He added, however, that the big fellow otherwise was in good condition and that the injury to the finger would not trouble him more than a day or two.

Rickard said after the fight:

"Moran put up a good fight. He's a darn good boy. Willard was much slower than I thought he'd be. If he broke his right hand, as it is said he claimed he did, it didn't seem to make much difference. He didn't seem to need his right a good part of the time."

Detail of Bout.

Willard wore soft bandages which were wrapped tightly around his knuckles. Moran's bandages, in sharp contrast, extended well above his wrists. Willard was clad around the loins by heavy red worsted tights, while Moran wore dark green trunks of a similer texture. While the two heavyweights sat in their corners Bob Fitzsimmons, J. J. Corbett, Kid McCoy and John L. Sullivan were introduced in turn, the last of the quartet being given a tremendous ovation.

All the former ring stars shook hands with the principals of the big bout. During these ceremonies Moran appeared annoyed and nervous over the delay, while Willard leaned back on the ropes and smiled a non-committal smile. He frequently looked across the ring to Moran's corner, but the challenger appeared to avoid the champion's eyes. At 9:49 o'clock Referee Charley White entered the ring and called the two heavyweights to the center of the ring to pick their five-ounce gloves.

First Round.

Round 1—Willard jabbed Moran in the ribs. Three blows to the body which Willard blocked. Moran hooked a left to Willard's jaw and took three left jabs to the face in return. Moran swung right and left to Willard's neck and received a hard right in the body. Moran missed a right and went into a clinch and Willard tore loose and landed a right and left to the head. Willard smashed him a terrific left in the face, dazing the challenger. Moran swung wildly with right and left, but Willard laughed as he blocked carefully. Willard's round.

Round 7—Willard started after Moran like a wild ram and beat him all over the ring; under the fusillade of blows Moran was helpless, clinging to Willard blindly as the blood poured down his chest. Willard fought cooly, picking his openings. White warned Moran against fouling. Moran swung wildly and catching Willard on the jaw, dazed him for a moment. The pair were fighting like wild men at the bell. Willard's round.

Round 8—Willard kept jabbing Moran in the face with his left and the latter was bleeding from a number of cuts. Moran swung two rights to Willard's jaw and the champion appeared winded as he went to his corner. Honors even in this round.

Moran Rushes.

Round 10—They shook hands. Willard used his left jab almost exclusively. Moran swung a right to the jaw and left to the body. Willard battered Moran with rights and lefts, but the latter came back gamely. Willard uppercut Moran to the face and body. Moran swung right and left to the jaw and Willard retaliated. Willard battered Moran. Willard caught Moran in a clinch and on the break was uppercutting with right and lefts as the bell rang, terminating the bout. Willard, according to his seconds, broke his hand in the third round.

WILBUR DAVIS, PITCHER.

This is the fifteenth of a series of daily articles, introducing to Atlanta fandom the players that will receive trials with the Crackers this season.

Wilbur Davis is the fifth of a quintet of six-foot twirlers who will receive trials with the Crackers this season and the prediction has been made that Davis will be a regular. None other than the shrewd Connie Mack is his sponsor.

Davis is another one of Mack's proteges. He was picked up from the sand lots by the Athletics' chieftain in 1914, finished that season with him and was with the Athletics in 1915 also. He is being shipped to the Crackers this spring for development.

Davis is a youngster. He was but twenty years old last January, first seeing the light of day at Merry Point, Va., January 7, 1896. He makes his winter home there.

Davis reported to the training camp last Wednesday night. He looks like very little work will be necessary to round him into form. He weighs 182 pounds and stands six feet tall. He bats left-handed and throws right-handed.

Davis is a good hitter. Connie Mack used him as pinch hitter many times last season and the youngster came through with a .346 average. He'll probably be used considerably in the same capacity for the Crackers this season.

Crackers Looked Awful In First Practice Game

By Dick Jemison.

Valdes Hotel, Valdosta, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—After the way we scribes have been praising the Crackers, the fact that they let the Douglas Aggies tie them up in ten innings Thursday is quite a blow to our doping ability.

But the tie proved a splendid tonic. The work-outs Saturday were full of pepper. It got the gang to thinking mightily. Had the kids beaten the professionals would have been even better. Manager Frank stated that he would have liked to have seen it occur that way.

The answer, however, is simple. Not a man on the club tried to make a heave to get a base runner if there was the slightest possibility that the throw would have to be hurried or swift.

Not a man on the infield and only Thrasher in the outfield could throw or tried to throw with anything at all on the ball. It would have been foolhardy. The result was that the youngsters were credited with several infield hits that ordinarily would have been easy outs.

Takes Few Games.

It always takes a few games for a bunch of professionals to get into any trim. They can practice all they want to, but unless they have some real battles, the old team work and confidence are certain to be lacking.

Then, too, the youngsters were in excellent condition, with their big pitcher showing the batsmen more stuff than they have looked at at any time since they reported.

The game is certain to result in splendid lessons for the entire bunch and with Gagnier or Marcan at second in place of young Jancsar, the infield work will smooth up considerably.

Now we're off of the alibis. However, Manager Frank has corralled a hustling, harmonious bunch of ball players and when the old conditioning powders take effect, it will be a much different bunch that will face the next crowd they play.

Infield Settled.

The infield is a settled proposition, and we do not see where it could be improved much. With Lennox on third, McMillan at short, Gagnier or Marcan at second and Munch at first, the Crackers will have four splendid fielders and a quartet that will hit close to the three hundred mark.

In the outfield Moran, McDonald and Thrasher are now cavorting. If Osborn reports, there may be a switch in the personnel of the gardeners. Whose place Osborn would take is beyond us. That would be up to Manager Frank and we're mighty glad that the picking is in his hands.

It looks like Perry, Lafitte, Wilson, Day and Davis will be the regular heavers and with this quintet of six footers heaving that pill the opposition is going to find it tough going this season.

Behind the bat a problem presents itself. All we can say is that Manager Frank says, "Sit steady in the boat and wait. I'll have good catchers." He's a man of his word, and we're going to trust to him to produce.

Home First of April.

Regardless of whether he books any exhibition games in Valdosta, Albany, Macon, Columbus, Montgomery or wherever else he is figuring on booking them, the Crackers will be home the first week in April.

The Crackers are scheduled to arrive in Atlanta Thursday, April 6, and will play the Macon Sally league on that date and two following days. Macon will also be played in Macon on April 3, 4 and 5.

The Crackers will probably be booked for other exhibition games between the eighth and the opening of the season April 14 in Mobile.

WITH THE WHITE SOX AT MINERAL WELLS

By Malcolm MacLean.

Life on a training trip of a big league club is entirely different from any other kind of a jaunt. Usually there are from two to half a dozen practical jokers on a club who keep things stirred up around the hotel and make things lively.

Jim Scott, of the White Sox, dearly loves to send the bell hops around paging some fictitious individual. At the Mineral Wells camp of the Sox recently he kept a boy on the jump a good share of an evening trying to locate Major League, the celebrated veteran of Indian wars, and a gentleman by the name of Mr. O. U. Busher.

George Moriarity, former Tiger captain, who is now with the Pale Hose, says that the limit in service was that at a certain small hotel in the south, where knives, forks and spoons were carried in the pockets of the various boys.

When one wanted a spoon, for example, he would ask for one and the waiter would fish it out of his inside pocket with the remark, "Yassah, right here, sah, yassah."

Moriarity had his waiter at the Crazy Wells hotel, in Mineral Wells, walking sideways the second day the Sox were encamped there. "No. 10," as the boy was known, because of the large tag he wore, was an unusually apt person in gathering up the tips. So George Moriarity engaged him in conversation, like this:

"Listen, boy, I'm a bit short for change; you know what I mean. If it's all the same to you I'll just wait until I get back to Chicago next month and send you the whole amount of tips in a check. That's be all right with you, won't it?"

"No. 10" hesitated and began to stammer. "Yassah, I reckon dat's all right if youse say so, yassah. But you know Ah's done short mahself, yassah. Ah's got two young rascals at home who don't seem to grow up nohow. Times are hard, yassah."

In fact, "No. 10" put up a stall that was worthy of a major leaguer who was caught out late by the manager.

Eddie Cicotte, the famous humorist of the Chicago club, says he has found a swifter object than his own swift ball. It's the hand of his waiter at the Mineral Wells camp.

"I've heard a lot of guff about fast ones," he remarked. "I have been told about the skill of the elder Herman and of Kellar, the magician. Yes, they say the hand is quicker than the eye, but I've found a hand that's quicker than thought itself. It's the hand of my waiter in the dining room.

"Listen, I take a thin dime out of my pocket to tip him. I drop it, but before it touches the table my waiter has it in his pocket and is removing my plate. Marvelous is not the word for it."

Sox players have been quick to notice that all the citizens in Mineral Wells speak with the same accent that Reb Russell does. Rab comes from Bonham, Texas, not far from the Wells, and the inflection seems natural to this territory.

"And would you believe it?" remarked Happy Felsch. "I heard a little kid of seven years talk the same way as Reb. It's remarkable how even a child can pick it up, isn't it?"

Felsch was discussing the troubles on the border and was remarking about the disturbances the Mexican bandits were creating. "It's certainly frightful, isn't it?" he said.

"You said something," answered Joe Benz. "But you aren't worrying, are you, a big fellow like yourself? You ought to be able to take care of yourself. And, besides, Mineral Wells is several hundred miles from the border."

"It's not myself I'm thinking about," said Felsch. "It's my brother.

"Why, where is he?"

BOYS CAUGHT GAMBLING; GIVEN A YEAR IN PRISON

Waycross, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) Spence Henderson and Clyde Clark, two white boys not quite twenty years old, have been sentenced to serve twelve months on the state farm by Judge John C. McDonald. They were found guilty of gambling. Their game was being played in the grandstand of the league baseball park when a policeman raided the place. So interested were the boys in the game they failed to see the officer until he reached over and said he believed his hand was better than anything they were holding. They agreed and accompanied him to jail.

Georgia Home-Finding Work Given Praise by Dr. Hart

Incidental to a tour of inspection embracing the entire southland, a part of four representatives of the National Council of Congregational churches arrived in Atlanta last night, and are stopping at the Winecoff hotel. Composing the party are Dr. Hastings H. Hart, New York, who, beside being a member of the Congregational church deputation, is director of the department of child helping of the Russell Sage Foundation; Dr. Hilbert C. Herring, New York, secretary of the National Council of Congregational churches; Dr. E. C. Norton, dean of Pomona college, Claremont, Cal., and Charles W. Davidson, Boston, a member of the church deputation.

The tour these men are engaged in will require six weeks to complete, and during it they will study the entire work of the Congregational denomination in the south, including schools and churches, and, incidentally, as they are greatly interested in it, much attention is being paid orphanage and children's home societies.

Said Dr. Hart regarding this phase of the work:

"In the United States there are 150 'child placing' societies, 32 known as children's home societies, working under the parent organization, the National Children's Home society. The most prominent of these, in the order of their importance, are the Chicago Children's Home and Aid society, the Iowa Children's Home society, the Kentucky Children's Home society, the Florida Children's Home society. The Georgia Children's Home society perhaps should rank next, although, with the exception of that of Tennessee, it is the youngest in the country.

"I can say for the Georgia society, though, that there is not one in America that is better managed than is this one under R. B. McCord, and it has had a remarkable growth. The work of this society is growing rapidly, and it is doing a wonderful amount of good.

"The main purpose in these societies is the locating of orphaned and homeless and abandoned children in selected families. Most of them, and yours here does, do more than that—they help children of poor and unfortunate parents right in the home, temporarily, in cases where it is deemed in keeping with the child's welfare to do so rather than break up the home. Anybody, if there is any question as to a child's being properly cared for, may come to one of these societies, and the society will endeavor to meet the need.

"They deal also in cases of neglect, but always try if possible to keep away from the severance of family ties.

"It should be borne in mind, too, that these societies are in no wise antagonistic to orphanges throughout the country. Georgia has a reasonable number of orphanges, and they fill a need; but the general tendency of thought is growing more and more toward the fact that in ordinary cases it is much better for the child to place it in a good family home than in one of these institutions."

The party will be here four days, when Drs. Hart and Norton will go to Macon and the other members to Savannah. They will meet at Jacksonville, Fla., and they will return through Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee. They will be in Atlanta again to attend a conference to be held here April 26.

Three prominent members of the deputation of the commission on missions of the Congregational churches of the United States, now visiting the south, will speak to the colored people today at the First Congregational church, colored.

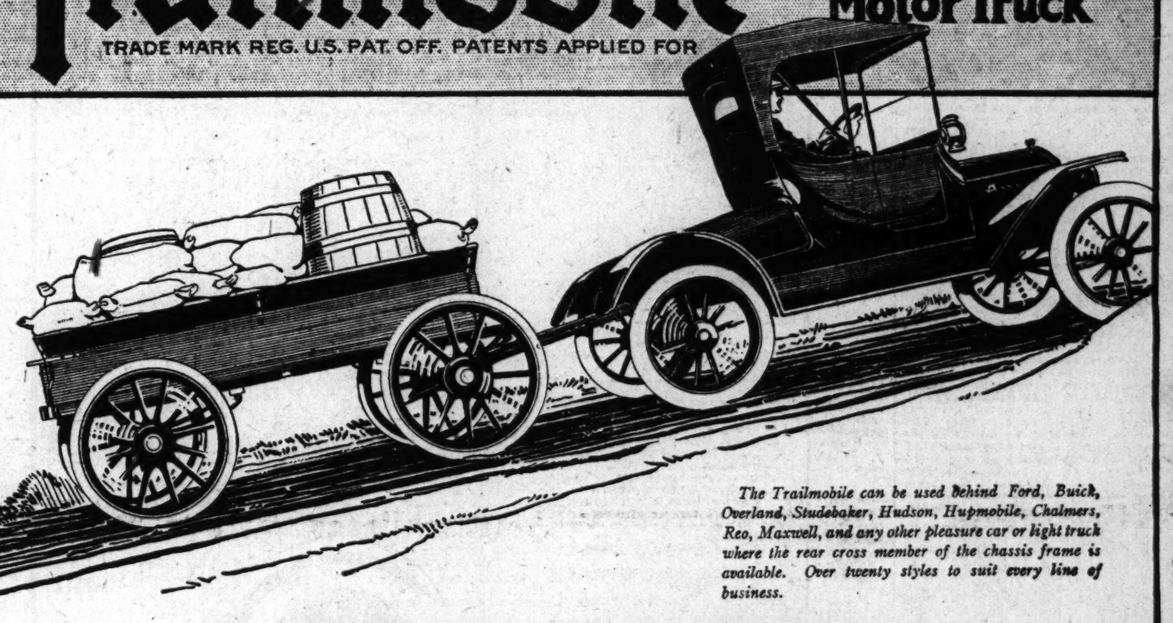

At 11 o'clock a. m. Dr. E. C. Norton, of Pomona college, Claremont, Cal., will speak. A. B. Davidson, a Boston business man, will speak at 7 o'clock p. m.

At 8 p. m. Rev. D. C. Herring, secretary of the national council of Congregational churches of the United States, and H. H. Hart of New York, of the Russell Sage foundation, will address a mass meeting in which the Rush Memorial church will unite. Dr. Hart will also deliver an address at the Rush Memorial church this morning at 11 o'clock.

Trailmobile

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. PATENTS APPLIED FOR

The Motor-less Motor Truck

The Trailmobile can be used behind Ford, Buick, Overland, Studebaker, Hudson, Hupmobile, Chalmers, Reo, Maxwell, and any other pleasure car or light truck where the rear cross member of the chassis frame is available. Over twenty styles to suit every line of business.

A Sleeping Giant —your automobile or light truck

Awaken its latent power! It can do twice as much for you—be doubly useful—cut your hauling costs in half—if you let it PULL what it cannot CARRY. How? The Trailmobile! Read the full facts below:

A great discovery has been made regarding motor vehicles. It has been demonstrated that any pleasure car or truck can PULL from two to five times what it can carry. And at practically no additional cost.

The motor vehicle has been a sleeping giant. Only a fraction of its power has been utilized. Men have been paying for full power and have been using less than half.

And now every ounce of motor strength is to be called into play, the usefulness and efficiency of the pleasure car or truck doubled, and hauling costs cut in half.

But how? The answer is the TRAILMOBILE.

The Trailmobile

The Trailmobile is a high-speed light commercial vehicle that can be pulled behind any motor car or truck, to which it is attached by a special quick-detachable coupling.

If you own a pleasure car and have light hauling to do, the Trailmobile offers a combination pleasure car and truck without interfering with the use of the car for pleasure.

If you operate a light truck, which can not accommodate all of your hauling, the Trailmobile offers you the advantage of an additional truck at a fraction of the cost.

It makes the operation of light trucks economical, where heretofore they have seemed too expensive to operate in many cases, not only by doubling the load, but also by keeping the truck itself constantly busy. With two Trailmobiles, one can be loaded while the other is on the road.

Condensed Specifications

Capacity—1,250 lbs. to 1,800 lbs. depending on the model of chassis.
Body—Twenty styles.
Wheel Base—62 inches.
Tread—56 and 60 inches.
Speed—Guaranteed up to twenty and twenty-five miles per hour.

Motor Truck Tires used on Trailmobile guaranteed 7,000 miles

In other cases it permits of the continuous use of a heavy truck for heavy hauling, with a light truck and Trailmobile for delivery of light loads.

There is practically no business with hauling to do for which the Trailmobile will not cut hauling costs in half. The merchant, the tradesman, the mill owner, the manufacturer, the baker, the plumber, the painter, the expressman, and scores of others, need "The Motor-less Motor Truck" in their business.

What Engineers found out

Some of the greatest automobile engineers in the country were engaged in the construction of the Trailmobile.

Scores of experiments were made. Numberless tests were applied to different types of designs, to materials.

One fact was quickly demonstrated, i. e., the trail-hauling vehicle, to stand up under automobile speeds and usage, must be built like the automobile.

So the Trailmobile was thus built. It has automobile axles, motor truck wheels, roller bearings, automobile springs and frame. It has a costly patented steering mechanism which works like that of an automobile, and a special shock-absorbing draw-bar.

Trailmobile materials and Trailmobile construction, in short, were dictated by a knowledge of the real conditions and strains to which trail-hauling vehicles are subjected. Anything less will not do.

Passes U. S. Government Test

The Trailmobile has passed the tests of all the United States Departments to which submitted, namely, Marine, Signal and Medical Corps, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the Quartermaster and Post Office Departments. Is today in use. Write for descriptive leaflet.

KOEHLER TRUCK OFFERS MANY NEW FEATURES

Excellence of Material and Design Have Made This Truck Famous.

"The Koehler truck is going better in Atlanta than ever we expected," stated C. M. Ferguson, of Ferguson & Germany, 159 Whitehall street, agents for this famous truck in Georgia. This truck is giving absolute satisfaction in every respect.

Having a wheel base of 129 inches, it has been perfected for the purpose of meeting not only the very general demand for a full ton carrying capacity, but for speed as well, assuring rapid transportation. The chassis design embodies the style of units which are generally recognized to be the best and which are sought by the general public, owing to their proven worth. In operation, the truck shows a wonderful degree of flexibility, as with full load as low as two miles per hour is attained on high gear and from this slow speed to thirty miles per hour is the range on level roads. As for power, the motor will take the truck with a ton load over nearly all hills on high gear.

The power plant is the uni ttype, combining the motor, clutch and transmission. The motor is long stroke and has the most up-to-date arrangement of overhead valves for both inlet and exhaust, and as is possible with the efficient valve-in-the-head mechanism employed, develops in excess of 35-horsepower.

Cylinders are cast enbloc and a jacketed cylinder head containing the entire valve movement for the four cylinders is easily removable. A special feature in design permits of immediate expulsion of the exhaust gases from the cylinders, allowing valves and adjacent parts to be cooler than if ordinary practice was followed.

Lubrication of motor is cared for by force feed, the oil being circulated by a positive gear pump from the crank case reservoir, upward to all working parts from which it later filters back to the reservoir after being strained. The system is not only positive, but no adjustments are necessary. Valves are large and interchangeable, connecting rods are forged in "I" section. A two-inch, three-bearing crank shaft is used.

These three bearings, as well as connecting rod bearings, are bronze-shell type, lined with nickel babbitt. The three main bearings are strapped to the upper half of the crank case, permitting the removal of the lower half without disturbing alignment of crank shaft. Needless to say, all motor bearings are readily accessible, as throughout the most advanced engineering practice has been used.

A "built-up" radiator is used, which employs separate top and bottom tanks, also side members, bolted together around a vertical tube "core" or cooling section. The top tank being heavily ribbed adds much cooling surface to the 9,500 square inches of surface presented in the cores itself. Back of the radiator is an 18-inch fan, flat belt driven, which further promotes cooling and allows, to an unusual extent, cool operation of the motor in hot weather and slow driving in traffic.

A special feature employed in spring suspension is the use of "graded" springs, both front and rear. Road vibrations are well absorbed through these and the 129-inch wheel base, thereby relieving the entire mechanism of the truck from strains. Carefully designed clip plates and pads are provided for each spring mounting upon the axles and large carbon steel clips are used to prevent breakage of springs. All spring eyes are bushed, as are the frame hangers and shackles. Shackle bolts of ⅝ and ⅞-inch diameter are all provided with grease cups.

The most advanced type of internal gear drive axle is used. This axle transmits the power of the motor to the rear wheels with least frictional loss. Most important is the fact that the load is carried on a separate member of the axle, which member in this case is a solid one-piece drop forging. All working parts of the axle are mounted upon heavy duty roller bearings.

The express body type is fitted with generous flare boards, has extra large loading space, being 8 feet 6 inches back of the driver's seat. The inside of the body is perfectly smooth. It will be noted that the floor of the body is very close to the ground, thereby facilitating loading and unloading. Because of the very low center of gravity attained throughout, strains are lessened and skidding is minimized.

Throughout this new model, mechanical design and excellence of material have been held most important, but, in addition, appearance has been very carefully considered. The durable chrome green body and hood and amber brown gear provide a pleasing blend to the eye, which adds that distinction which a user most appreciates.

BATTERY WEAKENED BY THE EXCESSIVE USE OF STARTER

Probably every motorist doesn't know that for every second consumed in starting a motor electrically the generator must run at charging speed for several minutes to put the same amount of current back into the storage battery. That means that the fellow who lets his electric-starter churn and churn, maybe without the switch thrown, or too little gas, generally finds himself compelled to get out and crank some day because his battery is "dead."

The Willard Storage Battery company warn car owners against this very thing. They explain that an electric-starter is made to do a reasonable amount of work in turning over a motor. It should not be used to "show off" the power developed, as in some cases when people run their cars a short distance on their starting power alone to show a friend its possibilities. This practice tends to drain the storage battery of its entire current and may ruin the plates by overheating.

A few suggestions for use of your starting equipment may prove of benefit:

1. Make sure your battery is fully charged and filled with pure water.
2. Don't let your starter churn—find out about gas and spark being right.
3. Always release the starter as soon as the motor begins to turn on its own power.
4. Keep your generator properly adjusted and cleaned.
5. Prime your motor if it is cold.

Reach's 1916 Guide.

The 1916 Reach American League Guide—the official handbook of the great major league presided over by famous Ban Johnson—has just made its ever-welcome appearance, thus ushering in one more baseball season; a function which it has fulfilled each spring for 34 consecutive years. This long continuation of publication alone has served to make the Reach Guide the standard annual publication of the baseball world, without considering the merits of the contents of the book, which is edited by Francis C. Richter, the veteran baseball writer and authority. This year the Guide has been rearranged, being grouped into four distinct sections, a method that makes it especially easy to search out matters of reference and record. Probably of equal importance with the new arrangement is the article dealing with the settlement of the baseball war and the return of the sport to its old stable basis.

The Official Playing Rules.

The 1916 Reach Official American League Guide also contains the most important requisite to give it official stamp and public value, namely, the revised and correct uniform playing rules code for 1916, together with the 1916 championship schedules of the American league, National league and various important minor leagues. In short, everything of interest or value either for record or reference will be found within the covers of this great book, which is thus really a complete history of baseball in 1915. The Reach American League Guide for 1916 is for sale by all newsdealers at 10 cents the copy.

Buys a Paige Car After Making Audit

C. J. HOLDITCH IN PAIGE 6-46.

"When C. J. Holditch, auditor of the Southern Bell Telephone company, purchased his new Paige-Fairfield "Six-46" recently from the W. J. Dabney Implement company, he enacted a little scene that was unique in the selling of automobiles," tells W. J. Dabney.

"Mr. Holditch had examined the car and ridden in it several times, but had not definitely made up his mind to own a Paige, until one day when we were out together and after coming back to town we stopped in front of my place. Mr. Holditch got out of the car and went all around checking off with his pencil something in a little book."

"My curiosity got the best of me finally, so I asked him if he was taking notes of the various features incorporated in the Paige-Fairfield.

"'No,' replied Mr. Holditch, 'I know what the points of this and many other cars are. I am just finishing an audit of the Paige-Fairfield Six-46 and find that everything is in perfect shape. All accounts of this car are in perfect shape. It balances to a penny and I want to congratulate you and the makers of Paige for their thoroughness and expert ability. You may enter my order.'

"I realized then how thorough a man like Mr. Holditch is trained to be, had been studying the merits and demerits of automobiles for some time without anyone knowing that he was doing so and felt justly proud over the outcome of the Paige-Fairfield 'Six-46' audit."

For the Oldtime Fan.

Editor Foster, of the Spalding Baseball Guide, has performed a distinct service in resurrecting from his collection of photographs a number of pictures who were prominent in the game within the last twenty-five years, especially as such pictures were not then as common as now, with present-day facilities of photography and printing.

A short mention of those whose pictures appear in this year's issue will bring visions of stirring contests of other days to the minds of the middle-aged fan and no doubt serve to revive recollections of incidents and inaugurate discussion as to the superiority or otherwise of the present-day player.

The Guide will be sent to any address on receipt of 10 cents by the American Sports Publishing Company, 21 Warren street, New York.

EASY DRIVE OF DORT FAVORED BY WOMEN

A recent canvass among owners of Dort cars revealed the fact that in 85 per cent of the families owning Dorts, either the wives or daughters in these families did most of the driving.

When this was brought to the attention of W. A. McCollough, of the firm of Poole & McCullough Motor Co., 311-313-315 Peachtree street, local representatives for the Dort, he remarked:

"I am not at all surprised to hear this, and there is a mighty good reason why the Dort has so met favor with the woman. In the first place the Dort is a car that the average woman likes to be seen in, and in the second place, there is not another car on the market that is so simple of control and so easy to handle and learn to drive as the Dort.

"I will except the electric, but the woman of today, unless she is unusually timid, wants the acceleration and the thrill of driving a real gasoline car. It is not at all unusual to give a woman her first lesson in driving in the afternoon and find her so proficient in an hour or so that she wants to drive down town and bring her husband home from the office, and some of them do this, too."

"The single lever control, the buttons all on the dash directly in front of the driver, the way in which the Dort responds to the brake, the ease with which it steers and with which the combined clutch and brake can be operated, find favor with every woman who tries her hand at driving.

"The dependable Westinghouse two-unit starting and lighting system is another point that recommends it to women. With this system a sure quick start is always certain with a minimum use of battery current, and if one should step on the starting pedal by accident when the motor is running, no harm is done. It is absolutely impossible to strip either the starter pinion gear or fly-wheel engaging gear in this way."

The United States is the greatest wool consuming country, while Great Britain does the bulk of the wool manufacturing.

Fortunes in Fighting

It is only within comparatively recent years that the boxing game and high finance have entered upon such intimate relations. The last bare-knuckle championship battle in America, that between John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, at Richburg, Miss., in 1889, involved a financial consideration of only $20,000, although the sportsmen of two continents had been eagerly discussing such a match for years.

The South African miners were really responsible for initiating the era of big money fights. In 1889 they hung up a stake of $32,500 for a battle between two comparative unknowns, Jack Couper and Wolf Bendorf. This lavish stake was a seven-days' wonder in the sporting world, and it started the boxers of America and England to thinking. If such a sum could be hung up for a fight pulled off in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, they figured that their fistic displays in the centers of civilization ought to be worth a lot more money than they had been getting.

New Orleans started the ball rolling with the big tournament pulled off there in September, 1892. Sullivan defended his title against Jim Corbett in a bout in which $46,000, in stake and purse, was involved. The lightweight title match between Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer was for a stake and purse of $20,000, and $17,500 was hung up for the George Dixon-Jack Skelly featherweight battle.

The next year New Orleans again got into the limelight by offering $40,000 for a middleweight title bout between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall. In 1894 Corbett fought Charlie Mitchell, the English boxer, for $30,000 at Jacksonville, Fla.

The west then got into the running. The Fitzsimmons-Sharkey bout in San Francisco in 1896 attracted a $21,000 house, the fighters getting $14,700. The next year Fitzsimmons fought Corbett for the heavyweight title at Carson City, the gladiators getting $16,500 of the $22,000 gate.

Then came the turn of the effete east to horn into the big money game. In 1899 the New York fans paid $66,000 to see Jeffries defeat Sharkey, the fighters getting $36,465. The contest between Jim Corbett and Kid McCoy, staged in New York in 1900, attracted another big house, the fans paying $56,350 to see the bout between the two great exponents of cleverness, who divided $33,810.

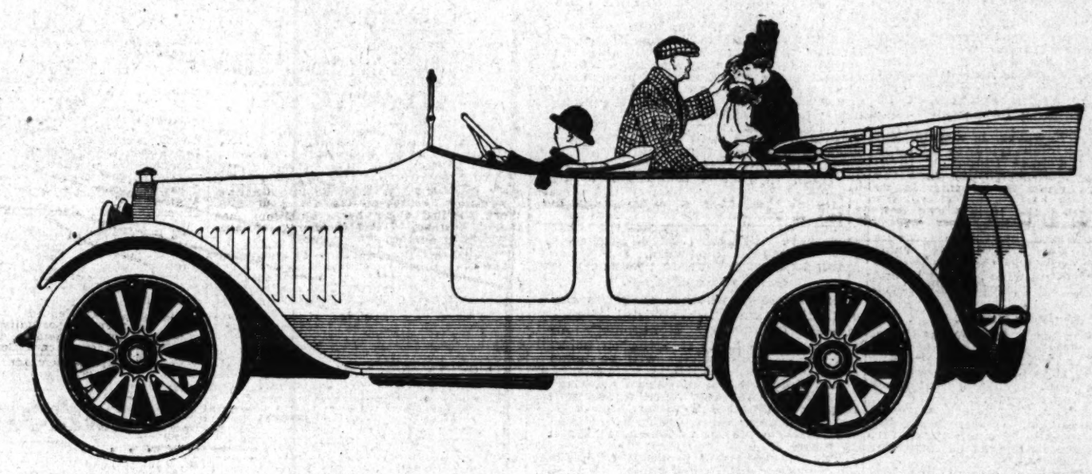

That was the end of big money in the east for a time, but the Pacific coast plungers continued to bull the pug market. In 1901 the San Francisco fans paid over $30,000 to see Jeffries and Ruhlin in action, the fighters getting about $20,000. The Jeffries-Fitzsimmons battle in San Francisco the following year attracted a slightly larger gate, and the coast fans paid $20,000 to see Young Corbett and Terry McGovern, a pair of little fellows, larrup each other. The Nelson-Britt lightweight contest at Colma in 1904, attracted $48,000, the men getting $31,000 of this sum. The Britt-Corbett contest the same year drew $32,000. The Britt-Gans affair drew $21,000, and the Nelson-Britt contest of 1905, $27,000.

The receipts at the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield in 1906, were only $33,300, slightly less than the amount paid the fighters. Milwaukee paid $21,224 to see the Ketchell-Papke contest in 1908. The fight fans of Australia paid $67,000 to see Tommy Burns whip Bill Squires in 1908, and a little later dug up $131,000 when Burns fought Jack Johnson.

The great culmination of the financial fever came in 1910, when $270,775 was paid by the fans at Reno for the Johnson-Jeffries battle, the warriors getting $121,000. When Willard took the title away from Johnson at Havana last year, the gate receipts amounted to about $70,000, of which Johnson got $32,000, and big Jess practically nothing above expenses. But he has been getting it since!

Chinese are becoming so adept in the manufacture of biscuits and crackers that the Hong Kong product is beginning to compete with the imported article, having already worsted competition from Shanghai. This will affect the United States, from which the major portion of the biscuits, crackers and cakes for China have been imported.

AJAX TIRES GUARANTEED 5,000 MILES. AJAX RUBBER CO., Inc. ATLANTA Branch, 1-6 West Harris Street. Phone, Ivy 1889.

The First to Combine Bridled Force and Scrupulous Thrift—3400 r. p. m. Chalmers

Performance blent brilliantly with price puts the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers at $1050 in a position that cannot be challenged.

This is the model of which 600 merchants bought $22,000,000 worth in 40 minutes on the day of its unveiling in Detroit.

It wedged itself into the cluttered market in a manner that I have never seen approached.

The energy of this 3400 r. p. m. engine delivers 60 miles an hour—all the speed you dare use—without exacting a burnt-offering of wasteful fuel consumption.

Chalmers Service does not begin when a car pauses in front of the service station that bears the Chalmers Monogram. The principles of Chalmers Service dominated the designing and building of the 3400 r. p. m. from the moment the dream of it began glimmering in the brains of its engineers.

Despite the return of prosperity to the South, I don't ask you to buy a car that delivers might at staggering C. O. D. rates.

By making every gallon of gas kick in with 18 miles of the smoothest going, it makes might wed mileage.

And the by-product of this extraordinary union is a magnificent acceleration that is wholly foreign to the car that is built for speed alone.

The surpassing smoothness of this throbless engine that whirls at a velocity of 3400 revolutions per minute is not an engineering accident.

This result was striven for by its builders, who knew that the more explosions per minute, and the greater the number of revolutions of the motor, the lesser amount of heat is lost through the cooling jacket.

Heat is power. The small engine of this car leaves a small area from which heat can be thrown away by radiation, there is a very short cooling process between explosions of gas, and you have a power plant that wrings every ounce of energy from its fuel.

That is why this is the car that performs.

One minute with your foot on the accelerator, and you'll know what I mean.

One performance—and 3400 will no longer be a mere number to you. It will become the magic password into an unknown, undreamed-of realm of travel.

With raw materials growing less plentiful, it is good foresight to register your order now if you can.

I'LL BE DOG-GON

IF I DON'T believe that I am building—in Decatur—the prettiest, cutest, coziest, neatest and most convenient and home-like little 5-room bungalow this side of LOS ANGELES, CAL., and that's making SOME statement, too. If you have traveled west, go look at it—you'll be DELIGHTED. If you haven't, go look at it—you'll see the DIFFERENCE between a bungalow and a barn. I got this plan in San Diego, Cal., where it was built. Will be finished in 10 days. You can select your inside finish. It's thoroughly modern and if you are A-1 risk you can buy this bungalow on terms that you will hardly realize you are buying a home—you just rent it a few years and I make you a present of it. Yes, it has a small loan, but it's a real bungalow, built with the best skilled labor, of best materials. The price is $2,750 (the same price you pay for the barn). Get off North Decatur car at Greenwood Station, walk one block to left. P. B. HOPKINS, Empire Bldg.

ABOUT POULTRY

By "UNCLE JOE"

Address "UNCLE JOE" CONSTITUTION ATLANTA GA-

Lice and Mites.

The beginner should understand in a general way, at least, that his best laid plans may be wholly upset by insect pests should they once get a good start on the place. Prevention is here as elsewhere much easier and cheaper than cure.

There are a great many kinds of these pests, but methods that answer for the four leading classes will also do for the rest I imagine.

When hens are set in warm weather and sufficient precaution not taken, their nests are likely to become inhabited by millions upon millions of exceedingly small insects that will actually kill the hen and her brood if not eradicated.

Often when a hen is set a second time she will die from the attacks of these insects before she can hatch the second brood.

Before setting a hen, it is well to fix the nest that lice and mites will not breed in it. Tobacco dust or snuff, Uncle Joe's lice powder, or any good insect powders are all good to sprinkle in the nest material.

Or the whole inside of the nest box may be sprayed with kerosene (coal oil) and a pad of newspapers washed in kerosene may be spread on the bottom. This should be covered with ashes and then the hay or straw put on that. It should be so arranged that the eggs will not come in direct contact with the kerosene. I have never known a louse or mite to breed where even a slight odor of kerosene was present. The hen herself may be thoroughly dusted with Uncle Joe's insect powder before she is set and once or twice again before the eggs hatch. She should also have a chance to dust herself whenever she wants to.

When the chicks are hatched, a very small dab of lard or vaseline on the top of each head and under each wing will insure their freedom from lice for a while. Just a little of the grease is all that is needed. Too much will kill the chicks.

The familiar red mite is a terrible pest that seems to breed in damp manure. By keeping the coops cleaned and well dosed with kerosene the mites will not get a start. The red mite is not dependent upon fowls for its propagation. Some places where no fowls have been kept for years are fairly alive with them, even on the eagles in the roofs of the buildings. I have found a common fifty-cent tin sprayer most excellent for applying kerosene to coops, nest boxes and roosts. It should be used with judgment, of course, and not so freely as to injure eggs or chicks. If a narrow but thick strip of felt or even paper be tacked the full length of the under side of the roosts, it will absorb a lot of the kerosene when the spraying is done and make the job more effective and permanent. Keeping the quarters perfectly dry and mixing earth, sand or some other dry absobent material (not lime) freely with the droppings and removing the manure with reasonable frequency tends to keep the mites from breeding.

Adult fowls when they have continual access to an agreeable dusting place tend to keep themselves reasonably free from body lice. Dust, however, has no effect whatever on the red mite. That fact should be remembered. Elaborate contraptions for destroying hen and mites are by no means necessary, but constant diligence is essential if one would keep them in subjection.

ADVERTISE IN THE CONSTITUTION.

Mrs. Nora Vaughn, Steens, Miss.—Hello, Uncle Joe and poultry readers! If you have room for me I would like to ask a few questions: I have forty Buckeye hens on free range that have been laying all winter: Is it necessary for me to buy feed for them when they can get corn, cane seed, peas and everything Mr. Vaughn raises on the farm? I give them all the milk they will drink. I would rather feed them such as I have at Mr. V.'s expense and save that much. If it will do as well, should I buy oyster shells and grit when they have free range? Tell all the sister readers that can't sell their eggs to put an advertisement in The Constitution and one in The Progressive Farmer and they will get all the orders they can fill. I mean, if they have thoroughbred chickens.

Answer—If your hens have been laying all winter it seems to me that if you do not have other fowls just starting to lay it would be rather risky to set eggs from hens that have laid all winter. Naturally the hens have become weakened by the strain, and while the eggs may hatch, vitality, I think, would not be strong. A chicken can't lay all the time; "it's agin nater."

If you are feeding your chickens at Mr. Vaughn's expense I would continue to do so, and thus make a clear profit on your flock. Mr. V. must be a very generous, liberal-hearted man. Does he ever borrow any of your chicken money? As to shell and grit, it would all depend on the nature of the land. If of limestone with grit on top, no; if clay, with little or no grit, yes.

As a drawing card The Constitution takes the lead of all southern publications.

FLEAS, MITES, CHOLERA.

Mrs. Laura Barnett, Shubuta, Miss, R. F. D. 4.—Dear Uncle Joe: We are readers of The Constitution and I look to the chicken page for good advice. I am going to ask a favor of you. Please tell me how to rid my poultry of good sized fleas and chicken mites, as they are bad among my fowls already. Would also like to have a remedy for cholera, if there is any.

Answer—Follow the suggestions found at the beginning of this department and I think you will be able to exterminate the fleas and mites on your poultry, as well as mites in the henhouse.

Cholera cures, true cholera, I mean, are at best very uncertain. Fortunately, genuine chicken cholera is very rare, and, as a rule, is only found in neighborhoods where hog cholera is raging.

If you are sure it is cholera would suggest you try the remedy found in this department of date of March 18. If any remedy is beneficial this is it.

HOW TO USE NUX VOMICA.

H. H. Stroud, Austell, Ga., R. No. 2.—Dear Uncle Joe: Will you please tell me how to feed nux vomica to baby chickens? The hawks catch them about as fast as they hatch.

Answer—There are two ways of using nux vomica to prevent hawks from taking the young chicks. You can take a small quantity of the drug and mix with anything sticky, like molasses or preserves; mix a little flour with this so it can be handled, and make a little pellet about twice the size of the head of a pin. Raise the down of the chick's neck and place the pellet next the skin, the molasses will make it stick.

Then you can mix as much nux vomica as will go on a ten-cent piece, with cornmeal dampened with milk, and feed to twelve or fifteen chicks. Do this twice a week. Never eat any chickens that have been fed nux vomica for a week after you have stopped using the drug.

THE SUSSEX.

O. Townsend, Holcomb, Miss., R. No. 3.—I feel that I am intruding by coming again so soon, but I wish to ask you about a certain breed of chickens, the Sussex. Wish you would give me a full description of them. I am thinking of adding another breed next year. I will give my White Leghorns the range and keep the others penned.

Can you tell me of a good market for turkey gobblers this time of year? I have two too many and they fight so bad. Which do you think gives the best results in advertising poultry, farm papers or poultry journals?

If bothered with mites try burning sulphur in hen house. The best results will be obtained where house is not too open.

Answer—Honest, the Sussex fowl in appearance do not appeal to me. How they are on the nest I can only judge by what I hear.

A near neighbor of mine has a pen bought last year. He also keeps White Leghorns and his story is that they commenced laying earlier than his Leghorns and keeping even with them now, egg for egg.

To me they are not a beautiful fowl. They have a very pronounced beard, almost, if not quite, as large as a Houdan hen.

They are nearly, if not quite, as large as the average Reds one sees on the farm. They will be popular, I think, simply because some noted breeders are taking them up and boosting them. They stand confinement well, or my neighbor's do so at least. They are good mothers and setters, and, of course, lay a dark shelled egg.

Gobblers should not be hard to sell at this season, as there seems to be a dearth of turkey breeding stock this season. Have had several inquiries from parties wanting both gobblers and hens. Unfortunately you did not state what breed you had, therefore I can't help you much.

WANTS TO GET STARTED.

A. B. Elrod, Fairmont, Ga.—Dear Uncle Joe: Will you all allow an old bachelor a seat? I would be a White Leghorn and Rhode Island Red fancier if I were able, but I am a cripple and have to depend on others for support. I had a very good start in life and was broken up two years ago. So all the pastime I have now is reading the dear old Constitution. I have been studying the poultry business for some time and I believe that if I were able to get started in the poultry business just right I would be the happiest man in the world. Now, I want more of the poultry lovers to write.

I will give a remedy for cuts, bruises and sores: Dissolve 5 cents' worth of camphor gum in one-half pint of gasoline and bathe, but do not bind up. This is sure a germ killer and also recommended for pains.

Answer—Certainly, sir, since you are a reader of The Constitution, you are not only entitled to a seat at these gatherings, but you also have the privilege of asking questions and entering into all discussions on the subject of chickens, or anything else taken up in this department.

It is unfortunate that you have met with misfortune, also that you are a cripple and dependent on others.

Hope you will, in the near future, have your dearest wish gratified, and that the next time we hear from you, you will be managing a poultry plant of your own and making a success of it. Good luck to you!

LIKES LINE BREEDING.

Lula Hudson, Cooper, Texas—Dear Uncle Joe: Will you allow another to join your poultry page? I have been reading the poultry page for some time and like it fine. I am a lover of poultry. I have the White Wyandottes and Leghorns, they sure are fine. I agree with Uncle Joe about line breeding. Two years ago I had 3 hens and now I have about 30 hens and 3 roosters that are better than the ones I began with. I cull my poultry every year.

I have plenty of eggs to use all the time and some to sell. I have a 200-egg "Old Trusty" incubator and have it setting. I want to get a start of bene seed and if any of the cousins see this and have any to spare, though it may be very little, and will let me know, I sure will appreciate it. Uncle Joe, I looked through three garden catalogs and couldn't find any bene seed.

Answer—Come right in and have a chair. Always glad to meet new members and will try and make it as agreeable, with the assistance of the other members of the club, as possible.

Line breeding and culling is the secret of plenty of eggs and beautiful shaped and colored chickens. You have proved this by having better chickens now than when you started. Just keep on improving.

If you will send to W. T. Wood & Sons, Richmond, Va., for a catalog, you will find bene advertised therein.

THE CHICKEN BUSINESS.

Mrs. A. Owen Allison, West Liberty, Ky.—Dear Uncle Joe: I am the wife of a state missionary in the mountains of eastern Kentucky. I have taught school and done hospital work, etc., but now in this small town there is no position for me and I love my husband and home too much to be away from home, and, too, the church work needs me here. So all those are the conditions except I failed to gently remind you that the salary of a missionary on any field is no more than just enough for mere expenses and those sifted down. I had about decided to rent another house with a good chicken lot and garden, but I haven't anything to begin raising chickens with. I could invest possibly $15 or $20 into it to begin with, but I hardly know how to begin. What kind of chickens do you suggest? Should I this year just try to set any kind I can get, since it is so late? What is the best and most inexpensive incubator? Please do tell me how to make the fireless brooder, as I have been a reader of your page only recently. Shall I separate the hens from the growing chickens? What is the best feed for newly-hatched chicks? How often shall I feed them?

The big rats here eat the chickens so bad—how can I manage them?

Uncle Joe, I am just a beginner at the poultry business and I trust you will pardon so many questions, and be perfectly free to tell me anything that would help me in my work.

Answer—Since cash is limited and every penny must be counted and made to go as far as possible, I think it unwise to invest any money for standard-bred chickens this year. My idea would be to buy some common hens and try your hand with them. Say, early in April buy a few settings of standard-bred chicken eggs of the one or two varieties that you fancy most, and in this way lay the foundation for next season's work, and in the meantime make up your mind which side of the business you want to take up—market or fancy side. Your safest and surest plan would be to take up the market side and if successful with this, the fancy side would gradually come without any exertion on your part. The market side is always sure, while the fancy is very uncertain until one has had years and years of experience, and it does not come even then. Just starting out with no experience, the better plan is to go slow and not attempt too much on the start, but go slow and learn as you go.

I would not buy an incubator the first year, but rather content myself with hens, for to make an incubator a paying investment one should have at least twenty-five hens. An inexpensive incubator is dear at any price, for the best are none too good. A cheap one is money thrown away.

It is always best to separate the growing chickens from the grown ones when possible.

The very best feed for newly hatched chicks is hard-boiled eggs chopped fine and mixed with stale bread crumbs. This, in conenction with rolled oats, makes the best feed for the first week. Feed every two hours, five or six times a day. Not much at a time. After the first week or ten days any of the prepared chick feeds are good, though I would avoid those having grit in them, as grit is usually to be had at home.

It seems to me that good traps or a terrier dog would soon settle the rat question. If this won't do, the next best thing is to remove all chicks and brood coops as far as possible away from the building where rats are found.

If you have had no previous experience with fowls, start in a small way and learn as you go. More people have failed starting with too much rather than too small capital.

If I can help you with any other suggestions call on me.

POOR ME!

Have you noticed that this meeting has been very prosaic? Like Postum, "There is a reason."

Like Mrs. Grouch, standing before Mr. Grouch with rolling-pin in hand, Aunt Joe has stood behind my chair and watched every word I wrote, vowing that if I mentioned her in this department again, sundry and divers punishment would be mine. Fortunately for me, some of the pots on the stove needed attention and while her back was turned I wrote this. But here she comes back, so I will have to smuggle this in without completing what I was going to say.

The House Fly.

Unwelcome Visitor.—It is only in recent years that the people as a whole have begun to appreciate the danger that must be associated with the life and habits of the common house fly. The very fact that a house fly cannot be born except in filth is enough to condemn him. But this is not the worst of it. When disease strikes down animal or man, and renders either unable to defend himself, the fly becomes a nuisance and feasts on the most rapidly decaying parts. In this way it becomes the carrier of disease germs, and therefore the distributor of deadly diseases. The fly likes equally well the clean food prepared for man and all kinds of filth and waste. It brings disease organisms from the filthy to the pure food, or from the diseased to the healthy person. We should think that the fly goes from the spittoon to the dinner table, and in this way the spittoon may prove to be the source of much trouble. The fly will go to the spottoon and get a good meal, and then fly to the table and wipe its feet on the food. The food will become inoculated with whatever organisms that happen to be in the spittoon. The fly should certainly be regarded as an unwelcome visitor. There is nothing good about it and everything is bad. Every effort should be made to completely rid the entire earth of the house fly.

The following eighteen questions and answers about the fly have been taken from the records of the Kansas State Board of Health and are so pertinent now in the beginning of the spring season that we have pleasure in printing them in these columns:

Fly Catechism.

1. Where is the house fly born? In filth, chiefly in horse manure and outhouses.

2. How long is the life cycle of his birth? About ten days from the time the egg is laid until the mature fly is born.

3. What are the steps in the transformation from the egg to the fly? The egg, the maggot, the pupa, the fly.

4. Where does the fly live? Where there is filth.

5. Is there anything too filthy for the fly to eat? No.

6. Does the fly take clean food, too? Yes, and it appears to be his delight to wipe his feet on clean food.

7. Where is his favorite place of feeding? The manure heap, the garbage can, the privy vault and the spittoon.

8. Where does the fly go after leaving the manure pile, the garbage can, the privy vault and the spittoon? Into the kitchen, dining room and bedroom.

9. What does he do in the kitchen, dining room and bedroom? He wipes his feet on the food, bathes in the milk and annoys the sleeper.

10. Does the fly visit those sick with typhoid fever, consumption, smallpox and cholera infantum? He certainly does, and may call on you next.

11. Is the fly dangerous? Yes, he spreads disease.

12. How does he spread disease? By carrying infection on his legs and wings, and by "fly specks" after he has been feeding on infectious material.

13. What diseases may the fly thus carry? He may convey typhoid fever, tuberculosis, cholera, dysentery and "summer complaint."

14. Did the fly ever kill anyone? He killed more American soldiers in the Spanish-American war than the bullets of the Spaniards, and was the direct cause of much of the typhoid fever in the United States last year.

15. Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever and summer complaint? Where there is most filth.

16. Where are the most flies? Where there is most filth.

17. Is the presence of flies therefore an indication of nearby filth? It most certainly is, and that is disgraceful.

18. How may we successfully fight the fly? By destroying or removing his breeding place, the manure pile, removing all garbage and making the privy vault fly-proof, and by keeping our yard and alley clean; by screening the house; by the use of the wire swatter and sticky fly-paper.

Every Boy a Pig.

Practical Farming.—The question of food is vital to all of us, and nothing will make a more direct appeal to the south than the great question of hog meat. Hardly a table anywhere but what has hog meat on it once each day, and why should not the people eat hog meat? If they eat hog meat why should the boys not have the pleasure of raising pigs? To let them raise pigs is practical farming, and is sensible farming.

Requirements.—Boys that undertake to raise pigs should agree to do definite things. All of our Southern Agricultural colleges have specified what these duties should be, and have met with great success in the general campaign. Business men and business organizations will be glad to furnish pigs to boys who obligate to do certain things and then who have some reliable agent to see that these things are done. In this way the boys themselves as well as the communities at large will profit very much by the universal efforts to put every boy in possession of a pig.

In Waco, Texas, the board of trade decided to put every boy in that county in possession of a pig and demanded the following of the boys:

1st. Each boy must have the recommendations as to his honesty from his school teacher, superintendent, trustee, banker, business man or farmer.

2d. He must give note bearing 6 per cent interest for the cost of the pig to be furnished by the board of trade.

3d. He must agree to raise not less than one-half acre of feed for his pig.

4th. A waiver required from parent or guardian that the boy must be the sole owner, and that neither the father nor the guardian can claim the profits or increase from same.

5th. The boy will be asked to take the profits and convert into heifer calf. (This part of the contract not compulsory.)

6th. Neighborhood clubs of six, seven or eight boys must draw for the male pig. The boy receiving the male must agree to give service to the boys who have female pigs, and receive payment in a pig. He will not be permitted to charge money for services among the club members. In this way the boy with the male pig will have an increase as well as the boys with the female pigs.

This agreement may not meet with the ideals of the educational institutions, but it is a good business proposition, and will teach the boys business methods and after all that is worth much to them. Besides, the business organizations will find this plan simple enough to try out, and boards of trade ought to take it up and give it a trial. Only registered stock should be bought, and boys should become familiar with the value of having this kind of stock.

Results.—While this part of the paper is speculative, we may predict with certainty that farmers will be converted through the boys of the family to the value of raising fine hogs for meat. The plan will do away with the razor back hog that it takes two years to put flesh enough on to kill for pork, and will introduce hogs that will grow 300 pounds of flesh in less than twelve months. It will mean a more complete diversification of farm crops and a bigger and better civilization. These young people are in the true sense the hope of the entire country and the better they are prepared in this or any other way for the responsibilities that are facing them, the surer we are to be wisely guided as a nation in the future.

(The writer of these articles will be glad to answer any inquiries which may be addressed to him in regard to any data which may be desired. We make no pretensions to knowing all there is to be known about bees, but we are deeply interested to quicken a general interest, especially among the farmers of the south, in this by no means small industry. Personal advice in regard to literature, supplies, and numerous details will be cheerfully given upon request. Address all inquiries to S. E. Wasson, Rome, Ga.)

Care in Early Spring.

In extreme southern localities bees fly nearly every month; in tropical climates they need not hibernate at all. However, in the higher altitudes and latitudes they do hibernate, clinging close to their hives for most all the time during December, January and February. As the chill of the winter begins to wane and the sun's warmth begins to call forth the buds and the harbingers of spring, the bees come forth and start on the duties of a new year.

A careful observer will note very soon that some of the early explorers of the mysteries of the outdoors have their great wings worn and tattered. They are the veterans of last year. Many a morsel of nectar did they bring you last season. They have been your faithful servants during the closing weeks of the fall. They went into winter quarters as veterans of many battles with wind, rain and labor. They "dug in" for winter, and now they come forth to open the campaign of springtime. But they will not be long with you.

The exposures of an early spring, the over-exertion after a long rest, all the accidents of search and exploration and toil will conspire to hasten the demise of your faithful and speechless friends. It is of very great importance that the bee-keeper exercise the kindest and most intelligent interest in his bees at the first of the new season. Then the colony may be weak from long inactivity.

There may be thousands of healthy bees in the hive, but they will not live more than a few weeks. Probably they went into winter when a month old. They have been in winter quarters for two months. Unused to activity, they cannot endure labor, and even the chill of outdoors will be hard on them. Only a few of them will live fifty days after the spring labors begin.

The very first warm, sunny day that comes the hive should be quietly opened, and every brood stick examined. If the honey stored around the edges for winter use is nearly all gone, they must have some extra supplies. Probably the best thing to do will be to open another hive and find one in which there is abundance of honey and take from this a frame and insert it in the poor hive and place the frame taken out in the richer hive. If all the hives are poor in supplies, a feeding may be substituted. To do this is simple enough. A brown sugar syrup may be made. To do this take one part of sugar to two parts of water. Dissolve the sugar thoroughly in hot water. Slip a shallow tin pan containing the syrup into the hive. Cover the syrup with a piece of cheese cloth so that the bees will not be drowned. Be sure the pan is very shallow and not too large for the space. A few spoonfuls of the syrup will be sufficient for a day's feeding. As soon as the bees fly freely and give evidence of securing food, feeding will be unnecessary. A colony that has been housed well rarely ever needs feeding. Sometimes a colony started late in the season has a bad season and fails to provide for itself, but normally they will take care of themselves.

Early spring may present you with a diseased colony. Most likely the trouble will be simple dysentery. A symptom of this is the dark brown color deposited at the entrance of the hive. There will be a lot of dead bees also about the entrance. If it is serious, you may lose the colony. It might be wise to carefully examine and clean out the refuse matter which may be found on the bottom of the hive. But nothing is practical except to wait for warm weather.

Unusually warm days too early in spring will surely bring out your bees. They may even begin brood rearing under the instinctive notion that spring has come. If so, and the pollen supply is not available, you will soon discover dead bees, young ones especially, at the entrance to the hive. No need for undue alarm. The bees will take care of the trouble. The hive may lose some of its many workers, but very soon all will be well.

When you look into your hives in early spring, if you find a few of them decidedly weak, the best thing to do is to unite the remnants into one strong colony. Most of the bees will be found in such cases to be settled on a few combs. The deserted combs can be removed and those from the weaker hive on which bees are located can be set in their place. Usually this can be done with little commotion and little future disturbance. Of course, you may find it best to destroy the queen from one of the colonies. But the queens will attend to that, if you fail to do it.

If you find some hive in which all the bees are dead, you should at once fasten the entrance so no stray bee can get in. A little later you can probably use these combs and their contents in providing feed and comb for use where needed.

Correspondence.

Mr. R. L. C., Lacey's Springs, Ala., has a mule with kidney trouble that passes dark colored thick urine, and often has blood mixed with it. He wishes to know what to do.

Answer—This mule must have a form of nephritis or simple inflammation of the kidneys, as she is apparently well otherwise, and has a good appetite. The first thing to do is to give a laxative of a pint or even a quart of linseed oil (the raw oil), or four drams of aloes, and if the mule is not suffering specially, follow this with 4 drams Gentian once daily for ten days. This may be given in with the feed, especially if the latter consists of mixed feeds of oats and corn ground together. If the animal seems to suffer when the kidneys act it would be well to administer about 3 ounces acetate of ammonia once a day for two days, which will help in all probability to sweat out some of the accumulated poisons.

Mr. H. D. H., of Monticello, Miss., says that lice are on his cattle and he desires to know how to get them off.

Answer—One of the simplest ways is to purchase a small amount of creoline and put about a pint to a gallon of water and wash the cattle off with it. Petroleum oil and water is good. Some use the kerosene and water, and apply while stirring. If the skin is in any way irritated, apply a solution of sulphuret of potassium in water.

R. T. G., of Chickamauga, Ga., wishes to know how to get rid of Bermuda grass, both the patches and entire fields of it.

Answer—Bermuda grass is so valuable that one would hardly wish to rid pasture lands of it. In the average field all we need to do is to keep the land well cultivated and the Bermuda grass will soon be eliminated. If the land is well sodded to the grass it may have to be thoroughly plowed, and then the grass raked off once or twice before the crop is planted. Then the usual cultivation with an extra hoeing now and then will rid the field of it. The land planted in the speckled cow peas at the rate of three bushels to the acre will shade out the grass, and make the land easily cultivated the following year.

The Woman's World

By ISMA DOOLY

Beyond the fact that the proposed rule to be made by the retail merchants of Atlanta pertaining to return of goods three days after purchase, is protective to the merchants themselves and their employees, it will prove beneficial to women generally in making them more careful as purchasers.

More than two-thirds of the employees in the stores where women's garment are sold, their corsets, underwear, etc., and materials by the yard, are women. They represent what is called the women wage-earners—that element for whom organizations stand to help and for whom the more fortunate woman declares her sympathy continually.

We hear of organizations going as far as congress to ask that better hours be legislated for in behalf of the woman wage-earner and better wages assured her, yet in the everyday practical way, in which the leisure or more fortunate woman may help her sister earner, the former frequently fail.

In this very matter of returnable goods, the woman who makes a practice of it directly affects the wage of the saleswoman. The latter's salary basis is upon the sales actually made, not on the number of things selected and sent out on approval, or presumably bought only to be returned.

THOUGHTLESS SHOPPERS.

Therefore, when a woman indolently, thoughtlessly or whimsically takes up the time of a saleswoman, finally ordering garments or materials to be delivered, only to be returned to the store after several days or weeks, she has not only reduced the value of the goods returned, but deliberately decreased the actual earning of the woman whose time she has taken. Another inconsistency of the "taking back" habit of women is that they are working against one of their own pet hobbies in organization; that is, the conservation of health through a campaign against contagion and infection. In no way can germs be more surely disseminated than through garments which are sent out on approval, tried on or otherwise generally exposed. Especially is this true in regard to ready-made garments, hats, etc.

That women have abused their power in this direction is proven in the proposed action of the Retail Merchants' association of Atlanta, who are following a similar movement inaugurated now in the larger cities in every section of the country.

Examples of the abuse are quoted by merchants, and their records show losses that indicate their chivalry and patience have been fully tried. In the making an enforcement of the new rules a special care will be taken in the necessarily extended time for filling mail orders, the time required for delivery and returned to be added to the three days of grace to be allowed on all returnable goods.

I believe that the better element of women will not only see that the rules are entirely reasonable, but that they will willingly co-operate with merchants in enforcing them. Many women have not realized the effect of the returned purchase on women employees, and I predict this one incident alone will argue in favor of the three-day rule and its enforcement—that is, if the women of the movement really mean all they say about altruism or wanting to help one another.

PART OF A WOMAN'S BUSINESS.

It is a part of a woman's business to look the best she can on all occasions. It is difficult to accomplish even if she gives time to it, but if she is careless the results are evident. Her first effort in this business of looking her best is logically in the matter of being personally dainty—well groomed. This does not necessarily mean the curling of her hair by a specialist, the manicuring of her nails by an expert, nor the purchase of the most expensive creams and cosmetics. It means rather the careful conservation of what God has given her in the matter of appearance—incidentally in carriage or bearing; complexion, hair and countenance.

Even when she has done the best she can in this direction, her responsibility continues in the kind of clothes she wears. She has to pay for these or her father, husband or natural protector or supporter does it, and she is morally obligated to see what her business in this direction is and to make the best of this part of her business.

If she is thoughtless about it, her appearance directly indicates it. The woman who has the greatest number of garments—the most extensive trousseau—is by no means always the best gowned or appearing woman. On the contrary, it is frequently the woman with the most limited trousseau who is the best dressed, for she has been careful. She has made a business of her purchases, and she has the right kind of gown for the right time and place. She studies the places to which she goes, the section in which she travels, before she makes her purchases, and she studies the kind of gowns, hats, etc., to be worn on certain occasions. Frequently such women seem to care less about clothes and talk less about them than those who never get beyond the subject of clothes in conversation.

THE WHIMSICAL BUYER.

The whimsical buyer, who goes to the shops the beginning of the season and without considering her needs, but momentarily following the dictates of fancy, is the woman who is not attending to her business, and is the one who has forced the merchant to make the three-day rule.

To such a woman the new rule may prove a blessing.

She will think before she pays fifteen dollars for a sport hat when she neither golfs, participates in out-of-door sports, or even walks in suburban places. She will think several times before she buys a black jet afternoon gown made en train, when she stops to think that such a gown is only suitable for occasions where she is rarely present. She will stop to think before she selects her winter suit in tomato color, when it is to be the only one she has for church, walking, marketing and even for informal evening occasions. Tomato color is very pretty if a woman can afford to indulge in fads and in the purchase of a suit that can only be worn appropriately two or three times a season.

TOMATO COLOR.

I have nothing against tomato color as a color, but I firmly believe it would challenge the piety of the most benign preacher if it were the first thing he saw every Sunday during the winter when he looked in the direction in which the member of his flock sat who had selected the tomato-colored gown. And the trouble is, so often the purchaser of these novelty costumes realize their error, after they have looked at themselves carefully; they rue the error of their way, and they make bold, put the costume back in its box, return it to the merchant with the gentle comment, "It doesn't suit."

The same conduct is followed in regard to the evening hat purchased impulsively, and then having to be worn at church and funerals unless it is returned with the lining soiled and the comment, "It is not becoming."

THE SMARTLY GOWNED WOMAN.

The smart woman is the one who knows the things first of all which are becoming to her; who knows next just what she most needs the beginning of each season, and who makes her purchases accordingly. When she has first seen what she needs, then she can afford to elaborate upon her trousseaus, getting the things she likes and can afford. Such a woman is generally among those classed as "well dressed."

The best dressed women avoid the extremes; they are never bizarre and they will stop to think before they buy the stockings that "scream," the shoes that "stare," the gowns that "challenge—for they are for the women who do not know any better.

Therefore, I believe that it is a welcome movement, this or any other inaugurated, which will make women careful about their business of looking as well as they can all the time. The more careful the purchase, the more careful the trousseau and the better gowned the woman.

I remember being at a resort once, a southern resort in the hot summer. A group of ladies came with a wagon load of trunks and the word was passed among the rocking chair brigade on the porch that these ladies had wonderful trousseaus. They did—they had evening gowns of wondrous kind; nets spangled and bejeweled, and they had sparkling gewgaws for their hair. There was only a band Saturday night at the hotel; nothing doing but flirting in the moonlight after dinner; long strolls; games of bridge if it were cool. There was really no place for these ladies and their clothes. They had high-heeled white shoes to walk over the mountains in and white taffeta silk suits in which they went rowing and it nearly always rained the afternoons they went.

They wore white-plumed hats in to Sunday dinners and lace gowns over colored silks, and when they went strolling out for a little walk—it rained just as it will in the mountains.

They were no funnier, however, than some of Atlanta's sport clothes habitues of last summer who wore heavy silk sweaters up town shopping in August and sport hats with lingerie gowns in the evening.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Who is responsible for the very questionable attire being worn by young girls on the street? There is no use to blame this on the motion pictures, on theaters or any of the other worldly places where young people go. They may go too frequently to these places, but the places can't be held responsible for the fashions. The young girls referred to are too young to have money of their own; the majority, I imagine, are too young to have the liberty of their own allowance from their parents. They are not working girls who can control their own wage, because the latter are working, not traipsing up and down the streets in the afternoon. Their employers will not permit of their dressing as these young women do, anyway.

They have well-to-do parentage or they could not have the clothes they wear, but they are dressing in a fashion which is demoralizing in its abandon, color, fabric and cut. At corners where cars cross and many people congregate to take cars to different points of the city, these young women afford spectacular performances getting on and off cars, which would try the chivalry of the most saintly of the masculine sex, and embarrass the women who are self-respecting and who happen to be in the vicinity.

The fashion of the moment is running to bright colors, but the color is the least of the abuse. First may be mentioned the brevity of the skirt, and its flaring fullness. Then comes the high boot, which does not conceal several inches of striped or plaid stocking. Then there is the gaudy hat pulled at an angle to show frowsy hair and the complexion suggests caricature for a Humpty-Dumpty pantomime. The loud perfume and rattling vanity and powder boxes are incidents of the toilets.

Now, these young women must live somewhere, but who lives in these homes with them? Can it be that these girls have mothers who see them garbed in this fashion and do not prohibit them going out that way. Have mothers lost entire control over these daughters, or are they, too, careless and out on the streets seeking diversion? If these mothers are indifferent; if they think their daughters are safe from comments and overtures of the vulgar, they are mistaken. How can the parents of these ill-dressed young girls be awakened to the appearance their daughters make on the streets in the the afternoon and aroused to protect them?

A TEST OF WOMAN'S INTEREST IN PRACTICAL THINGS.

A test of woman's interest in practical things in Georgia will have opportunity for strong proof in the part they will take in the Southeastern Fair association. Heretofore the exhibits made by women at fairs, large or small, have been more or less what is termed the "dead exhibits"—things which have been displayed on a competitive basis.

Prizes have been awarded, but there has been no way to show wherein the work might be improved, might take on new phases through exhibitors seeing the work of the women from other sections, and even from other countries. How to do these things, too, has been left for women to find out. But it is the purpose of the woman's department of this forthcoming fair to have not only the interesting exhibits in the things women have always done, but to show the new things women are doing, and the strides they have made in bettering the work and wares formerly exhibited by them at fairs.

One of the distinct purposes of the department is not only to reach the women of the state with the message of the department, but actually to bring to the woman's department women in clubs and groups from all parts of the state. For this purpose Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, chairman of the Southeastern fair department of the Georgia Federation of Clubs, and Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, president of the woman's department, have attended agricultural rallies in twelve different sections of the state, where they have brought the message of the Southeastern Fair association to the women. The district chairmen of these sections will keep up the publicity for the woman's department of the fair, and already letters are being received that women all over the state are not only interested in coming to the fair, but interested in making exhibits, especially along the line of work accomplished by them on farms.

They will exhibit dairy products, live stock and various farm products.

Mrs. Lumpkin and Mrs. Black are giving their services to the movement. Though they are beautifully entertained wherever they have been, their traveling expenses they pay themselves.

It is up to the women of Georgia to join in this well organized campaign for the exploitation and encouragement of woman's work, especially along agricultural lines.

Besides the exhibits in the woman's department, there will be spectacular features for the entertainment of the women who come to the fair. There will be conferences on woman's work, arranged for certain days, and advertised ahead. There will be special exhibits in art on certain days, and always the all-day cooking school and demonstrations. An out-of-door play will be put on by the Drama league, which will be interpreted by the best local talent, and daily musical programs.

Now what will the women of Georgia generally do to prove the value of a woman's department at the Southeastern fair?

A CHANCE FOR AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS.

Each day comes some striking example of our indolent dependence upon the foreign manufacturers of things which we should be making at home. We are told when anything is inferior or wrong, "Well, we always got that acid or dye or virus from Germany. Now the supply is cut off, and the substitutes made in this country are not good."

The latest incident of this indolent dependence of ours is in the matter of hair goods. Nearly all women wear what is known as the little invisible nets for the hair. They were originally made in Germany. Women boasted that with care a hair net costing 25 cents would last one month. In Atlanta, because of the dirt and dust and smoke, they will scarcely hold together for a week. Now invisible nets last about three days. Why? Because they are American-made, and to use not a vulgar expression, but one literally correct, they are rotten. They are made of hair which is not good; they are not carefully woven, and they seem to break or rot when exposed to the air or to any use which taxes them for a day.

The price for these inferior articles is exactly what was paid for the superior article made in Germany or Austria. The majority of women consulted will tell you that no accessory of the toilet at the present moment is more proportionately expensive than the invisible hair net, with which she must confine her wayward or restless tresses.

How long is this inferiority of manufacture of so many necessary little things going to last in this country?

Beauties of Atlanta To Attend Grand Ball At Movie Exposition

Atlanta is to see a bevy of its most striking beauties next Saturday night when the grand ball will close the Southern Motion Picture Trades exposition that is to be held at the Auditorium-Armory March 30, 31 and April 1.

More than a half hundred of the prettiest and most talented girls of the city have entered the beauty contest that is being promoted by managers of the exposition, and out of which the most acceptable girl will be selected to go to New York to take up a year's contract with the Universal Moving Picture company.

Who is Atlanta's most acceptable movie subject? This will be decided by the judges of the movie contest, of which Walter Price, manager of the Atlanta Universal office, is the head.

The ball will be one of the most pretentious affairs of its kind ever staged in the Auditorium. A score of moving picture celebrities will be present, coming from Jacksonville, New York and other moving picture centers. King Baggot, the most noted Universal star, will be among them.

The exposition will be the first picture trades exploitation in the south, and advance information indicates it will be one of the most conspicuous ever held in the country.

Keith Vaudeville.

At the Forsyth.

Manager George Hickman of the Forsyth theater announces that this week's bill of Keith vaudeville will be headed by Sam Chip and Mary Marble in their new act entitled "The Clock Shop."

The simple statement that these popular Atlanta favorites will be at the Forsyth has always been sufficient in the past to draw large audiences to every performance, and the fact that they are to be here this week in what is considered the best of all their vaudeville acts, together with six other corking good numbers, is a guarantee of good business for the theater.

The names of Sam Chip and Mary Marble are as well known to the Atlanta public as the names of Bobby Walthour, Billy Smith, Mayor Woodward or anyone else of local fame. Atlantans have long known them and liked them, and have given them an ovation every time they have been here.

"The Clock Shop," their present vehicle, is a quaint and delightful oddity that created a sensation at the recent All-Star Gambol of the Lambs' club, given for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. Actors and managers clamored for the stage rights, and John W. Dunne, who manages Sam Chip and Mary Marble, was the fortunate bidder who secured it from the author, John L. Golden.

"The Clock Shop" tells the story of two little Dutch clocks that fall in love with each other. The False Alarm Clock gives them a great deal of trouble by trying to cause jealousy and discord, but Love triumphs in the end and they are happily united. Other characters are the Grandfather's Clock, the Cuckoo Clock, Father Time, the Town Crier and the Clock Maker. Sam Chip and Mary Marble play the role of the lovers and are supported by an excellent company.

"A Jay Circus" is the title of a new act in which Forsyth patrons will greet two other favorites—Dan Sherman and his charming wife, Mabel DeForest. It was written by Sherman himself and is a rollicking recital of numerous funny incidents taken from his experiences while traveling with a small wagon circus in Texas. Besides Sherman and DeForest here are four other excellent entertainers in the act.

Harry Holman, a corpulent comedian whose very appearance engenders mirth in the audience, will be one of the features of the week's bill, in a brand-new sketch entitled "Adam Killjoy." Holman plays the part of a crusty old automobile broker with a son whose fondness runs to good looking girls rather than to business. The son and the stenographer in his father's office experience all kinds of difficulty because of the old man's grouchy ways and eagle-eyed watchfulness, but finally they outwit him and secure his consent to the ceremony. The act is as up-to-date as a 12-cylinder model and runs smoothly.

Mary Melville, formerly of the well-known vaudeville team of Melville and Higgins, is now upholding the reputation of the firm all by her lonesome, and is doing it well. She needs no assistance whatever in making her act altogether laughable and exhilarating and her material is altogether exclusive.

Rattling good piano playing and a collection of bright and breezy songs make up the act of Joe Schenck and Gus Van, who recently formed a vaudeville partnership and are making a great success.

A comedian who can really sing, and a singer who can really be funny, are not altogether the most frequent combination one finds on the vaudeville stage, but Lou Lockett and Jack Waldron are notably talented in both respects, and their act will be one of the bright spots on the bill. Emily Francis Keeper and Ellsworth Cooker will be found in song and dance diversion, and there will be the usual first run of Pathe News Weekly pictures and the always popular animated cartoons from the pen of Cartoonist Bray.

Emma Bunting.

(At the Lyric.)

Atlanta theatergoers will next week have the opportunity of witnessing for the first time the famous Jack Lait drama, "Help Wanted," which created such a furore on Broadway.

It is to be presented by Emma Bunting and her staff of players all week at the Lyric. Miss Bunting was starred in "Help Wanted" in New York.

She was selected for the leading role by the author of the play, who recognized the diminutive favorite's fitness for the character.

"Help Wanted" is a common expression in the big business world. It is safe to say that nine of every ten playgoers have at some time or other either answered a "Help Wanted" ad, or has engaged help through such medium.

The story of "Help Wanted" is that of, pretty little Gertrude Meyer, who leaves a business college to work as a stenographer in the private office of Jerrold Scott, an unprincipled millionaire.

His character is best described in the author's own words: "Life with him was just one stenographer after another."

Notwithstanding that Gertrude is pleasing her employer as a stenographer, she discovers the dangers of a business career in the night office work she is supposed to do.

While "Help Wanted" is rich in good clean, wholesome comedy, the audience is never permitted to lose sight of the terrible truth that prompted the author to write it. Proof of the play's merit is to be seen in extracts from many leading metropolitan newspapers:

The Chicago Examiner said: "'Help Wanted' came easily over the footlights as a popular success;" The Chicago Tribune: "'Help Wanted' appears to have begun a most popular career at the Cort;" The Record-Herald: "It is a pert, effective, impudent, showy play of great force."

The New York papers were equally as enthusiastic. The World said: "'Help Wanted' is a play with a big human grip." The Journal: "It is full of laughter and sound drama and intensely interesting from start to finish." The Tribune: "Mr. Lait has written a crisp, entertaining, popular piece."

Animal Life Motion Pictures At Grand Monday and Tuesday

Not even in its palmiest days has the Grand opera house been filled with such tremendous crowds as have attended Dr. Ruskin's close-to-nature motion pictures of wild life of the world, during the past three days.

Talking with a representative of The Constitution Dr. Ruskin said: "I have always heard that the citizens of Atlanta appreciated good things, and my first trip or visit to your city has proven this beyond doubt. I have exhibited my pictures in many of the large cities in this country, but can truthfully state I have never had the pleasure of showing them to a more appreciative audience," continued the doctor.

Wants Children to Attend.

"I understand there are about 30,000 children attending the public schools in Atlanta. I wish it were possible for me to show these pictures to all of them. They would not only enjoy them but be greatly benefited, for there are scenes of animals, birds, reptiles and insects of the world that but one person in a million would ever have the opportunity to see, and then only if they visited the actual haunts of the wild beasts themselves," said Dr. Ruskin.

"Although much against the wishes of my friends and family, I expect to sail again about the middle of June for northern Greenland. I have two friends who went on the Crocker Land expedition four years ago, to reexplore Crocker Land and land R. E. Perry said he found, but only thought he did, for he admitted last year that he was mistaken. These two men, Dr. Tanquarry and Elmer E. Ekblaw, of the University of Illinois, are lost. Somewhere, in that great expanse of ice and snow, we shall either find them alive or their skeletons."

To Continue Monday and Tuesday.

Owing to the continued success and the immense crowds that have been to the Grand to see Dr. Ruskin's pictures and hear his entertaining and interesting lecture, Dr. Ruskin will stay over two more days, Monday and Tuesday, March 27 and 28.

It is impossible to accurately describe and do justice to this exhibition. It would require a book of several hundred pages to tell the many interesting and thrilling scenes shown by Dr. Ruskin. It is a living book of natural history, made more interesting by the man who risked his life for twelve years to get the collection together.

TO DISCUSS PROPOSED CHANGES IN RATES

Meeting of Trade Boards and Shippers Called for March 30.

The Macon Chamber of Commerce, through its traffic manager, B. Gilham, has issued a call to all chambers of commerce and boards of trade of Georgia cities, all big jobbers and shippers, to gather in Macon at the Hotel Dempsey at 10 a. m. Thursday, March 30, for the purpose of discussing the probable effect that will be produced by change in intra-state freight rates as presented to the Georgia railroad commission by the carriers of the state, and on which a hearing has been set by the railroad commission for June 24.

This meeting will be a most important gathering of business men representing the commercial interests of various Georgia cities, and a large attendance is anticipated.

The traffic managers and shippers will also prepare to oppose at the June hearing any unreasonable changes in the present intra-state rates as proposed by the carriers in their petition to the railroad commission for permission to increase many intra-state rates.

"The carriers filed a petition seeking to revise the freight rates in Georgia before the railroad commission on March 10, and the commission has circulated this petition very largely with a view of obtaining a fair expression of the views of the shippers of Georgia. As the matter is statewide, the Georgia commercial traffic managers and large shippers have planned a general conference at Macon, and from the expressions had at this conference will depend the measures that shall be taken at the time the hearing is to occur.

"Increases are proposed on classes and commodities in the arrangement presented by the railroads, which a great many large shippers declare will upset commerce and manufacture materially, and as the railroads are already enjoying great prosperity under recent increases permitted by the interstate commerce commission many of these increases are unwarranted from any circumstances that appear to exist. The people of the state in every walk of life are vitally affected under this proposed adjustment.

"Traffic men and shippers are asked in a circular broadly circulated to notify Mr. B. Gilham of the transportation department, Macon Chamber of Commerce, if they expect to attend."

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

SUBMARINES TAKE TOLL OF AMERICAN LIVES

"Sinister Influences" Want War With Mexico, Says President Wilson

DRASTIC STEPS TO STOP SPREADING OF RUMORS

Those Circulating Alarmist Reports May Be Prosecuted for Inciting to Arson and Riot—U. S. Troops in Mexico for Sole Purpose of Getting Villa.

Washington, March 25.—President Wilso tonight issued warning that "sinister and unscrupulous influences" are spreading alarmist reports about the Mexican situation with the object of forcing intervention by the United States "in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican properties."

In a formal statement the president told the people to be on their guard and not to credit such stories. He urged those who disseminate news to test the source and authenticity of every report from the border, and called attention again to the government's announcement that the sole object of the punitive expedition was to punish Villa and his followers.

The news services had been asked, the president said, to assist in keeping this view constantly before the Mexican and American people. The purpose of the American commanders was described as embracing co-operation "in every possible way" with the forces of General Carranza and withdrawal from Mexican territory as soon as the object of the expedition is accomplished.

Solemn Warning Given.

The president solemnly warned the people that those persons all along the border who are actively engaged in originating and giving as wide currency as they can to rumors of the most sensational and disturbing sort, which are wholly unjustified by the facts."

The warning was issued after careful consideration by the president and his advisers of many official reports from throughout the United States and Mexico, including consular dispatches, saying that alarmist stories of the intentions of the Washington government were having an undesirable effect upon the Mexican people and American residents in the southern republic.

The possibility that General Carranza's hand might be weakened to a perilous extent should the Mexican public misunderstand the American expedition has been a prevailing factor in the entire operation against Villa. The question of alarmist reports was considered by the cabinet yesterday and the president conferred at length with Secretary Lansing before he issued his warning tonight.

Drastic steps may be taken if the warning is not heeded. Various suggestions have been advanced for legal procedure to remedy the situation, one measure suggested being invocation of the law against circulating of reports calculated to incite to arson and riot.

The President's Statement.

The president's statement follows:

"As has already been announced, the expedition into Mexico was ordered under an agreement with the de facto government of Mexico for the single purpose of taking the bandit Villa, whose forces had actually invaded the territory of the United States, and in no sense intended as an invasion of that republic or as an infringement of its sovereignty. I have, therefore, asked the several news services to be good enough to assist the administration in keeping this view of the expedition constantly before both the people of this country and the distressed and sensitive people of Mexico, who are very susceptible, indeed, to impressions received from the American press not only, but also very ready to believe that these impressions proceed from the views and objects of our government itself. Such conclusions, it must be said, are not unnatural, be-

VILLA SPLITS BAND AND THUS OUTWITS PURSUING FORCES

AMERICAN TROOPERS ON HEELS OF FUGITIVE

Villa Is Headed for a Section of Mexico Where He Can Defy Pursuit—No News Comes From General Pershing's Column.

El Paso, Texas, March 25.—Francisco Villa has outwitted his pursuers by splitting his forces, leaving one body to hold in check the Carranza forces in the neighborhood of Namiquipa, while he himself, at the head of a picked force, is trying to break through the lines of his enemies south of Madera, according to information brought here today by Americans arriving from Pearson and Casas Grandes.

Close on Heels of Fugitive.

This information doubled the interest with which word is awaited from General Pershing that the American troops have closed with the Villa bandits. According to reports from usually reliable sources, coupled with what is officially known as to the progress of the punitive columns, American cavalry reached Madera yesterday and should be close on the heels of the fugitives today.

From Madera south as far as Tutuaca, a distance of about 30 miles, a mountain trail winds through the Sierra Madres.

At Tutuaca it bends sharply to the southeast until it is lost in the wild and barren country south of Minaca. This trail was known for years as "Pancho's road." It was popularly believed to have been broken by the bandit, and its intricacies are known to but few but him. No wagons can possibly pierce the desolate mountain region through which the road runs. Few Americans are known to have penetrated the district. Ben Harris, a veteran scout, who is now living here, declared today that if Villa succeeded in reaching Tutuaca, the task of finding him would be a hopeless one.

"Only Mexican ponies can take that road," he said, "and even they must be very lightly loaded. The trail skirts the edges of canyons 3,000 to 4,000 feet deep and winds over bleak mountain tops, where the cold and rare air makes living almost unbearable. I could defy 1,000 soldiers to catch me in that country, and Villa knows every nook and cranny of it."

Agreement With Carranza.

Apart from the keen anticipation of news that the American soldiers were within reach of their prey, the border was mostly interested today in the report from Washington that an agreement had been reached in substance between the first chief and Washington which would permit General Funston to use the Mexican railroads.

At Fort Bliss activity was redoubled to perfect arrangements for the moving of supplies and equipment to Juarez, where they will be sent south on the Mexico Northwestern railroad.

Officers in the quartermaster's department declared today that they could start a tide of supplies of all sorts to General Pershing's base at Casas Grandes within 24 hours after word

ATTACKS ON SHIPS WILL CAUSE ACTION BY UNITED STATES

Sinking of the Englishman and Explosion on the Sussex Likely to Result in Complications With Germany.

SHIPS WERE TORPEDOED, U. S. CONSULS REPORT

State Department Will Not Act Until All the Facts Have Been Ascertained. Reports So Far Not Considered Conclusive.

Washington, March 25.—The channel steamer Sussex, damaged yesterday in the English channel, and the British steamship Englishman, destroyed by an explosion, both carrying American citizens, were torpedoed, according to consular reports received by the state department today. Flat statements that torpedoes were responsible were made in both cases, but the consuls did not give the source of their information.

Twenty-five Americans were on the Sussex. Whether any of them lost their lives or were injured was not established by the official reports; though news dispatches indicated that Americans might have been lost. Four Americans employed as horse handlers were aboard the Englishman. None was among the rescued landed at a British port.

Coming at a time when the state department was awaiting the result of an investigation of the sinking of the Dutch liner Tubantia and considering affidavits regarding the alleged submarine attack upon the French ship Patricia, the destruction of the Englishman and the damaging of the Sussex raised again the possibility of complications between the United States and the central European powers.

Ambassador Sharp's Report.

The most important dispatch regarding the Sussex came from Ambassador Sharp, at Paris. He reported that the American consular agent at Dieppe, Walter P. S. Palmer-Samborne, had informed him that the Sussex was torpedoed about six miles off the French coast while carrying 386 passengers and a crew of 55, and that sixty or eighty passengers had been wounded or killed. Ambassador Sharp quoted Samuel Bemis, an American, as saying that he had seen several persons killed in the explosion.

Ambassador Page, at London, reported that the British government had informed him of the disaster and supplied the names of the twenty-five American passengers.

Before the dispatch from Ambassador Sharp was received instructions to forward immediately all available details of the Englishman and Sussex disasters were sent to consular and diplomatic representatives in England and France.

First information regarding the Americans aboard the Englishman was received in a dispatch from Consul Armstrong at Bristol. The fact that the Englishman had carried horses to St. Nazaire, France, before starting on her return trip, during which she was destroyed, does not alter the case in the opinion of officials. The state department considers that the transportation of horses does not give a ship the character of a government auxiliary.

Source of Much Concern.

The numerous recent occasions in which ships carrying American citizens have met with disaster or have been the objects of alleged attacks have been a source of much concern in high administration circles, but the state department is considering the case with an open mind and will not determine upon a course until all possible information has been secured. The possibility that mines might have been responsible has not been excluded from consideration. In case it is not definitely established just what destroyed the Englishman and damaged the Sussex, the state department probably will make inquiries of Germany as to whether its submarines were concerned.

Secretary Lansing made it clear tonight that reports so far received could not be considered conclusive.

It is possible all the cases of unexplained shipping disasters now under consideration may be incorporated in a single general note of inquiry, on the theory that the evidence is cumulative.

The state department now has ready for transmission to the Austrian government another note regarding the attack by an Austrian submarine on the American tank steamer Petrolite. It reiterates the demands for indemnity and punishmnt of the submarine commander. It probably will be dispatched Monday.

Both Routes Are Adopted By Highway Directors At Meeting in Macon

After Selecting the Eastern Route Via Savannah, Commissioners Also Create a Central Route Via Fitzgerald and Waycross.

DECISION APPROVED BY RIVAL BOOSTERS

Vote in Favor of Creating Central Route Unanimous. Dixie Highway Now Has Three Routes Through South Georgia.

By Ned McIntosh.

Macon, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—Directors of the Dixie Highway association, in their meeting here this morning, after selecting the route by way of Milledgeville, Louisville, Savannah and Brunswick as the eastern route, also created a central route by way of Fitzgerald and Waycross.

The vote of the thirteen highway commissioners was as follows: Nine for the Old Capitol or Savannah route, two for the Waycross or short route and two not voting.

After this vote was taken, however, it was decided, in recognition of the good roads and the splendid work done on the Waycross route and because of the distance between this route and both the eastern and the western routes, that the Waycross route should be officially designated the central route to have equal dignity with the other two routes. The vote on this proposition was unanimous.

Both Routes Inspected.

The directors yesterday afternoon completed a tour of two proposed eastern routes, one being from Macon via Fitzgerald and Waycross to Jacksonville, and the other being from Macon via Milledgeville, Louisville, Savannah and Brunswick to Jacksonville. The tour was for the purpose of inspecting both routes and selecting one of the two for the eastern route.

Leaving Macon, over the Savannah, or Old Capitol, route, which has been designated as the official eastern route, the principal points are:

Milledgeville, Sandersville, Louisville, Waynesboro, Sylvania, Springfield, Savannah, Darien, Brunswick and Jacksonville.

New recruits are daily being enlisted at the office of the local marine station. During the last week many applicants have been enrolled in the lists of the sea fighters, or "sea soldiers," as they are more generally termed. Seven accepted applicants were sent out of the city Saturday by the local office to begin training at Norfolk, Va.

One of those accepted during the past week was Mayrant Deas Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Richardson, of 375 Piedmont avenue. Mr. Richardson has been an employee of the Southern Express company for 40 years, and is very well known in the city.

His son is just sixteen years old and for that reason his mother had to accompany him to the recruiting office. He was signed on as a musician's apprentice.

The family is a prominent one in South Carolina, being connected with the Richardson and Manning families of that state, for many years well-known and highly respected members of the commonwealth.

In making out the application for Mr. Richardson the recruiting officer brought forth an interesting bit of family history.

He is a direct descendant of Lieutenant John Mayrant, famed as being the man who pulled down the British flag from the masthead of the captured Serapis when she was taken by the Bon Homme Richard, commanded by that peerless sea fighter, Commodore John Paul Jones.

The story goes that Commodore Jones asked Lieutenant Mayrant if he did not want a letter of thanks from congress for his act of bravery. The lieutenant is quoted as having replied that he did not care for such a letter but would not mind if his sister Phoebe was told about it by the government.

ALLEGED MURDERER RELEASED BY FRIENDS

Lexington, Ky., March 25.—According to word received here today from Manchester, Ky., a band of armed confederates surrounded the jail and kept the guards at bay while John D. Pace, under indictment in the Clay circuit court on the charge of killing his father and stepmother, sawed his way through his cell bars and escaped. Pace was formerly a United States soldier.

A posse is pursuing him and his armed companions, who are thought to be in the wildest part of the mountains in Owsley county.

Committees Are Already Busy in Alabama and Mississippi, and Additional Workers Will Soon Be Appointed.

Although Atlanta has more than made good on the pledge of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce almost two years ago to add half a million of dollars to the endowment fund of Emory university, the real work toward the objective of the greatest educational institution in the south, and one of the greatest in America, has but just begun, judging from the sentiments expressed by and the wholehearted enthusiasm of Bishop Warren Akin Candler, chancellor of the university, and its guiding spirit.

Not a moment will be wasted, said the bishop yesterday, not only in the matter of applying to actual use the money already raised, but in adding to the fund; in fact, he says, money is coming in constantly from out of the city and entirely independent of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's campaign.

Work will be rushed on the four buildings now under construction, and others will be begun and erected with all possible speed consistent with the means as they shall be provided, and in keeping with thoroughness and excellence. Bishop Candler is a stickler for quality. Repeatedly he has said that nothing shoddy shall find place in the university, neither in buildings, equipment nor faculty personnel.

Proud of Atlanta.

Saturday he said he was the happiest and proudest man in Georgia—and he looked it. This is what he said about the campaign just closed, about Emory and the university's future:

"I wish you would express for me to the people of Atlanta how deeply I personally appreciate the devotion of Atlanta to this cause, as it was so forcefully manifested last night, and in the more than gratifying response to the call for financial aid. It has been a wonderful work to a wonderful end by a wonderful people, and its triumphant termination—so far as that immediate phase of it goes—was the most wonderful thing of all.

"I want to express my appreciation especially to the Rev. A. M. Hughlett, to Victor H. Kriegshaber, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; to Mell R. Wilkinson, former president of the chamber; to Preston Arkwright, the manager of the chamber of commerce's campaign; to Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and to the other captains and workers who made such a glorious success as we have achieved possible.

"Then, there are many good people who not yet have given, but who have expressed a purpose to give to the

HEAVY DEATH LIST CAUSED BY ATTACK ON STEAMER ESSEX

French Admiralty Officially States That the Channel Liner Was Torpedoed and Americans Who Were on Board Corroborate Statement.

SOME AMERICANS LOST, BUT THE EXACT NUMBER HASN'T BEEN LEARNED

Americans Were Also Injured by the Explosion Which Shattered the Passenger Liner—Most of the Passengers Killed Were French Women--No Warning Was Given by the Submarine—Four Americans Perished When Steamer Englishman Was Torpedoed.

The cross-channel steamer Sussex, damaged by an exterior explosion Friday afternoon while twenty-five Americans were on board, was torpedoed, according to a report received by the state department at Washington from the American consul at Dieppe through Ambassador Sharp, at Paris. The report gives from sixty to eighty persons wounded or killed.

Only two of the Americans had been reported up to a late hour Saturday to the American embassy in London as saved. Unofficially, however, several others have been reported rescued.

At least two Americans are known to have been injured and one of the survivors declares Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, an American, lost her life, while another passenger is reported missing.

Cable dispatches say the loss of life on the Sussex may reach fifty.

A definite statement that the Sussex was torpedoed comes in a Paris dispatch quoting Samuel F. Bemis, of Medford, Mass., as declaring that he saw unmistakably the wake of the torpedo as it came toward the steamer.

AMERICAN LIVES LOST IN DISASTER.

Paris, March 25.—Scarcely any doubt exists at the American embassy tonight that some American lives have been lost in the disaster to the steamer Sussex.

American Ambassador Sharp sent Naval Lieutenant Bernard L. Smith by automobile to Boulogne this afternoon to investigate the cause of the disaster and assist any Americans who may need help.

The depositions of some of the American survivors who have arrived at Paris are being taken by the embassy; they will be forwarded to the state department at Washington.

From thirty to fifty persons, according to the estimates here, out of 380 passengers and the crew of 56, were lost. The weight of testimony is that the Sussex was torpedoed by a submarine without warning.

Most of Victims Women.

Most of the passengers killed were French women. Some twenty, it is said, were killed by the explosion which wrecked the vessel.

A number of persons, mostly women, are said to have jumped overboard. Some were drowned and others with life preservers were picked up after considerable delay, in a few cases as much as four hours later. Many of the passengers were taken off by a British torpedo boat which stood by the damaged passenger ship.

The Sussex, notwithstanding the hole in her bow, was able to make port at Boulogne. About fifty passengers arrived at the Gare du Nord at Paris at 12:15 this afternoon. Many of them wore bandages.

Two Americans are supposed to have been killed, but nothing so far has been learned here as to their identity. One American at the station who would not give his name, said he had seen a torpedo coming toward the Sussex. He added:

"There was no warning from the submarine. The Sussex, after being struck, sent up distress signals. In ten minutes ten British torpedo boats had responded to the signals and were steaming quickly to aid us.

Samuel F. Bemis, of Medford, Mass., a passenger on the Sussex, said today that he saw, plainly and unmistakably, the wake of a torpedo coming toward the steamer.

The ministry of marine, in an official statement issued tonight, declares that the Sussex was torpedoed, and estimates the number of victims at about 50.

French Admiralty Statement.

The text of the communication reads:

"The British steamer Sussex, which carried about 380 passengers, was torpedoed in the channel on the 24th by an enemy submarine.

"The captain observed a torpedo about 100 meters from the side and immediately maneuvered to avoid it, but the vessel was struck in the forward part, which was destroyed.

"The vessel, however, remained afloat. The fall of the mast destroyed part of the antennae of the wireless; moreover, when an aerial wire was improvised, the operator, by an error, reported an incorrect position, which misled the torpedo boats and patrol boats, and as a result retarded the arrival of help.

"The patrol boat Marie Therese, nevertheless, managed to find the distressed vessel and brought back to Boulogne a majority of the passengers. Others were taken to England by British torpedo boat destroyers, which had arrived at the scene of the disaster at about the same time as the Marie Therese.

"The Sussex was towed to Boulogne by a steamer from that port, and now is there in security.

"Unhappily, the explosion and the beginning of a panic among the passengers resulted in some victims. The exact number at this hour is not known, but it is estimated to be about fifty."

LIST OF AMERICANS ON ILL-FATED SHIP.

London, March 25.—A corrected list of American passengers aboard the Sussex, compiled from the records at the American consulate in London, follows:

Gertrude W. Warren, of St. Louis, Mo.
J. Mark Baldwin, Elizabeth F. Baldwin and Helen G. Baldwin, of Baltimore.
Alice Ruiz, of Lyon, Colo.

Miss Alice Ruiz, of Colorado, and Wilder G. Penfield, of Merton college, Oxford, are other Americans who were saved.

Professor Baldwin's wife and daughter arrived in England on the steamship New York.

The Charles T. Crocker mentioned in the list of Americans is Charles Thomas Crocker, of New York, and San Francisco. Mrs. Hilton is a daughter-in-law of a United States judge. Mr. Sargent is a Harvard man and Mr. Tulderson is a Princeton man.

The foregoing Americans as well as Mr. Marshall and Mr. Penfield are known to be safe.

Edward Huxley, president of the United States Rubber Export company, and Francis E. Drake, European manager of the company, are among the Americans rescued from the Sussex. They report that there was a heavy loss of life, including probably several Americans.

MISS BALDWIN REPORTED DEAD.

Dover, March 25.—Charles Crocker, an American who was on the Sussex, said today that Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, an American resident of Paris, was killed by the explosion which partly wrecked the steamship.

Mr Crocker said that his cousin, D. H. Crocker, and Miss Baldwin were leaning over the rail when the vessel was struck. Miss Baldwin was killed and D. H. Crocker badly injured and made unconscious, Mr Crocker stated.

Asked whether he thought the ship was torpedoed, Mr. Crocker replied:

"I couldn't say personally, but I heard the captain of the Sussex say he saw a torpedo coming, and that he shut down one engine which resulted in the vessel being hit in the bow instead of amidships. Members of the crew also said that the vessel was torpedoed."

Four American survivors of the Sussex have arrived here. They are G. H. Crocker, Charles T. Crocker, Edward Marshall and Wilder G. Penfield. G. H. Crocker and Mr. Penfield are in a hospital with fractured skulls. Charles Crocker and Mr. Marshall are uninjured.

Report received here say that Mrs. Hilton, Daniel Sargent and T. W. Culbertson were seen aboard a French trawler. It is feared, according to the same reports, that Miss Hilton was drowned when a life boat capsized.

As to the cause of the disaster, Mr. Marshall, a newspaper correspondent, said:

HUXLEY'S STORY OF THE TRAGEDY.

London, March 25.—Edward Huxley, who witnessed the catastrophe, states that several passengers and a number of the crew undoubtedly were blown to atoms by the explosion.

Mr. Huxley told the Associated Press a remarkable story of the manner in which the forward part of the Sussex was torn off at the captain's bridge. The remainder of the vessel was so little damaged that even the electric lights continued to burn.

Mr. Huxley described the scene after the explosion as horrible. He could give no estimate of the number killed, further than to say that many lives were lost. He would venture no opinion whether the disaster was caused by a mine or torpedo.

"We left Folkestone at 1:30 p. m.," said Mr. Huxley. "The sea was smooth, the sun was shining and the steamer made good time.

"I was standing on deck just aft the captain's bridge, chatting with Mr. Drake. I had just looked at my watch and noticed that it was 3:05 p. m., when suddenly there was a muffled explosion. The whole foward part of the ship seemed to rise in the air and was torn away completely from the rest of the steamer. The Sussex had been cut in two at the bridge as cleanly as though it had been done with a knife.

There Was Pandemonium.

"For a short time there was pandemonium. Shrieks of women mingled with cries of the wounded. Some fifteen or twenty persons were drowned by jumping overboard.

"It soon became apparent that the latter part of the ship which was maintained at even keel and holding steady, was in no immediate danger of sinking and the panic virtually ceased. Passengers then set about giving first aid to the injured and helping to get the boats lowered. A number of injured persons were buried in the debris near the bridge.

"Seven persons, all terribly injured, were dug out of the wreckage and several badly mangled bodies were found. Undoubtedly other bodies were torn to pieces. I will not dwell on this scene. Suffice it to say that it was the most awful thing I ever witnessed.

"There must have been passengers in the forward part of the ship, which was blown away," Mr. Huxley continued, "and I believe a large number of the crew were below in this section, as few of them were seen. All those on the forward part of the ship undoubtedly perished.

"As soon as possible boats were lowered, passengers assisting. Five boats were put over. The first three had about 30 or 40 persons in each, there being about an equal number of men and women. The fourth boat turned over and about 12 persons clambered on top. We threw over chairs, rafts and everything which would float to assist them, but only about four of them were rescued, so far as I know. The fifth boat had only four or five people aboard and appeared to be waterlogged. These boats stayed near the ship and at the end of an hour the captain called them back and the people were taken on board again.

"It was 11:20 p. m. before we were able to get help. At that time a French trawler came alongside and took off all but three of the women and about half the men. At about the same time a British torpedo boat came alongside. Her commander came on board and took charge of affairs.

Aiding the Wounded.

"The passengers did everything possible for the wounded. The American woman doctor did fine work and Mr. Penfield, although suffering from a badly shattered leg, directed the first aid for others. His heroism was magnificent. He now is among the injured in the Dover hospital.

"Miss Baldwin was standing near the bridge with Penfield and a young American who was on his way to join the Red Cross when the explosion occurred. Both she and Penfield miraculously escaped death, but their companion, whose name I do not know, has not been seen since the disaster, so far as I have learned.

"It is remarkable, I think, that the electric light plant was not put out of commission, and that there was steam up on the vessel all the time. The engines working the propellers, however, were out of commission. That the afterpart of the Sussex did not fill probably was due to the fact that mail bags were piled against the bulkheads.

"There were six life-boats on the Sussex. Only two of these were swung out, ready to lower, at the time of the accident.

"As to the cause of the explosion, I would not venture an opinion. As we were leaving Folkestone, we passed a transport at her pier. If a submarine was responsible for the damage to the Sussex it is possible the undersea craft mistook us for this transport. If we struck a mine, we must have hit it full on the prow of the Sussex."

Speaking of the damage to the Sussex, Mr. Huxley said the dining saloon was demolished.

The admiralty states that 250 survivors have been landed in France and between 90 and 100 at Dover. As there were 386 passengers and about 50 men in the crew, 75 or more persons are still missing.

Many Leaped Overboard.

Good discipline was maintained, although there was some scrambling for the boats.

The second boat lowered, containing forty persons, was overturned. Passengers state that 30 in this boat were drowned.

Many passengers jumped overboard. Gratings and pieces of furniture were thrown to them. More than half of these are believed to have lost their lives.

The foremasts and wireless apparatus were blown away. The wireless operator attempted unsuccessfully to rig a substitute. Persons who embarked in the boats returned to the Sussex before dark. Rockets were fired and about midnight a trawler came to the rescue. It took as many as it could carry to Boulogne.

A British destroyer came up and took on the other passengers, conveying them to Dover. Five bodies were left aboard.

Francis Drake said:

"The behavior of all the women on board was simply splendid."

Mr. Baldwin and his wife and daughter were taken to Boulogne. Mr. Huxley and Mr. Drake were brought to Dover. Mr. Penfield was bound for France to join the hospital staff of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, of New York. Mrs. Ruiz was on her way to Bombay to join her husband.

The chief engineer of the Sussex was killed by the explosion and the purser was wounded seriously.

The explosion occurred at about 2 p. m., when the Sussex was an hour and a half out of Folkestone. The wireless apparatus was destroyed and no help arrived until nearly midnight. Had it not been for the watertight compartments the Sussex would have sunk and the loss of life would have been heavier.

TORPEDO SEEN BY CAPTAIN.

London, March 25.—The United States embassy has forwarded to the state dpartment affidavits from Edward H. Huxley and Francis E. Drake, concerning their experiences on the Sussex. Neither Mr. Drake nor Mr. Huxley saw any sign of a torpedo, but they declared the captain of the vessel told a number of survivors that he saw a torpedo coming toward his vessel.

AMERICANS LOST ON ENGLISHMAN.

Washington, March 25.—Consular reports to the state department today say the Dominion line steamer Englishman sunk near the British Isles was torpedoed and that four Americans are missing. The Englishman was a horse ship.

The missing Americans are Peter McDonald, a horse foreman, of 58 Cherry street, Boston; George McDonald, a trimmer, of 37 Common street, Lawrence, Mass.; P. Buckley and M. A. Burke, addresses unknown.

SALYBIA SUNK BY SUBMARINE.

London, March 25.—Lloyd's report says the British steamship Salybia has been sunk and that the passengers and crew were saved.

The Salybia, of 3,352 gross tons, 342 feet long and 46 feet beam, was built in 1904 at South Shields, and was owned by Scruton Sons & Co., of London. The vessel is reported as having left Barbados on March 3 for London.

RECORDER WILL PROBE FIGHT ON STREET CAR

J. L. Johnson, aged 22, of 99 West Baker street, an employee of Folsom's restaurant, was arrested early Saturday night by Supernumerary Goode, following a difficulty with the conductor of a Walker to West View street car, in which the railway employee is said to have struck Johnson over the head with a billie.

According to the story as told at police headquarters by Johnson he was trying to take a friend home. The latter was intoxicated, according to Johnson's statement. "I was trying to make the boy behave himself, and not disturb any of the passengers on the car," stated Johnson. "The conductor must have thought I was trying to fight because he came up to where we were sitting. Without any preliminaries, he struck me with his billie and then had me arrested."

Johnson put up cash collateral at police headquarters for his appearance in police matinee Monday afternoon, to answer to charges of disorderly conduct.

The report of the Georgia Railway and Power company was to the effect that the conductor, N. G. Anderson, was standing on the rear of the street car, when a passenger came back to him telling him that there were two men fighting and cursing up toward the front of the car.

Anderson went into the car, the report states, and the two men then attempted to argue with him. Johnson putting his hand to his hip pocket. At that time Anderson hit him.

The report further stated that the conductor turned Johnson over to the policeman at West View, the other man having left the car before that place was reached.

MUCH LARGER FUND NEEDED BY AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., March 25.—The welfare committee, assigned to the task of providing for the homeless and needy families of Augusta, caused by the devastating fire Wednesday night, issued a signed statement tonight to the effect that 526 homes were destroyed by the fire.

In tonight's statement the committee says that at first it was believed that $50,000 would be sufficient to care for the homeless, but after a thorough investigation a much larger sum will be needed, and concludes with the statement:

"We rest in the confidence we have in our people and send you this simple statement of facts which carry with them their own eloquent appeal."

It is estimated that between 3,000 and 3,500 individuals are now being cared for by relatives and friends.

An unconfirmed report from what is believed to be a reliable source tonight states that the national board of fire underwriters of New York will arrive in Augusta Monday to adjust the claims arising from the heavy losses in the fire Wednesday night.

It is also stated that members of the borad will remain in Augusta sixty days if necessary to facilitate the settlement of claims.

The business of the city has practically reached a normal state today after the disastrous fire last Wednesday night. The work of rebuilding the business section devastated will begin as soon as the debris can be cleared away. Some business establishments plan to begin rebuilding within a few days.

The area between Broad street and the Savannah river, east of Fifth street, is to be converted into a manufacturing center, it is said. The residence section on lower Broad and Greene streets, it is understood, will be rebuilt.

The relief fund is growing rapidly, $30,000 to $35,000 having already been subscribed, and it is announced the city is fully prepared to care for all those in distress.

The Augusta Bar association announced today that the meeting scheduled for tonight had been cancelled. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, who was to be honor guest, was notified not to come.

The Spring Festival association has announced the postponement of the festival which was to be held early in April until the second week in May.

FAMOUS RECIPE OF PRESIDENT'S WEDDING CAKE

Through the courtesy of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., we are enabled to pass along the recipe used by Mrs. Marian Cole Fisher and Miss Pansy Bowen in the preparation of the famous Wilson-Galt Wedding Cake, which has attracted so much attention throughout the country through the Movie News Weeklies.

Materials Used in the Cake—Nine cups flour, sifted; four cups sugar, granulated; 2 and one-fourth cups butter, uncolored, unsalted; three cups milk, skimmed; one-half teaspoon each violet and vanilla extract; one teaspoon rose water; three drops lemon extract; fifteen egg whites; nine level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder. Quantities above are two and one-half times amount required for usual family size.

Preparation—Assemble all materials before beginning the mixing. Prepare heart-shaped pan eighteen inches in diameter by placing nots paper on the bottom to just reach the sides. Grease the sides one inch up and any portion of the bottoms not covered by the paper. Do not grease the paper. Sift the flour once before measuring. Measure into the sifter, add the baking powder and sift five times. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and cream until white and fluffy. Whip the egg whites with a large egg whip until the dish can be inverted. Whip the egg whites lightly into creamed butter and sugar. Pour in the milk, sift in the flour, and beat until perfectly smooth. Add the flavoring. Place in a warm oven, temperature about 220 Fahr. Bake at low point of heat, and allow to rise as high as it will before browning over the top. Time for this large cake was two hours.

Meringue Icing—Materials for syrup: Four and one-half cups granulated sugar, one and one-half cups water. Materials for meringue: Six egg whites, six tablespoons granulated sugar, one and one-half teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder. Materials for finish: Three egg whites, six drops rose water. Quantities above are two and one-half times amount required for usual family size.

Preparation—Make syrup that will crack when dropped in ice water. Whip the six egg whites until stiff. Add the six tablespoons sugar and whip. Then whip in the baking powder. Whip in the syrup until all taken up and it will hold its shape when lifted up on the egg whip. Then whip in the three extra unbeaten egg whites and rose water. If weather is damp it may be well for the amateur to add first about one-half of the egg white, whipping up lightly, later adding balance. —(adv.)

PRETTY BABY GIRL FOUND ON STREET SATURDAY EVENING

A pretty blue-eyed baby girl, apparently about 6 or 8 weeks old, was found crying under J. G. Morris residence, at 12 Oxford street, early last night, by S. A. Northcutt, of 6 Guyton street.

Call Officers Wood and Preston, with Captain L. S. Dobbs, went to the Oxford street residence and took the child to Grady hospital, from where it was transferred to the Home for the Friendless.

Seate Health Board Preparing to Care For "Dope" Addicts

Officials of the State Board of Health are preparing to take care of the drug addicts who will be turned adrift by the city on April 1.

The board will handle these cases through institutions in each congressional district of the state. There will be about fifteen institutions, outside of Atlanta, which will be called on to make provision for the drug users.

A. O. Blalock, collector of internal revenue, said Saturday that if the plan proposed is carried out successfully it would relieve him from a considerable amount of worry over the situation. The government, he states, is not prepared to take over this treatment.

Some of the cities, having hospitals which will treat dope patients, and which will be asked to do their part in the work, are the following: Savannah, Ivwo; Thomasville, Waycross, Clifton, Columbus, Rome, Douglas, Augusta, Plains, Franklin Springs and Cordele.

The plan is to have the drug users placed in these institutions as soon as the city ceases their treatment and the issuance of prescriptions.

He's a Real Duke, Declares Bonanno In a Formal Card

Duke Raoul S. Bonanno has just about arrived at the conclusion that the hoodoo that has befallen him of late is due to the black cat that jumps across his family coat of arms.

Some newspapers in this part of the country have made matters rather embarrassing for the duke, saying that he isn't any such thing, and that his title is bogus.

He says it is an outrage, and, in corroboration of his claim to the dukedom of Miselmeri he has issued a statement in substantiation of his claim.

In it he even describes his family coat of arms, "consisting of a prince crown adorned by mantle of ermine and gold, with the figure of a black cat passing by."

More About the Black Cat.

The black cat symbolizes, according to the duke's statement, the needlessness of sun or moon to the Bonanno family. The Latin inscription beneath the coat of arms reads:

"Neque sol per diem, neque luna per noctem."

Translated, it is:

"Neither sun by day or moon by night."

The black cat requires no sun or moon to guide him in his neighborhood prowlings. Midnight and high noon are the same to him.

But this does not mean that the Bonanno family is a roaming set. Duke Bonanno interprets it thusly in his statement:

"Meaning that the Bonanno family needs no sun by day or moon by night, for it shines in its own brilliance."

Duke Bonanno used to sing in Stringer's moving picture theater in Gainesville. He also sang "illuminated" songs. They used to call them illustrated. Clint Stringer, however, a man with advanced managerial ideas, calls them "illuminated" songs.

"This is one of my family," Bonanno explains for the benefit of those who either do not know or doubt, "is Bonanno di Cattolica, and its position in Italian nobility has been recognized since 1285.

"My grandfather was the holder of eighteen titles, of which 'Prince of Cattolica' was the highest, and 'Duke of Miselmeri' the second in eminence.

Titles Galore.

"Some of the other titles which he held were Duke of Montalbano, Duke of Forests, Marquis of Limins, Count of Vicari, Baron of Siculiana."

All titles, he says, were transmitted to heirs in accord with the old Sicilian law. He happened to draw the "second in eminence."

"My grandfather had two sons and four daughters, the oldest of which was my mother. Upon father's death the oldest son, Salvatore, became holder of the titles, and his brother, Natonio, became the direct heir, taking the second highest title in the list, that of Duke of Miselmeri."

Salvatore died in 1898 and his brother, Antonio, Duke Bonanno's uncle, got all the titles. The king, he says, recognized them. The records of the decree, according to the duke, will be found in the archives of the Consulta Araldica of the Italian kingdom.

"My mother died in 1897, and I, as the only son, inherited her title and am the only direct heir to my uncle's titles in case he should die before me, with the present right to the title of Duke of Miselmeri."

The duke further adds:

"The whole thing is simplicity itself for a European, but it has been my experience that unless I would make a history of the titles and the laws governing them, my intimate American friends would fail to understand."

CHICAGO DELEGATION OF REALTY MEN ARRIVES

Visitors Were Four Hours Late and Elaborate Entertainment Program Was Abandoned.

Behind schedule four hours and fifty minutes, the "Real Estate special," bearing Chicago's delegation of real estate men en route to attend the National Real Estate association's convention in New Orleans, March 28-April 1, came rolling into the old Union station over the N., C. & St. L. railway's tracks at 11:20 last night.

At 6:30, when the train was due, fifteen automobiles, provided by the Atlanta Real Estate Men's association, were at the station, preparatory to showing the party Atlanta, and practically everything good contained therein; but when the train finally arrived it was met by only a small contingent, and, as the party left the city over the Seaboard Air Line at 1:30 a. m. this morning, there was little time for the doing of honors, or for the "doing" of Atlanta.

Many of the visitors were asleep in their berths, and probably will not know until this morning that they have been in this city at all.

The wakeful ones, however, were taken uptown for their brief stay here and spent the interval pleasantly in the cafes. From here the special will go direct to Birmingham, Ala., where more delegates will be picked up. Here the party was added to by the Atlanta delegation and those from Florida and South Carolina.

Nobody seemed to know just how to account for the shattering of the train schedule, except that there was some sort of trouble with a derailed freight somewhere between here and Chattanooga.

Edward S. Judd, ex-president national association; Mrs. Edward S. Judd, Miss Clarice S. Judd, Mr. and Mrs. E. Orrin Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Kenning, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Soldier of Fortune Enlists in Atlanta For Shot at Villa Served in Mexico Under Madero, and in Honduras Under Boneilla, and Now Seeks More Adventure.

Tanned, brown as berry, and with the appearance of a man used to roughing it, Courtney B. Bowyer presented himself at the Atlanta army recruiting headquarters last week and said he wanted to enlist in the cavalry.

"Where's your home?" Lieutenant G. V. Heidt, in charge, asked him.

"The world," was the laconic reply, but Bowyer said Abilene, Texas, is the place he last called home.

He looked determined, competent and bore all the earmarks of the making of a good soldier, and his application was accepted, and Bowyer, with a bunch of recruits admitted earlier in the day, was sent to Columbus Barracks, Ohio, to be sworn in.

Lieutenant Heidt took a keen interest in the recruit from the first, and drew from him a tale of adventures and exploits in the saddle that borders on the romantic. It seems that Bowyer, now 31 years old, for years was a Texas cowboy. Then the wanderlust seized him and he went to Mexico and enlisted in the army of Madero, fighting from the saddle. He was with Madero's forces until the tragic death of that leader, following his becoming president of Mexico, and then he went to Honduras. There he got embroiled in one of the revolutions for which that little republic is noted, and fought under the leadership of the notorious Boneilla. From Honduras Bowyer returned to the United States, and has been "just drifting," as he calls it, ever since.

He was hunting a job here when a desire to get back into the war game in Mexico seized him.

He asked Lieutenant Heidt where he probably would be sent—this without expressing any preference.

"I can't promise," said the lieutenant, "but you know where the cavalry is now, don't you?"

"You bet I do," was the reply, "and if I can only get one pot shot at Villa, that's all I want."

HIT BY FALLING FLOWER JARDINIERE, LITTLE GIRL DIES

Playing under the front porch railing of her residence, 899 Gordon street, Virginia Josephine Babb, 3-old daughter of Mrs. James E. Babb, was struck and almost instantly killed, when a flower pot fell on the top of her head fracturing her skull, early Saturday morning.

The little girl and her seven-year-old sister, Ruth, were chasing each other in front of the porch when in some manner the flower pot toppled and fell, a distance of six feet.

The screams of the child brought mother and grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Butler, to the scene. They picked her up and carried her into the house unconscious. She died with a few minutes, never regaining consciousness.

Virginia is survived by her mother, two sisters, Ruth and Margaret, and three brothers, Elbert, Frank and J. E. Babb. Her father, formerly a prominent Atlanta insurance man, died several weeks ago.

The funeral will take place at the residence Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. L. Wilkie Collins officiating. Interment will follow in West View cemetery.

JUDGE FITE ENJOINS ANOTHER COURTHOUSE

Walker Co. Commission Temporarily Restrained From Building at Lafayette.

Ringgold, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) Judge A. W. Fite took action in another courthouse wrangle here today when he granted a temporary injunction restraining the commissioners of Walker county from building the proposed new courthouse at Lafayette.

Petitioners who are seeking to stop the erection of the building brought their case before Judge Fite from the Rome circuit, contending that one of the attorneys for the Walker county commissioners is Robert Wright, a brother of Judge Moses Wright, in whose circuit the controversy has arisen. Judge Fite held that Judge Wright was disqualified, his brother having accepted a contingent fee in the case, and set the hearing for permanent injunction for May 1 at Cartersville.

Judge Fite has a courthouse case on his hands in his own circuit, the Murray county trouble being still undecided.

PERUNA in Your Home

A housewife must give the first aid in colds, coughs and other ailments. Her promptness in applying the remedy often saves a serious illness. Her experience with remedies has led her to know that PERUNA is always reliable, that she should have it on hand for the immediate treatment of coughs and colds, and that it is always to her

Mrs. George Parker, 410 Water St., Menasha, Wis., writes: "We have used Peruna in our family for a number of years, and have found it a perfectly reliable medicine. It soon rids the system of any traces of a cold, and prevents serious consequences.

"I began using it for catarrh, which I suffered with a good many years, but had not been very serious until recently. Since I have taken Peruna the dropping in my throat has discontinued, and my head and nose are not so stopped up in the morning. I am pleased with the results, and shall continue to use it until I am entirely rid of catarrh. "I heartily recommend it to an honest medicine." What it does for her it is ready to do for you.

GERMAN RAIDER SENT TO BOTTOM

The Disguised Greif Destroyed in North Sea by the British Ship Alcantara, Which Was Also Sunk.

London, March 25.—A German raider has been sunk in the North sea. Five German officers and 115 men out of a total of 300 were captured. The British lost 74 men.

The British armed merchantman Alcantara, which sank the German raider, the Greif, was herself sunk.

The fight occurred in the North sea on February 29. The Greif was sunk by gunfire and the Alcantara by a torpedo. The British losses were made up of five officers and 69 men.

The Alcantara was a large liner belonging to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company of Belfast. She had been in the service of the British government for some time. Her gross tonnage was 15,000. She was 570 feet long and was built in Glasgow in 1913.

The Official Account.

The following official statement was issued:

"An engagement occurred February 29 in the North sea between the armed German raider, Greif, disguished as a Norwegian merchant vessel, and the British armed merchant cruiser Alcantara, Captain T. E. Wardle. It resulted in the loss of both vessels, the German raider being sunk by gunfire and the Alcantara apparently by a torpedo.

"Five German officers and 115 men were picked up and taken prisoners out of the total complement, believed to have been over 300. The British losses amounted to five officers and 69 men.

"It should be noted that during the whole engagement the enemy fired over the Norwegian colors painted on the side of the ship.

"This news is now published as it is made clear by the receipt of a German wireless message that the enemy has learned that the Greif, a sister ship to the Moewe, had been destroyed before she succeeded in passing our line of patrols."

Ships Almost Side by Side.

Seeing herself in a tight hole, the Greif turned eastward, proceeding in a leisurely manner so as not to attract too much attention when she sailed by the Alcantara.

The two ships lay almost side by side while the captain of the British steamer inquired by megaphone for particulars of the strange vessel, which, according to the official report had the Norwegian colors painted on her sides, but which flew no flag. The inquiries from the Alcantara were answered in perfect Norwegian but the actions of the raider aroused the suspicion of the British auxiliary.

She was lowering a boat to send a searching party ahead when the German opened fire.

The action is described as one of the hottest of the war, recalling duels between evenly matched frigates in the days before the time of ironclads. According to the British account the German raider was put out of action by a few broadsides, and sank after twelve minutes.

She was followed to the bottom a few minutes later by her victorious adversary, which evidently fell a victim of a torpedo launched from the Greif's tube a moment before the raider disappeared.

The naval authorities state that the Greif was well equipped for raiding.

GERMAN STORY OF THE BATTLE.

Berlin, March 25.—(Via Amsterdam and London.)—The following statement on the engagament in the North Sea on February 29, in which the German auxiliary cruiser Greif was sunk, together with the British Alcantara, was issued today by the admiralty:

"The admiralty staff states that, according to news from various places which has been confirmed, an engagement occurred on February 29 in the northern part of the North Sea between the German auxiliary cruiser Greif and three British cruisers and one destroyer. In the course of the battle the Greif was sunk by a torpedo shot by a great British cruiser to some fifteen thousand tons, and finally blew herself up.

"About 150 men of the crew of the Greif, whose names are not yet known, now are prisoners of war to the British. They are cut off from all communication with the outer world by the British, who observed the strictest secrecy regarding events. Measures against this have been taken."

An Ideal Remedy for Nursing Mothers

Constipation is a condition that affects the old, young and middle-aged, and most people at one time or another need help in regulating the action of the bowels. Harsh cathartics and purgatives should not be employed to relieve constipation, as their effect is only temporary while they shock the system unnecessarily.

A remedy that can be used with perfect safety for the tiniest babe and that is equally effective for the strongest constitution is found in the combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. This is an ideal household remedy and should be in every family medicine chest.

Mrs. F. I. Barsolow, 18 Leslie St., Holyoke, Mass., wrote to Dr. Caldwell, "Syrup Pepsin certainly is fine. I gave it to my baby, Evelyn, and also took it myself. It is the only medicine I have been able to take without affecting Baby in the nursing. I have used it for all four children and it is fine; they like it and ask for it."

A trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be obtained, free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

VERDUN IS FIRED BY RAIN OF SHELLS FROM GERMAN GUNS

Berlin, However, Reports That There Has Been No Actual Change in the Verdun District.

RUSSIANS HAMMERING AT THE GERMAN LINES

According to Berlin, the Czar's Forces Have Made No Real Progress and Have Suffered Very Heavy Losses.

London, March 25.—There has been no renewal of the German infantry attacks on Verdun, but the artillery has been notably active, Paris reports. The German war office says Verdun was set on fire by German shells during the artillery exchanges.

On the Russian front the Germans' lines have been subjected to further heavy attacks, both to the northwest and to the south of Dvinsk. Berlin, however, declares that all the Russian attempts to advance were complete failures.

VERDUN BURNING, GERMANS REPORT.

Berlin, March 25.—(Via London.)—Verdun is in flames, according to today's official statement by German army headquarters.

The statement follows:

"Western theatre: There have been no actual changes in the situation since yesterday. In the Meuse district artillery duels were especially lively and in the course of these engagements Verdun was set on fire.

"Eastern theater: West of Jacobstadt the Russians again opened an attack after having brought forward fresh Siberian troops and after strong artillery preparation had been made. The attack broke down with heavy losses to the Russians.

"Minor enemy advances southwest of Jacobstadt and southwest of Dvinsk were easily repulsed. All the enemys' efforts, even those repeated during the night against our front north of Vidzy, were completely unsuccessful.

"Farther to the south, in the region of the Narcox lake, the enemy yesterday limited his activity to artillery bombardments.

"Balkan theater: During a renewed aeroplane attack one enemy machine was brought down after an aerial battle between the enemy lines and our positions. It was there destroyed by artillery.

ARTILLERY DUELS REPORTED BY PARIS.

"In Belgium we bombarded the enemy trenches to the east of Boesinghe and in the neighborhood of Het Sas.

"In the Argonne the artillery actions have been quite violent in the sectors of Four de Paris, Courtes, Chausses and Haute Chevauchee.

"Quite intense artillery activity has been displayed to the west of the Meuse against our second lines, to the east, in the region of Cote du Poivre and Douaumont, and in the Woevre in the sectors of the Meuse Hills. There was no infantry action during the course of the day.

"In the Argonne a surprise attack against the trenches of the enemy at Courtes Chaussees resulted in our taking some prisoners and inflicting losses on the enemy.

"The night passed quietly both to the west and east of the river Meuse.

GERMANS RETIRE BEFORE RUSSIANS.

Berlin, March 25.—(Via London.)—Military activity on the northern sector of the eastern battle front continues despite alternating rain and snow.

Russian drum fire was heavy during the night of March 20 between the Narocz and Wiszniew lakes, and it was particularly heavy just southward of Narocz lake where the German line ran from Blisniki to Mokrzyza, and thence westward. The Russians directed their main attack against this small salient with a harassing concentric fire and the Germans drew back to their second line to avoid unnecessary losses. The Russians who came forward in heavy attacking columns were sanguinarily repulsed and the Germans followed them to Blisniki and then retired. The Russians did not follow.

The Russians captured some trenches to the south of Wileity, but they were driven out on the afternoon of March 21, and at six hundred men prisoners. The Russian losses were heavy while the German casualties were light.

ZEPPELIN FAILS TO RAID SALONIKI.

Saloniki, Greece, March 25.—(Via Paris.)—An attempt at another Zeppelin raid over Saloniki was made last night. The Zeppelin did not reach the city, however, being kept beyond the French lines.

A French biplane, whose observer was a Greek volunteer, Albert Misvachi, a native of Saloniki, was shot down at a height of 8,000 feet, falling into Lake Doiran.

BRITISH TAKE TURKISH POST.

London, March 25.—A surprise attack by British forces in Mesopotamia on March 15 resulted in the capture of a small Turkish post on the west bank of the Tigris, it was officially announced this afternoon. Bombardment of Kut-el-Amara by Turkish aircraft and artillery also is reported in the official statement which is as follows:

"Our forces on the right bank of the Tigris seized a small Turkish post at Falahiyeh by a surprise attack on the night of March 16-16. Our casualties were four.

"On March 23 General Townshend reported his camp at Kut-el-Amara bombarded by enemy aircraft and guns at intervals on March 21-23. His casualties were slight.

GAINS CLAIMED BY THE RUSSIANS.

Petrograd, March 25.—(Via London.) The official statement issued by the war office today is as follows:

"On the Riga front there have been exchanges of artillery and rifle fire. In the Jacobstadt sector our troops continued to follow up their successes southeast of Augustinhof and, after a fierce conflict, reached the fortified ground around the village of Lepuyn. They were subjected to furious German counter-attacks.

"On the left wing in the Jacobstadt region south of Livenhof, there also was fighting. On the front of the Dvinsk region our forces at some points consolidated the ground won and are continuing to advance.

"In the region of Widsy our troops attacked an enemy position in the sector northwest of Lake Sekly. Notwithstanding a heavy fire from the enemy our troops successfully broke through several obstacles placed in their way by the Germans. The Germans employed explosive bullets. Northwest of the position we stopped, by the well timed fire of our batteries, enemy attempts to repair, under cover of a snowstorm damage done to his works by our bombardments.

"Further to the south as far as the Rokitno marshes and the region of Rokitno itself, there was an exchange of fire. In certain sectors the artillery duel was very heavy. In Galicia the situation is unchanged.

ITALIANS REPULSE AUSTRIAN ATTACKS.

"In the Roveto zone Thursday there was an artillery duel, followed during the night by small attacks against our positions at Mori-Vecchio on the Rio Cameras, Adige valley and at Potrich in Terragnolo valley. All were repulsed. Weather conditions are bad on all parts of the front.

"Yesterday there were merely artillery actions on the Isonzo, which were of severe character only around Tolmino and on the heights northwest of Gorizia."

MME. LABODIE GIVES DRAMATIC READING

The entertainment consisted of an interpretation of "The Great Galeoto," by Jose Echegaray—a selection bringing into play all of the remarkable talents and versatility of the reader.

From Atlanta Mme. Labadie will "work" her way westward, leaving Tuesday morning. She is a guest at the Ansley, with Miss Wiltshire, her secretary.

Waycross, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) When a verdict favoring the J. M. Cox company was returned in city court in the suit instituted by Mrs. G. S. Extortion was alleged but the company denied the allegation. Her husband was formerly engaged in the grocery business here.

Many Visitors in City To Attend Gathering of Orphan Home Board

The seventh annual convention of the trustees of the Hebrew Orphans' home will be held at the home commencing at 10 o'clock this morning. Representatives from Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland will be in attendance.

At the present time there are 130 children in the care of the home. The public is invited to an entertainment at 5 o'clock Sunday night by the children, under the auspices of Superintendent Sonn.

The institution has adopted the principles of Mothers' pension, which it has developed to a high state. Beginning in 1911 with 16 children belonging to seven mothers, the system has grown so that this year there are forty-four children belonging to fifteen mothers. These are maintained in the home of the parent under the monthly pension system, instead of being brought into the institution. At no time during the past five years has it become necessary to remove a child from the care of its mother.

V. H. Kriegshaber, president; Hon. Simon Wolf, Washington, D. C., honorary president; Lionel Weil, Goldsboro, N. C., first vice president; J. H. Atlanta Boy, In U. S. Aerial Squadron, Amongst Those Now Searching for Villa

Thousands of feet above the earth, searching Mexican hills and valleys for Francisco Villa or detachments of his army, is an Atlanta boy, Corporal Paul W. Parker, First Aerial squadron of the United States army, a brother of W. A. Parker, of the Beck & Gregg Hardware company, and son of Mrs. M. A. Parker, 477 Central avenue.

Corporal Parker, who was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas, was sent with the first detachment of United States soldiers which crossed the border into Mexico, after the raid on Columbus. He has written to his relatives in Atlanta telling them of the excitement which pervaded his battalion when orders came to prepare for the Mexican expedition. Since he started on the trip the relatives have heard nothing of him.

Corporal Parker was born and raised in Atlanta, received his education in the public schools of the city.

Six years ago he joined the army and after receiving his training was stationed at San Antonio.

Two years ago he joined the aviation corps and is known as one of the most efficient and fearless aviators in Uncle Sam's service. That was shown when he was selected to pilot one of the scout aeroplanes which are being used in the Villa expedition.

Arnold Parker, brother of the young corporal, is prominently identified with the state militia, and also an employee of the Beck & Gregg Hardware company.

Another brother, C. E. Parker, is a bluejacket in the United States navy. One sister, Mrs. W. R. Freeman, and another brother, J. H. Parker, also live in Atlanta.

SIMPLE FORD STARTER POPULAR WITH DRIVERS

The Jiffy starter, one of the oldest and most simple mechanical Ford starters on the market, has proved their large distribution that it is one of the most popular starters, according to Frank Wachman, president of the Wachman Specialty Manufacturing company, 70 Ivy street.

"We have sold over fifteen hundred of these starters in the past sixty days," states Mr. Wachman. "The bulk of them being distributed over the states of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi. Although we have contracted with subdealers in the majority of these states, we still have a few desirable allotments open for live agents, and we can fill orders for any amount of starters immediately.

"Business houses which operate many Ford cars will find the Jiffy starter a great saving not only on account of saving their drivers' time, but it lessens, to a great degree, the liability of one getting hurt while cranking the car."

Iron Is Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous, Rundown People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a specialist of this city, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by the lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Jacobs' Pharmacy and all other druggists.—(adv.)

Poole Making Fine Race For County Commissioner

Friends of W. M. Poole, who is waging a clean and aggressive campaign for County Commissioner, are congratulating him on his plain, business-like platform for needed improvements for Fulton county. Mr. Poole was the first candidate to place a definite platform before his constituents. He told them he favored proper co-operation between the city and county forces on road and street work; that the schools of the county should be brought up to their highest efficiency; that proper and ample hospital facilities should be offered the people of the whole county, and that he would work to that end if elected, and suggested other important work. He is meeting with much success in his campaign, and his clear-cut, business-like, aggressive ideas of conducting the county's business seems to have struck a popular chord with the voters. If you believe as he does, and can give him your vote and influence in the coming primary, he will appreciate it.

COMPANY FORMED TO MAKE GASOLINE BY NEW PROCESS

Brunswick, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) A new company with considerable foreign capital, together with a number of local business men, has been organized for the purpose of going into the gasoline business. It will finance the process recently discovered by Homer T. Yaryan, of Toledo, Ohio, who, after months of experimenting, has succeeded in manufacturing gasoline by his new process at a greatly reduced cost.

This gasoline has already been used in Brunswick and has given absolute satisfaction. The new company will erect a plant and for the present will manufacture a sufficient amount of gasoline to supply the Yaryan Rosin and Turpentine company's plant. This concern is one of the largest consumers of gasoline in the country, using 100,000 gallons monthly. Local people interested are much elated over Mr. Yaryan's success.

JUDGE PERSUADES 8-YEAR-OLD GIRL TO VISIT FATHER

A little 8-year-old child sat in the court of Judge John T. Pendleton yesterday afternoon, and for the first time she could remember, looked upon her father.

She wouldn't have known him if somebody had not pointed him out. He was there seeking to have possession of her for a time during the summer season.

She didn't want him to. She clung to her mother and said that she wanted to spend all the time with her. But the judge leaned over and told her that the father lived in the country where there were violets and pansies and cows and chickens, and she consented to go each summer and spend a time with the stranger, who was her father.

She was Ruth Eloise Cheek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Cheek, who have been divorced for seven and more years. The child was eight weeks old when the father and mother separated. She had never seen him since that time. The courts awarded the mother alimony and gave her possession of the girl.

The father only asked permission to have the child visit him at specific times, and Judge Pendleton, after asking the little girl's opinion of the plan, granted the request.

At first she demurred. But when the judge, with his hand upon her blonde head, and his eyes looking into hers with the fervor of age toward a child, explained that there were so many interesting sights to be seen on the father's farm, she relented—and agreed with the court.

Great Labor Famine Suffered by Canada, Asserts W. F. Cloney

On account of the war in Europe, Canada is suffering under a labor famine such as never was before experienced in the history of the dominion, according to W. F. Cloney, general agent for the passenger department of the Canada Steamship lines, who arrived from Rochester, N. Y., yesterday.

Mr. Cloney says that before many weeks women will, for the most part, be placed on street cars throughout the dominion as conductors, and some as motorwomen; and that the colleges throughout the country all will close on May 1, instead of in June, as always before, in order to place the young men and boys attending them on the farms. It is impossible, he says, for the Canadian farmers to procure sufficient labor to plant the spring crop. The government was appealed to, and this early closing of the schools was the result. And that, says Mr. Cloney, will only in part solve the problem.

Common labor in Canada, Mr. Cloney declares, is paid from $3 to $3.50 a day, and still is at a premium.

When the war broke out Canada promised the crown to send half a million men should they be needed. To date, it has either at the front or in training camps 270,000 men, and more are constantly being recruited to the colors.

The steamship company Mr. Cloney represents is the result of a merger, about three years ago, of all the steamship lines of Canada into a $25,000,000 corporation. At the beginning of the war it had in operation on the Great Lakes 125 ships. Of these, four have subsequently been requisitioned by the government for the transporting of troops and freight to the war zone, and three of them, one the Empress, which was lost off the coast of Ireland only recently, have been sent to the bottom of the sea by German torpedoes.

WOMEN TURNING AGAINST WAITE

New York, March 25.—From statements by Mrs. Margaret Horton, a singer, Assistant District Attorney Dooling declared tonight that the authorities had reason to believe Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, accused of poisoning his wealthy father-in-law, John E. Peck, of Grand Rapids, Mich., had designs on the lives of at least four persons. Mrs. Horton, according to Mr. Dooling, admitted that she shared a "studio" with Waite at a hotel, and that Waite registered with her as "Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Walters."

Woman Grilled All Day.

Mrs. Horton who was subjected to an all-day examination, was said by Mr. Dooling to have stated that she believed Waite planned to kill her and her husband

"Mrs. Horton," continued Mr. Dooling, "has reason to believe, according to her statement, that Waite was trying to persuade her to take some kind of medicine."

Mr. Dooling added that Mrs. Horton was with Waite when he made purchases "the nature of which cannot now be divulged." Mrs. Horton also told him, he said, that Waite believed her to be wealthy, and had questioned her regarding the extent of her finances.

District Attorney Swann said he expected the grand jury to indict Waite Monday or Tuesday after hearing the testimony of Percy Peck, son of the alleged poison victim, and the physicians who say they found arsenic in Peck's body.

The only persons permitted to see Waite today were his parents from Grand Rapids and his brother, Frank, of this city. The latter said that his father is on the verge of collapse and his mother is under the care of a physician.

Waite Suffering From Drugs.

Still suffering from the effects of the narcotic drugs he began to take when his troubles overwhelmed him, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite spent a restless night under close guard in the prison ward at Bellevue hospital. By Monday the district attorney expects to receive from the grand jury an indictment charging the young dentist with first-degree murder in administering the arsenic which caused the death of his father-in-law, John E. Peck, the Grand Rapids millionaire.

Waite was cheered today by prospects of seeing his father and mother. Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Waite, who came here last night from their home in Grand Rapids. Waite's father was not permitted to see him when he called at the hospital late last night "Our son never committed this awful crime of which they charge him," said Mr. Waite. "Give him a chance and we feel certain it will be cleared up."

Dr. Waite's admission to the district attorney yesterday that he had handed to Mr. Peck a package of arsenic and the young dentist's assertion that Peck wanted to commit suicide because of his wife's death, does not alter the intention of the prosecutor to continue his investigation.

Physicians who conducted the autopsy on Mr. Peck's body in Grand Rapids are expected here Monday to complete the evidence to be submitted to the grand jury.

Details of Alleged Confession.

Additional details of the alleged confession were related today by Detective Cuniffe, who guarded Waite at his Riverside Drive apartment. He said Dr. Waite declared:

"Can't I get this off my mind? Can you get me my wife? What will she think of me? I am the worst scoundrel on the face of the earth."

"Well," Cuniffe says he replied "perhaps you made a mistake. We all do at times."

"Yes, but you never were found out," Waite was quoted as saying.

The young dentist was reported much improved today.

The district attorney telegraphed F. X. Mancuse, his representative in Grand Rapids, to bring back with him Percy Peck, son of the dead man, to testify before the grand jury and also the two physicians who performed the autopsy on Peck's body, disclosing the presence of arsenic.

Waite seemed to believe, according to the district attorney and detectives who have been guarding him, that he is destined for the electric chair. "No one will believe me," Waite is quoted as saying repeatedly. "I suppose I'll have to go to the electric chair. Why don't I die?"

FAITH OF WIFE BADLY SHAKEN.

"I feel it my duty to the public to make the following statement. No previous statement said to have been made by me is authentic. I have given nothing whatever to the press.

"When I was informed of the serious charges against my husband, I was so shocked and amazed I could not believe them true. It seemed to me impossible that a man who had been so uniformly gentle and kind to me and apparently so loyal could be guilty of the crime with which he is charged.

"My faith in him began to be shaken when it was practically proved to me that Dr. Waite was living with another woman in the Plaza hotel.

"As the evidence against him increased from day to day, I was compelled against my will and my deepest affection for him to accept the evidence as true.

"Of course I can not and will not say he is guilty, but it certainly looks as if that is the fact.

"As far as I am concerned, I must and will permit the law to take its course. I will stand aside and leave the whole matter to those who have the case in charge.

"I have told all I know, frankly and fully, to the authorities, and will not discuss that statement which is in their hands to view as they see fit.

"It is all very sad and very terrible, all I ask is that I may be left alone with my friends, to bear my sorrow the best I can.

BOTH ROUTES ADOPTED BY HIGHWAY DIRECTORS

there are three former capitols of the state located upon this route.

Points of Historic Interest.

At Milledgeville is the old ante-bellum capitol, which was raided by Sherman's men. Prior to the establishment of the capital at Milledgeville, Louisville was the state's capital, and was the first established capitol the state ever had, the building itself having been razed but a decade or such a matter ago. Prior to the building of the state house in Louisville the general assembly, which met then in different towns of the state, met once or twice in Savannah. Along the Old Capitol route are located many other of the most historic spots in Georgia.

Over the Waycross, or short, route, now called the central route, the principal points are the following:

Macon, Hawkinsville, Abbeville, Fitzgerald, Douglas, Waycross, Folkston and Jacksonville.

The route is, of course, much shorter than the rather circuitous eastern route and leads through a prosperous farming section of the state.

The roads along both routes, with the exception of a few miles here and yonder, are already in good condition and well constructed. The unimproved portions are in many stretches already undergoing improvement and plans are afoot to make the entire roadway of both routes as good as any road in Georgia.

Practically all the smaller streams are bridged and plans are being made to build bridges or improve ferry service over the larger streams.

The tour began last Monday and consisted of a very thorough inspection of both routes.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning the directors, representing practically every state on the highway between Michigan and Florida, met in the Dempsey hotel for the purpose of deciding which route should be designated as the official route.

There were large delegations here from Fitzgerald, Waycross and other points along the Waycross, or short, route, and a great many interested highway boosters from Savannah and other points along the Savannah, or Old Capitol, route, waiting to see what the outcome of the deliberations of the directors would be.

Two Routes Selected.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and during the hours in which the directors were debating and threshing out the problem before them the boosters of the two routes waited in the lobby of the hotel giving cheers and singing songs.

About 2 o'clock the meeting adjourned and it was announced that the directors had found both routes so commendable that it was decided that both routes would be selected. The decision of the directors was received with enthusiasm by both sides.

This makes three routes of the highway through south Georgia from Macon to Jacksonville, the other being the western route, by way of Albany, Thomasville and Tallahassee, which was selected last year.

SINISTER INFLUENCES SEEK WAR WITH MEXICO

cause the main, if not the only, source of information for the people on both sides of the border is the public press of the United States.

"In order to avoid the creation of erroneous and dangerous impressions in this way, I have called upon the several news agencies to use the utmost care not to give news stories regarding this expedition the color of war, to withhold stories of troop movements and military preparations which might be given that interpretation, and to refrain from publishing unverified rumors of unrest in Mexico.

Only a Punitive Expedition.

"I feel that it is most desirable to impress upon both our own people and the people of Mexico, the fact that the expedition is simply a necessary punitive measure, aimed solely at the elimination of the marauders who raided Columbus and who infest an unprotected district near the border which they use as a base in making attacks upon the lives and property of our citizens within our own territory. It is the purpose of our commanders to co-operate in every possible way with the forces of General Carranza in removing this cause of irritation to both governments and to retire from Mexican territory soon as that object is accomplished.

"It is my duty to warn the people of the United States that there are persons all along the border who are actively engaged in originating and giving as wide currency as they can to rumors of the most sensational and disturbing sort which are wholly unjustified by the facts. The object of this traffic in falsehood is obvious. It is to create intolerable friction between the government of the United States and the de facto government of Mexico, for the purpose of bringing about intervention in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican properties. This object can not be attained so long as sane and honorable men are in control of this government, but very serious conditions may be created, unnecessary bloodshed may result, and the relations between the two republics may be very much embarrassed.

"The people of the United States should know the sinister and unscrupulous influences that are afoot and should be on their guard against crediting any story coming from the border; and those who disseminate the news should make it a matter of patriotism and of conscience to test the source and authenticity of every report they receive from that quarter.

Three Oklahoma Senators Neighbor Boys in Georgia

Oklahoma State Senators O. J. Logan, of Kiowa county; W. A. Chase, of Nowata county, and M. S. Blassingame, of Sequoyah county, spent their boyhood days in three adjoining counties of the mountain region of Georgia, bordering on the state of Tennessee. They were quite chummy during the sessions of the fifth legislature when they discovered their youthful propinquity.

Messrs. Logan, Chase and Blassingame were born and reared in Fannin, Gilmer and Murray counties, Georgia, respectively, and now reside in Kiowa, Nowata and Sequoyah counties, Oklahoma, respectively.

Senator Logan is chairman of the committee on state and county affairs; Senator Chase is chairman of the committee on rules, and Senator Blassingame was chairman of the committee on engrossed and enrolled bills and in addition was democratic caucus chairman, which position carried with it what is known as "majority leadership."

LEADERS OF EMORY PLANNING CANVASS

fund. For instance, only this morning I received a letter from a noble character, an Atlanta lawyer, Robert Zahner, in which he says:

"I have not been asked by anyone to contribute to Emory, but I feel I ought to do something. Accordingly, I am enclosing a check for $50. Please see that it is handed to the proper parties.'

"There are hundreds, I dare say, who feel as did Mr. Zahner, and from whom we shall hear in a similar tone.

All Classes Contribute.

"The collection has been remarkable, not only in the amount raised, but in the number of persons who have contributed. Among them are people in all walks of life, and from little children up to the most conspicuous citizens in the community. It has been a veritable outpouring, and people have given without respect to denominational lines. The Methodists, however, have contributed more largely than those of any other one denomination, as they ought to have done. But good people of all churches and of no churches have borne a large part in this remarkably successful campaign.

"The amount Atlanta has contributed will cover the cost of the buildings now in process of erection, and at least one of the four proposed and required for the school of medicine.

"We are relying upon additional subscriptions in Atlanta and other cities of the south to put up other buildings as rapidly as resources can be gathered for this purpose and the work done. I calculate that to do all that we have in view will require at least fourteen buildings, in order to round out the university and give it adequate housing in keeping with its magnitude and the importance of the enterprise.

"We have not heretofore projected the campaign throughout the church because we have been waiting for Atlanta's campaign to be finished, and we have waited also on account of the financial condition of the south and of America resulting from the outbreak of war in Europe.

"However, in addition to Atlanta's $500,000, about $70,000 outside has been secured without any campaign, a notable gift being one by the Rev. T. T. Fishburne, of Roanoke, Va. But now the financial conditions have so greatly improved, and the Atlanta campaign been carried to such a triumphant success, we propose to launch a campaign all over the southern states east of the Mississippi river.

"This campaign will be organized and conducted by an educational committee, carefully chosen for the purpose. Already the Rev. C. C. Jarrell and the Rev. J. A. Harmon have begun the campaign in Georgia. The Rev. J. S. Frazer, D. D., of Montgomery, Ala., will conduct the campaign in Alabama; the Rev. Robert Selby, Brookhaven, Miss., in his state. These four gentlemen already are at work and meeting with encouraging success. Other commissioners will be appointed and put to work as rapidly and as soon as suitable men can be secured.

"The schools of theology, of medicine and of liberal arts of the university already are in operation, and the enrollment in them a little more than 600 students. The law school will be opened in September. Other departments will be opened as fast as the work can be done well. We do not purpose to open any department until we have resources sufficient to make it strictly first-class. We hope the people will respond so willingly that we shall not be delayed in any of the plans we have in view for a real university, fully equipped for the highest work."

Alabama Helps.

How the people of communities elsewhere than in Atlanta and Georgia stand ready and waiting to put their shoulders to the wheel in behalf of Emory and the enterprise which it is hoped will place the south on an educational parity with the first section, educationally, of the nation is demonstrated by the fact that one Alabama conference alone turned in to the university $20,000; also by the fact that last week Mississippi started off its ultimate donation with an initial gift of $5,000.

As a matter of fact, the campaign which closed last Friday night is generally viewed in the light in which Bishop Candler viewed it when he said that "it marks the beginning of a new era in the south." The spirit of education from all appearances has finally and forcefully been aroused in this campaign for Emory; and the several states not only want to have a part in the building here of the south's great university, but they want to be known in it, and they want their states' names perpetuated as a mark of honor and a source of everlasting pride to future generations. Illustrative of this, there is a building now under construction on the campus, to be built with funds raised and to be raised in Alabama, to be known as Alabama hall; another is projected in like manner to have the name of Mississippi, and the various other states of the south have signified a desire and an intention thus eventually to erect here like monuments to thir respective names and fame.

Great as has been the place of the south in the national life in the past, it is far behind other sections in the matter of higher education. But it is the intention of those back of this Emory enterprise, and of the people of the south generally, to effect a change in these conditions.

Emory university, as its organization exists today, had its origin at a general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, assembled in Oklahoma City, May 6, 1914, when it was then voted to establish two American universities, one east and one west of the Mississippi river.

Atlanta Gives Pledge.

On July 15, 1914, the committee appointed by the conference, consisting of Bishop Warren A. Candler, Bishop James H. McCoy, Rev. A. J. Lamar, W. G. M. Thomas and Rev. Plato T. Durham, met in the Piedmont hotel with the educational commission from the conference to report upon its work, the object of which was the establishing of the university authorized east of the Mississippi. It was then that the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta guaranteed $500,000 if the university were located in Atlanta. The following day Asa G. Candler contributed an endowment of $1,000,000 "of an institution, the plans and methods of which are to be definitely directed to the advancement of sound learning and pure religion." This gift was soon followed by that of $25,000 from T. F. Fishburne, of Roanoke, Va., who, with Asa G. Candler, was a member of the commission.

Thus Emory university succeeded the old Emory college, at Oxford, Ga., incorporated in 1836, and named in honor of Bishop John Emory, of Maryland, who was elected to the episcopacy in 1832, and who was accidentally killed at Baltimore in December, 1835.

Since the university's founding, additional to the gifts by Mr. Candler and Rev. Fishburne, and in addition, too, to what it received last Friday, it has been given its Druid Hills campus, worth more than $75,000, by the Druid Hills Land company, and other gifts aggregating in all approximately $70,000.

Those who are most vitally interested in the management and the future greatness of the institution declare that to make a fair start toward the attainment of the ends set for it, the university ought to have at least $5,000,000. With that much as a foundation, they declare, it would speedily draw to it other large amounts and would presently have double that amount.

VILLA SPLITS BAND AND OUTWITS PURSUERS

was received that permission to use the railroad had been granted.

The using of the Mexican lines by the Americans is expected by persons here familiar with the border to be the supreme test as to whether friction with the Mexican people is to be averted and real co-operation between the Carranza authorities and the United States expedition established.

The alarmists on the border were unusually quiet today. Threats made by the local authorities that persons caught spreading false and alarming reports would be summarily dealt with apeared to have had its effect and there were less wild stories than usual being circulated.

PREPARING TO USE MEXICAN RAILROAD.

San Antonio, Texas, March 25.—Unofficial reports that General Alvaro Obregon, secretary of war for the de facto Mexican government, had said that permission would not be granted for the use of the Northwestern Railway of Mexico for the transportation of supplies to the American expeditionary force was not credited by officers at Fort Sam Houston tonight.

On the assumption that the request of the United States would be granted, however, a quantity of stores has already been sent to El Paso for shipment over the road and General Carranza's delay in authorizing their transportation was a subject of comment at army headquarters.

Failure to send supplies through Juarez over the railroad into the country where the troops now are operating will not stop the campaign, but it was admitted it would materially retard General Pershing's activities. Already there has been so many changes in the positions of the mobile forces dispatched from Casas Grandes that the logical railroad to use for getting supplies to a part of them whould be the National, which goes straight from Juarez to Chihuahua instead of making the wide swing to the west that the Northwestern does. The Northwestern is the logical line for supplying troops near Casas Grandes, but since many of them now are more than a hundred miles farther south, General Funston believes that time would be saved by routing the stores over the National, especially since many repairs would have to be made on the Northwestern south of Casas Grandes.

Wants Direct Route.

Whether General Funston will request the government to get permission to use the National, however, will depend upon the answer to the request already made, he said. He admitted the desirability of using the direct route, but recognized also the inadvisability of compounding his request.

The utilization of the flying corps for transmission of reports from the field was regarded at headquarters with keen satisfaction. The wireless has not been a success and in the absence of telegraph wire, General Pershing has been unable to render detailed reports and for days at a time no report of any character.

Uneasiness occassioned by the lack of news from cavalry columns was evident today at General Funston's headquarters, although he displayed an optimistic confidence in General Pershing's campaign methods. General Pershing on Monday reported the dispatch of three cavalry columns southward from Casas Grandes. Friday he reported that two of them were in the vicinity of Namiquipa. That is the net amount of official information that has reached headquarters.

The greater part of the fifth cavalry should have reached Columbus by Monday and soon afterwards the twenty-fourth infantry is expected. These two bodies, with the exception of one battalion, will be sent forward immediately and will be used by General Pershing in strengthening his lines of communication.

BRIEF MESSAGES FOR NEWSPAPERS.

Field Headquarters, United States Army, in Mexico, March 25.—(By Aeroplane to Columbus, N. M.)—Owing to limited wire and wireless facilities, the total number of words which may be sent from here by correspondents is 250 or 300 daily. This number of words has been divided equally among the correspondents in the field so that with the present wire limitations the number of words which any newspaper may receive by wire during a day is about 25.

The censors said military necessities preclude any larger use for the present of army wires, which are the only means of communication from the field headquarters, or the front. The correspondents with the army are bound by the same regulations as the soldiers. None of them may visit Mexican towns outside the lines, and as the army is occupying no such towns all of them are outside the towns. Furthermore, the censorship regulations do not permit correspondents filing over any wires or by any other couriers than those designated by the censor.

Up to the present no correspondents have been permitted beyond the field headquarters. The front, where the search for Villa is underway, is more than 100 miles south.

Except the brief daily dispatches by wireless all news passing the censor is carried back by army mails.

Brigadier General Pershing asked newspaper men not to use the name of officers nor of military units. He explained in a general way the movements now being made against Villa, but cautioned the correspondents specifically against using any of this information. The newspaper men have shared the hardships of the soldiers on the marches. As the main object was speed all superfluous baggage had to be left behind, and as a result most of the writing has been done by daylight on account of lack of lights.

TROOPS ORDERED TO BORDER POINTS.

San Antonio, Texas, March 25.—In answer to protests from residents at Presidio, Marfa and Del Rio, Texas, for more protection, Major General Funston today announced that a battalion of the 24th infantry now on the way here from Fort D. A. Russell, will be stationed in that district.

One company will go to Marfa, relieving a company of the Fourteenth which will go to Presidio, opposite Ojinaga, Mexico, and two companies will go to Del Rio for patrol duty along the Southern Pacific railway. Another company will be stationed at Fabens.

Colonel Foltz, commanding the troops at Douglas, today disposed of the rumor that Carranza troops were being massed along the border there. He reported that the garrison at Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, comprised only 200 officers and men and that there was but one battery of artillery.

If Carranza permits the transportation of supplies over the Northwestern railway permission to ship over the National railway also probably will be asked, it was stated today at headquarters. The disposition of American troops has been such that the National could be used to better advantage.

VILLA GENERALS ESCAPE FROM JAIL.

El Paso, Texas, March 25.—General Manuel Medinavietia and General Manuel Banda, two former Villa officers, have disappeared from the El Paso jail and are understood to be on their way to New Orleans.

New Orleans police officials said they would make no move to retake the two generals as there were no charges against them.

AIRMAN ARRIVES FROM PERSHING.

Columbus, N. M., March 25.—Lieutenant Herbert Dargue, of the First aeroplane squadron, arrived here today after flying 165 miles from the interior of Mexico. He carried dispatches to headquarters and from correspondents. Dargue reported flying conditions poor and said it was freezing cold in the mountains. His flying time was less than two hours and a half.

NO AMERICANS MURDERED.

Columbus, N. M., March 25.—Investigation today of reports that Mexican brigands had raided the border eight miles from here and killed three Americans disclosed that they are unfounded. Everything was quiet at Gibson's ranch.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to lime loss, the success of Eckman's Alterative in its treatment may be due, in part, to its content of a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged consumptives to attend strictly to matters of food, but often some effective remedial agent is needed. In many cases of apparent recovery Eckman's Alterative seems to have supplied this need It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. From your druggist or direct.

BURWELL DECIDES NOT TO MAKE RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

STRESSES THE BENEFITS OF SALE OF STATE ROAD

Believes County Boards of Education Should Be Allowed to Get Superintendent From Any Place They Choose.

Macon, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—W. H. Burwell, of Hancock county, speaker of the house of representatives, will not be a candidate for the governorship. For many months it has been rumored that he might enter the race, but today he set all these reports at rest by an authoritative statement, in which he gave his reasons for not running, and discussed what he considers the greatest needs of Georgia at present.

Mr. Burwell said that he had carefully considered the matter of running for governor; had taken into account the great expense necessary, and the amount of time which he would be kept away from his business, and that he had decided that the sacrifice was greater than he could make,.

In discussing the matter he expressed some very decided opinions as to the present conditions. Among others, he said:

"We have heard considerable comment on Georgia's disregard for law, and, while all loyal Georgians deeply resent these criticisms from the outside, it cannot be denied that there are conditions here that have given us considerable undesirable notoriety. I believe that there are two causes at the bottom of all this. One is the unrestrained and unbridled activity of the political demagogue and character assassin, both journalistic and otherwise, who has cheapened human character by vile slanders against practically every public official in the state; the other is the election of our judges by the direct vote of the people.

Criticises System.

"I do not mean to criticise a single judge in this state, but when the judge serves the people who elect him, the system itself inspires an indifference to the office and a disregard for the court, which breeds contempt for the law and indifference to its enforcement. While honest differences between upright, honest citizens ever have, and ever will, require the intervention of courts, this type of litigant is ever faithful and obedient to the law.

"The menace to the court is the man who would openly violate the law, or who is indifferent to its enforcement, and this type is ever active in local politics. What active heeler at the polls, who feels that he has contributed largely to the election of the judge, will have the slightest fear of being arraigned before him. It is this system which is sapping the vital force of our courts. This is true regardless of the fact that the judge may be absolutely above reproach. This cannot be applicable to any other elective office as it is to a judge, for the simple reason that none other exercises the judicial function.

"Our collection laws are crude and inefficent, and, under the present administration of our courts, are a farce. This knowledge has driven capital away from us and has prevented the investment of money in this state, which is so much needed for the development of our diversified and almost boundless resources. In addition to this it has placed the borrower absolutely at the mercy of the lender in the matter of interest rates and other charges. In other words, as capital believes the risk more hazardous, the rate of interest will increase, if the money can be secured at all. This is true whether or not conditions justify the opinion. The fact that outside capital entertains these views of the state makes it essential that some radical steps should be taken to correct this evil and extend to the outside world a welcome to every investor and a guarantee of absolute protection not only of person, but of every dollar invested.

"What Georgia needs is sufficient capital to develop its water powers, its mining interests and to build industries of every kind to give food and employment to its people and to bless them with the contentment and happiness that comes with prosperity. Let the people rise up in their power and overthrow the political demagogue, the character assassin, the unscrupulous agitator, who prospers by his vices, and the day will soon dawn when you will hear no more these infamous slanders directed against the state or our people, and the golden tide of investing capital will be flowing our way.

Must Educate People,.

"The disregard for law and the contempt for written statutes can hardly be corrected by writing more statutes. To correct this we must go directly to the people themselves, who are, after all, the source of the law, as every statute is dependent upon the will of the people for its enforcment. Therefore, a more effective system of education is absolutely essential and imperative. It is a shame that this great state, with only one companion, stands alone in the matter of a total lack of any measures looking to compulsory education.

"However, before very much progress can be made in the education of even those who voluntarily attend the public schools, there are radical changes I believe to be essential. The superintendent of schools of the counties is the most important office in the county, for not only should he be a business man of capacity to secure the best results from the amount of money expended, but he should also combine the qualities of a skilled educator and be qualified to direct the conduct of all the schools and raise them to the highest point of efficiency.

"To secure this type of officer, the board of education should have the power to take him from anywhere, within or without the state, and to pay him a salary commensurate with his talents. I do not believe that any progress can be made in our public school system, regardless of the amount of money we appropriate and raise by local taxation, until these funds are administered by superintendents who are out of, and aloof from, politics and properly qualified for the work.

"You might elect the board of education by the people and let them be responsible directly to the people for their acts, but, above all things, allow this board of education to go out and find you a fit and proper superintendent, pay him an adequate salary and keep him out of politics.

Free School Books.

"May God speed the day when there shall be, within easy reach of every child within the state of Georgia, a properly conducted, well-equipped school, supported by the state, with proper school books furnished without cost, and the strong arm of the law to restrain the parent who would deny his child the blessings of an education. This, after all, is the real source of the progress of the state, its development and perpetual establishment.

"The state road has been much discussed, and there seems to be a general sentiment in the state opposing any disposition of the property. I cannot understand how this could be a matter of sentiment. It is purely a business proposition.

"We are now paying approximately $252,000 for interest on public debt, and $100,000 on sinking fund, which makes the annual appropriation for this year for sinking fund and interest approximately $350,000. The total income from the present lease of the Western and Atlantic railroad is $420,012. So we are only receiving net about $70,000 for all of this property, which most conservative authorities value at from $15,000,000 to $16,000,000, while others claim that it is worth considerably more. The value of the road should be fairly well established from the interstate commerce valuation.

"The total public debt of the state is at present $6,214,702, so if the road were sold for $16,000,000, there would be sufficient funds to pay the public debt, settle in full with the school teachers, and leave at least $8,000,000 as surplus. This sum alone, at 5 per cent interest invested in county and municipal bonds, would yield an income to the state of $400,000, and when you add to this the taxes on the property sold of about $75,000, and then the interest saved on the public debt, you have an income almost double the present lease.

If Road Was Sold.

"If the road could be sold for a reasonable price and the surplus over and above the amount necessary to pay the public debt and pay the school teachers all the arrears due them, be invested in county and municipal bonds, or a land bank for the benefit of the people in this state, this surplus fund should pay into the treasury in interest considerably more than the present lease of the road and leave the state with this great surplus and entirely out of debt,.

"The only argument against this is that the legislature will spend the surplus money, but if the legislature is restricted by constitutional amendment, it could not do this, and then, too, after all, the legislature is only the people speaking through their representatives, and I have sufficient faith in them to believe that this argument against the sale is without foundation.

"It is unjust for the state of Georgia, by mere force and power and in the teeth of the spirit of its own constitution, to deny to one section of the state a reasonable competition and development, and to say to every person, both natural and artificial, if you attempt to thwart competition in any line, I will hold you guilty of a crime.

"There are other questions very vital to the interest of our people, which, together with these suggestions, have made me, for a time, consider becoming a candidate in order that I might discuss them face to face with the people of Georgia, but for the reasons above, I am compelled to forego this desire."

Glynn Community School Proves Great Success

Brunswick, Ga., March 25.—(Special.) "The Glynn county community school is a plan which I hoped to see adopted in other sections of the state," said M. L. Brittain, state school superintendent, who has been in the city for the past three days attending the annual meeting of the Southeastern Sanitary association, and who delivered an interesting address before the organization.

"Glynn county has proven that the plan of centralizing the county schools is not only feasible but an absolute success, and I hope other Georgia counties will realize the great benefits derived from such a school and follow the excellent example set by your board of education." Mr. Brittain has manifested much interest in the success of the community school, said to be the first to be established in Georgia. It takes the places of half a dozen small country schools, the children from a distance being transported to the schools daily in a large carry-all. The building itself is a large and handsome one, and with an attendance to warrant it a full corps of teachers has been supplied, giving the country children the same benefits in their studies as those enjoyed by the children of the city people, and thus doing away with the one-teacher plan in the rural districts.

Tech Offers Shakespearean Plays By the Ben Greet Players

Georgia Tech has again succeeded in bringing the famous Ben Greet Players to Atlanta for three performances early in April, to be given under the auspices, respectively, of Agnes Scott college, Georgia Tech and Cox college. On the afternoon of April 5 they will present "The Comedy of Errors" at Agnes Scott, and on the afternoon of April 6 the same comedy on the Georgia Tech campus, while probably on April 7 they will give "Romeo and Juliet" on the Cox college campus.

Special local interest is added to their coming by the fact that Miss Frost, a distinguished Atlanta girl, Shakespearean actress, and daughter of Jonathan B. Frost, of Atlanta, is now with the Ben Greet Players, and will enact prominent roles in the plays to be given here.

Ben Greet, known as the father of open-air performances in America, since the organization of his famous company, over twelve years ago, has been possessed with the ambition to make it the leading one of its kind in the world. That this ambition has been realized is borne out by the fact that each season the company finds more demands for its appearance than it can possibly fill.

A distinctive feature of the Ben Greet performances is that the plays are given virtually in their entirety. Not a line has been changed from the way it was first acted in the seventeenth century, and throughout the country hundreds of critical people have expressed their appreciation for Mr. Greet's intelligence in leaving the original text as it was written and not attempting to improve on the great master. So it is that their performances savor of real Elizabethan times, of the olden days when Shakespeare ruled the destinies of the Globe theater, London, and presented his plays exactly as they are now being given by the Ben Greet Woodland Players.

Decatur to Ask Atlanta To End Residence Rule For All City Employees

At its smoker Monday night, at 6:30 o'clock, the Decatur Board of Trade will initiate a movement to retain its citizens now employed in the public schools of Atlanta. Among the invited guests will be Clark Howell, of The Constitution; James R. Gray, of The Journal; James B. Nevin of The Georgian, and the city editors of the three Atlanta daily papers.

PRESERVES 'TATER VINES FROM SEASON TO SEASON

Thomasville, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—J. T. Clarke, of this city, who has discovered a method of preserving sweet potato vines from one season to another, seems to be gaining notoriety by it, and says he has more orders for his vines than he can fill. Recently a man from another part of the state came to see Mr. Clarke in regard to finding out this method. Mr. Clarke told him that it would cost him a hundred dollars to learn the method, but he said he was willing to pay that for it. After learning it he not only paid the hundred dollars, but paid more than another hundred for a lot of the vines.

These vines are valuable because they grow off so much quicker than the plants from the potatoes themselves and are also said to produce more than double the quantity of potatoes than those grown in the usual way.

ASSOCIATION FORMED BY ALUMNI OF GORDON

Barnesville, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—Founder's day exercises were concluded late Friday evening with the senior play, the occasion being highly successful. Intense interest in a number of the features of the day was manifested, and enthusiasm ran high among the visitors and citizens of the city. Hundreds of graduates and former students of Gordon, from every section of the state, were present and participated in the program of the day.

Hon. Wright Willingham, of Rome, made a decided hit in his address as the principal speaker. His reference to the fear he had of Professor J. M. Pound, who was president at the time Mr. Willingham attended Gordon, was happy and brought forth a volume of applause, especially from the former students of Professor Pound, who is universally loved and honored by them all. Mr. Willingham made an earnest appeal for independent thinking and acting, setting this forth as the chief need among the people of today.

At noon a magnificent basket dinner was served by the people of the city on the campus, at which hundreds were feasted. It fully sustained Barnesville's reputation for hospitality.

The organization of the Gordon Alumni association was one of the important events of the day. Great interest and enthusiasm prevailed in this movement. Some definite work is to be undertaken in behalf of the school, and the association begins its career with flattering prospects. Professor Jere M. Pound, of Athens, was elected president; Professor G. F. Oliphant, of Macon, vice president; Professor Joseph D. Smith, of Barnesville, secretary; Captain Pierce Hammond, assistant secretary; Mr. G. White Jordan, treasurer. Among the honorary vice presidents are Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, and Senator Thomas W. Hardwick, of Georgia, and Congressman Charles G. Edwards, of the First Georgia district.

Gordon institute has had a notable career, and its graduates and students have been remarkably successful in every sphere of life's activities, and yet it has never had any help from any source except what the citizens of Barnesville have done for it. If the alumni association meets with the success anticipated, the usefulness of the institution will be greatly enlarged.

W. C. BIRCHMORE IS DEAD.

Passes Away at Comer After Brief Illness.

Comer, Ga., March 25—(Special.)—Hon. W. C. Birchmore passed to the beyond early today, after a brief illness, the first sickness in forty years. He succumbed to what appeared to be a general breakdown.

Mr. Birchmore is survived by his wife, and seven children, Mrs. J. T. Noell, Comer, Ga.; Fred G. Birchmore, Athens, Ga.; Mrs. W. E. Henslee, Comer, Ga.; Gerald H. Birchmore, Comer, Ga.; Mrs. J. K. Miller, Winder, Ga.; John M. Birchmore, Gay, Ga.; and W. C. Birchmore, Jr., Comer, Ga. All were at his bedside when the end came. He is also survived by three brothers, T. E. Birchmore, Maxeys, Ga.; C. W. Birchmore, Camden, S. C.; and H. C. Birchmore, Dublin, Texas.

He was born in Camden, S. C., October 26, 1847, moved to Georgia in 1864, and was married to Miss Emma Gilliam on May 1, 1873, at Maxeys, Ga. He lived in Maxeys until 1896, when he moved to Comer, Ga.

Mr. Birchmore was a most enthusiastic Mason. He was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason on July 15, 1871, by Howard lodge No. 138, and was a number of times master of that lodge, and was a charter member of Shannon lodge No. 404, Comer, Ga., and was master of this lodge quite a few times. He was Excellent High Priest of David W. Meadow chapter No. 105 at the time of his death. He did more Masonic work both in and out of the lodge than any other one Mason in northeast Georgia. He was also a very strong worker in the Knights of Pythias order. He took great pains to try to teach young men the right paths in life.

He represented Oglethorpe county in the General Assembly of Georgia one term. He served two or more terms on the board of commissioners of roads and revenue in Oglethorpe county. He had been mayor of the town of Comer time after time and was always a public-spirited man.

At the time of his death, he was general manager of the Danielsville-Comer Telephone company, and also wrote a large amount of fire insurance.

Glaude Register Will Appreciate a Vote for Lowry for Sheriff

To the Voters of Fulton County:

For the first time in my life, and after serving the city trade for 25 years, I desire to announce to my friends that I am one of the deputies on the ticket of James I. Lowry, candidate for Sheriff. We are waging a clean, high-class campaign, which seems to appeal to the people, and there seems no doubt of our success.

I am proud to state that 22 years of my service has been with one of the oldest and most substantial wholesale grocery houses in this section—Kelley Bros. Co. If Mr. Lowry is elected, I pledge to the citizens of this county, as one of his deputies, the same faithful and loyal service to them that I have given to my employers in the past.

I will very deeply appreciate your vote and influence for Mr. Lowry for Sheriff.

Respectfully,

FARMERS FIGHT DUEL AND WOMAN IS SHOT

Calhoun, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—C. P. Holland, a farmer living five miles from here, received several shots in different parts of his body, and his wife one shot in the face, in an affray that occurred between Holland and E. P. Moore, another farmer, late yesterday.

Moore fired three or four shots at Holland, while Holland fired at Moore twice, shotguns being used by both parties. Neither Holland nor his wife is seriously hurt.

Bad feeling had existed between the parties for some time, and it seems that both were prepared for each other. Holland had only two shells and when he fired these at Moore without either taking effect, he called to his wife to bring him more, which she was doing when one of the shots fired at her husband struck her.

Drug Supply Cut Off, "Addicts" Are Dying

Nashville, Tenn.—A Federal official here declared that he knew of cases of deaths resulting among drug victims whose supply of drugs was suddenly cut off by the operation of the new Federal law. The system can't stand the shock of being deprived of the drug.

Such conditions make it most necessary that drug addicts get cured and conquer the habit at once. This can be done at reasonable price, without restraint or cruelty at the Cedarcroft Sanitarium, whose head, Dr. Power Gribble, has made a life study of curing the drug habit. It is possible to deposit the purchase price with a bank, to be paid over only when the patient, himself, declares he has been completely freed of the habit. Home treatment under care of local physician for those who can't come to the Sanitarium. Liquor habit also cured.

WANT MORE MOVIES STAGED IN GEORGIA

State Chamber Now Has the Matter Up With Big Film Companies.

The Georgia Chamber of Commerce is making a determined effort to get the attention of the leading motion picture producing companies of America to utilize the scenes in Georgia in their production of films which are run throughout the nation.

Edward Young Clarke, secretary-manager of the organization, declares that scenes in north Georgia which have never been filmed for certain lines of motion picture scenes are untouched by anything in America.

The first fruits of this effort on the part of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce is evidenced by the action of the Famous Players' Film company in making ready to produce a film in Georgia to be entitled "The Land of Truth," and Frederick Thomson, director of the Famous Players' Film company, is in Georgia at the present time making the necessary arrangements for the taking of the scenes in connection with this picture.

Movie Star Comes.

Hazel Dawn, the winsome and attractive movie star, is to be the leading lady of the picture, and she will travel through the mountains of north Georgia barefooted, garbed in the country costume of the Georgia mountaineer girl.

The theme of the story is intended to depict two mountain clans who owned two separate mountain peaks in the "Land of Truth" in a county close to nature, where God has made His wonders known in nature's most splendid dress and where Truth was the pre-eminent watchword of the native folk.

Location to Be Made.

It so happened that during the life of the leaders of these two mountain clans a railroad company desired to purchase a right-of-way, but was held up in its desire by the refusal of either to sell them the right-of-way through their property, each clan fearing that to do so might benefit in some way the other clan.

Mr. Thomson, the director of the Famous Players company, had a long conference with Secretary-Manager Clarke on Saturday and the exact location of the spots in Georgia where the scenes are to be made was decided on, and Mr. Thomson left Saturday afternoon for Rome. Scenes will be taken near Rome and northeast in Whitfield, Murray, Gilmore, Fannin, White, Rabun and Habersham counties, and also the scenes in Gainesville in Hall county.

Special Dispensation Allows Americus Boy To Enter Navy Service

It required a special dispensation at the hands of the navy department at Washington, but Robert T. Comer, of Americus, Ga., is going to be a member of Uncle Sam's sea fighting force. This is the story:

Comer is a lad of only seventeen summers, of fine stock, and well educated for his years. He applied in Atlanta a few days ago for admittance to the navy as a hospital apprentice. He was too young, and Lieutenant W. A. Hodgman, in charge of the local recruiting station, told him so. The age limit for hospital apprentice recruits is 18

Well, then, said young Comer, he would enlist as a seaman. Here he was blocked by parental objection. His parents would permit his entering the hospital branch, but nothing else. Thereupon Lieutenant Hodgman made a complete report to Washington, and asked for a special order allowing this lad to enlist as a hospital apprentice. Permission came Saturday, and young Comer, happy as a boy well could be, was regularly accepted, so far as this office is concerned, and sent to Norfolk, Va., together with four other recruits in the other branch of the service.

Young Comer says he is entering the navy to take the examination with a view of entering the Annapolis naval academy. Under the present law, which is comparatively new and little understood, each year fifteen men may be sent to Annapolis from the enlisted men in the navy, on a competitive examination. This examination is held once each year, is open to all enlisted men in the navy, and the fifteen passing the best grade are admitted to the school. Robert Comer says he is going to be one of the next fifteen.

Others sent to Norfolk from the Atlanta recruiting office are Lloyd E. Missenheimer, Concord, N. C.; Frank Swint, Nashville, Tenn; Hardie U. Gaines, Hamilton, Ohio; and W. L. Ingram, McDonough, Ga. They brought the total to 21 men recruited in Atlanta and sent from this office since last Monday morning.

PROGRAM FOR LEASE COMMISSION MADE OUT BY MURPHEY CANDLER

Governor Harris received a letter from C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the lease commission of the Western & Atlantic railroad, yesterday, announcing a tentative program for the meeting on April 4-7 of the commission.

The tentative program, which is subject to the approval of the commission after it meets here on April 4, is as follows:

April 5—Inspect Atlanta Terminals.

April 7—Inspection of Chattanooga Terminals.

Governor Harris approves of the inspection tour to be made by the commission, thinking it best that the members acquire personal information as to the properties of the state's road which they are to make disposition of when the present lease of the road to the Louisville and Nashville railroad ends in the year 1919.

"In the event the state decides to operate the W. & A. and not to release it, the electrification of the road will play an important part in cutting down operating expenses," said the governor.

"Modern railroad building is concerned with electrification methods more than any other kind of motive force at the present time. The wonderful streams with their waterfalls that lie along the W. & A. will operate great turbines of power plants to make electricity for the operation of trains over the W. & A., and the cost will be considerably reduced."

HEAD OF THE GEORGIA MILITIA MAKES CALL ON GOVERNOR HARRIS

Brigadier General Walter A. Harriz, of Macon, a son of Governor Harris, and head of the Georgia militia, was a caller on his father at the executive offices Saturday. However, the call was merely that of a son paying respects to his father. General Harris left for Macon shortly after luncheon at the executive mansion with his father.

Many other callers of prominence paid their respects to Governor Harris Saturday, among them being the following: Colonel W. E. Simmons, of Lawrenceville; Senator Dewitt C. Pickett, of Dawson; Judge J. A. Laing, of Dawson, and W. C. Converse, of Springfield, Ill.

GOVERNOR GRANTS REQUISITION ON GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA

Governor Harris Saturday issued requisition at the request of Solicitor C. H. Porter, of the city court of Floyd county, Rome, Ga., for the return to Georgia from Alabama of J. E. Carter, charged with moving mortgaged property out of the state.

JUDGE MUST WRITE JURY CHARGE WHEN REQUESTED BY ATTORNEYS

A unique decision of the court of appeals, Judge R. B. Russell writing the opinion, handed down Saturday, makes it mandatory upon a judge of any court writing his jury charge in his own handwriting, and not a stenographic charge, if the attorneys request it.

"The requirement of the penal code that the judges of the superior, city and county courts shall, when the counsel for either party requests it before argument begins, write out their charges and read them to the jury (penal code, 1055) is mandatory, and when such a request is made it is error to give a charge in any other manner than in writing.

In other words, a judge cannot dictate his charge to his stenographer when an attorney requests that he write his charge.

This decision was handed down in the case of Brindle vs. the State. Josie Brindle, of Rome, Ga., was found guilty of illegal sale of liquor, and was convicted. Her attorney requested Judge Reece, of the city court of Floyd county, to write out his charge to the jury before argument began. Judge Reece dictated his charge to the court stenographer. Because of this fact Josie Brindle is now granted a new trial by the court of appeals.

FLOYD COUNTY BEING SURVEYED BY FEDERAL HEALTH EXPERTS

Floyd county is now being surveyed by a score of federal health experts under the leadership of Surgeon William H. Slaughter, United States public health service. The survey is of a general health and sanitary nature for the improvement of health conditions and elimination of disease.

The state board of health has mailed out several thousand circular letters to citizens of Floyd county asking them to co-operate in the survey, as Floyd county is one of but a few counties throughout the United States to have this survey made by the federal government.

Rey Werner, head of the sanitary water laboratory of the board of health, is hoping that the federal survey will result in the establishment of a sanitary water laboratory at Rome for the purpose of testing out from day to day the drinking water furnished Rome.

GENERAL NASH COMPLIMENTS AUGUSTA MILITIA FOR FIRE WORK

Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash Saturday had occasion to compliment the Augusta militia for the valiant service rendered by them in caring for the homeless during the recent conflagration at Augusta.

The first account of the part the state militia played in assisting the homeless was told to General Nash by Captain Thad C. Jowitt, commander of the Oglethorpe infantry, which, with other militia companies, rendered heroic aid to the fire sufferers. Captain Jowitt was in Atlanta and dropped by the capitol to see General Nash, and tell him of the part played by the militia.

TRADE BOARD IN MILLER.

Work of Georgia Chamber of Commerce Indorsed.

Colquitt, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—At a meeting of leading citizens of Miller county yesterday, the work of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce was endorsed and an organization perfected, to be known as the Miller County Chamber of Commerce, and temporary officers elected as follows: L. E. Calhoun, president; S. M. Watson, secretary. A meeting will be held in a short time for the election of permanent officers and to plan for the work to be done by the Miller County Chamber of Commerce.

Louis N. Geldert, editor and publication manager of the book, "Facts About Georgia," which is to be published at an early date by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, was on hand at the meeting and assisted in the organization of the Miller County Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Geldert was in Miller county for the purpose of gathering data to be included in the publication of which he is editor, and it is planned by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to make the most complete and notable book of its kind ever issued on the state of Georgia. The book has been in process of compilation for three months and it will take three or four months more to complete the data and get it ready to be put in the hands of the printer.

ATLANTA RIFLE CLUB WILL BE ORGANIZED

First Sergeant Walter Baust Will Probably Be Made the Coach of Organization.

Tentative plans for the organization of a rifle club which will probably be styled the Marine Rifles, have been discussed by Lieutenant Colvocoresses, of the United States Marine recruiting office here; Lieutenant Parker, of the Fifth infantry, and Lieutenant Forsyth, of the second squadron of cavalry, National Guard of Georgia.

A conference was held Saturday in the office of Lieutenant Colvocoresses. Suggestions for the formation of the rifle club came to the recruiting officer through officers of the national guard. They had heard of the fine record made by First Sergeant Walter C. Baust, of the recruiting office, on a recent trip to Port Royal, when he attained the record of expert rifleman. If the plan goes through and the club is formed, Sergeant Baust will probably be made coach for the club.

The conference Saturday developed the fact that the national guard is almost solid behind the plan and that Adjutant General Nash has given his support and promised his co-operation.

It is the opinion of the men interested that the club will find favor among the business men of the city, many of whom have no time for a lengthy trip to a training camp such as the one contemplated for Fort Oglethorpe, but who can spare one afternoon each week for rifle practice.

Interest parties are requested to communicate with Lieutenant Colvocoresses at his office, or if they can not get in touch with him they may make inquiries from Lieutenants Forsyth and Parker.

General Nash has promised the use of the rifle range at Fort McPherson for practice and the shooting gallery at the armory can also be secured.

Matches can easily be secured with the clubs at Savannah, Macon and other Georgia cities and with the teams at Port Royal and nearby army stations.

CHATTOOGA COUNTY GRAND JURY URGES WORK ON HIGHWAY

Lyerly, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—The grand jury in session at the March term of Chattooga superior court indorsed the action of the county commissioners in establishing a convict camp in this county for the purpose of working the county's roads with convicts. "It is the unanimous opinion of this body that the roads of the county are in better condition than ever before at this time of year. We attribute this fact to the superior methods of road making and road working now being used."

In commenting on the Dixie highway, the jury is quoted: "Believing that the passing through Chattooga county of the Dixie highway will prove of incalculable benefit to all parts of the county, we recommend that the board of roads and revenues complete that part of the link in Chattooga county reaching from the top of Taylor's ridge to the Floyd county line as soon as possible."

Bluefield Fish Company Gets Alabama Property; Plan Big Improvements

Of more than ordinary significance to Atlanta commercially was the announcement yesterday that the Bluefield Fish company had just closed a lease, through the realty firm of W. L. and John O. DuPree, for Nos. 41-43 East Alabama street, the property being owned by Mrs. Carrie D. Hight. The lease is to run ten years at $200 a month.

The new tenant will at once spend between $10,000 and $20,000 in improving the premises with a view to establishing there one of the most important wholesale and retail fish, oyster and game distributing points in Atlanta.

M. Flatiur will be in charge of the business here, and practically all its merchandise in the way of fish and oysters will be shipped here from its establishment at Apalachicola, Fla. The business here will be opened some time between the first and fifteenth of April.

This lease, realty men point out, is simply an evidence of a general revival of activity on Alabama street following the completion of the new paving on that thoroughfare.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

A. B. CALLAWAY HAS GAINED THIRTY-FOUR POUNDS ON TANLAC

Seaboard Air Line Machinist Suffered Eight Years and Felt So Miserable He Didn't Care Whether He Lived or Died.

"I WAS HARDLY EVER WITHOUT PAIN," HE SAYS

"Tanlac Has Entirely Relieved Me, and I Consider Myself a Well Man," He Declares in Statement.

"I have taken ten bottles of Tanlac and have actually gained thirty-four (34) pounds," was the remarkable statement made last Tuesday at Jacobs' Pharmacy by Mr. A. B. Callaway, in an interesting interview with Dr. E. B. Elder, the Tanlac representative. Mr. Callaway is well known in Atlanta and is employed as machinist at the Seaboard Air Line railroad roundhouse. He has held his present position for eleven years and is regarded as one of Atlanta's most expert machinists.

"I suffered for eight years with nervous and chronic indigestion," continued Mr. Callaway, "and at times it looked like I was going to have to give up my job, for I was so weak and worn out I was barely able to go about.

"I ate very little and what little I managed to get down would always hurt me afterwards. I was nauseated most of the time, and often had vomiting spells. I was hardly ever without pains in my stomach, and at times they were so severe I would have to have hot towels applied, until I was almost blistered.

"I didn't sleep well, and at times would have to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My nerves seemed completely torn up and I was often overcome with dizzy spells. I became almost desperate over my condition and felt so miserable that at times it didn't make much difference to me whether I lived or died.

"I lost a great deal in weight and became very weak. I did everything a man could do trying to get relief, and guess I took enough medicine to drown a man in, but it just looked like the more I took the worse I would get.

"Four months ago I began taking Tanlac. At that time I weighed one hundred and twenty-two pounds. Today I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds, a gain of thirty-four pounds.

"Tanlac has entirely relieved me of my troubles, and I consider myself a well man. Instead of eating cereals and other light foods, I now eat cabbage, onions, hot biscuits, syrup, and meats of all kinds, or anything else I want, and I eat a lot, too, but everything digests well and agrees with me perfectly.

"The nervousness has been overcome and I sleep like a log. I am full of life and energy now and am strong and able to work all day long without getting tired and worn out. My friends all tell me that I'm a picture of health.

"I am the happiest man in Atlanta, and anyone else would be, too, if they had gone through with what I have and had found something to relieve them as Tanlac has done me."

At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. STUART'S ADHESIF PLAPAO-PAD is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. When adhering closely to the body slipping or shifting out of place is impossible, so cannot chafe or pinch. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

LOCAL CIVIC CLUBS TO HEAR A. D. ALBERT

International Rotary President to Speak on City Building Under Auspices Atlanta Rotarians.

Invitations have been received by members of Atlanta's leading civic organizations and others interested in civic welfare, to attend the lecture by President Allen D. Albert, of the International Rotary clubs, on Wednesday night at the Atlanta theater. Mr. Albert will arrive in Atlanta tomorrow or Tuesday for the purpose of speaking here on the subject, "The Forces That Make Cities."

The Atlanta Rotary club has been instrumental in bringing Mr. Albert here, with a view to arousing greater interest in local civic progress, and it is believed his lecture will mark a turning point, so to speak, in Atlanta's onward march. President Albert is a national authority on town and city problems as relates to social and political economy, and has made these subjects practically a life study. He is considered one of this country's greatest orators, and is a magnetic and convincing speaker.

Speaker to Be Introduced by Classmate.

Local Rotarians desire that every one interested in civic progress and upbuilding shall attend the lecture and any who may have been overlooked in the sending out of invitations may obtain them by applying to Rotarian E. H Cone, chairman of the committee in charge, at 19 North Pryor street.

Mr. Albert will be introduced by Lee M. Jordan, president of the Atlanta club, who by a coincidence was Allen Albert's classmate some twenty years ago in the Columbia University Law school. Lee Jordan says that at that time he was in some way mysteriously impressed by Mr. Albert's middle name, which is Diehl, and that every time he heard the name mentioned, he believed there was a famous future in store for the man who bore it.

"I suppose the Rotary convention at Buffalo stands out in the minds of Rotarians everywhere," said Mr. Jordan, commenting on Mr. Albert, "as the convention which gave to Rotary its real impetus. The wonderful platform of Rotary presented at that convention was read by me with wonder of, and admiration for, the man who could so lucidly express the convictions and purposes of Rotary. It was signed, 'Allen Albert,' and as I finished its perusal across the space of twenty years comes the thought 'Here comes the future leader of Rotary. His middle name is Diehl.'

Former Newspaper Man.

"He may have become a star reporter on the Washington Post; he may have been the brilliant newspaper correspondent he was during the Spanish-American war; he may have attained and ornamented as he did the editorial positions on the Washington Times, the Columbus News and the Minneapolis Tribune; he may have been unanimously chosen as the active head of the Minnesota Commercial and Civic federation, and all of these things may have come to pass and his middle name have been something else, but I shall always maintain that his God-father had an inspiration when he inserted that middle name between the Allen and the Albert.

"It may be without its significance, that middle name, but since I have been knowing Rotary and knowing of the big men in it I have known Allen Albert was going to deal himself into the head of it, and I have known it was going to be a red letter day for Rotary when he did so.

"And it has been—Rotary has grown by leaps and bounds since San Francisco. The never tiring zeal and the dynamic energy of its presiding officer has been and will continue to be for years to come a force for good in Rotary.

"He is coming among us. To Atlantans I would say: You will meet a splendid man, a thoughtful man, a studious man, a truthful man, a working man. You will enjoy knowing him, and when you say 'Au revoir' you will part with a friend."

FILM STUDIO SKETCH TO FEATURE AD SHOW

"Day in the Kerfluka Film Studio" is the title of the vaudeville sketch to be presented by Britt Craig and Les Rawlings, of the news staff of The Constitution, in the Ad Men's show, which is to be staged at the Atlanta theater April 12, to raise funds for advertising Atlanta in Philadelphia at the Twelfth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The act, which is being written by Mr. Craig, is but one of the alluring features of the big Ad men's show. There will be minstrels with new, live songs and jokes and unique costumes. There are four acts of vaudeville as good as any on any circuit and a play based on city political life, entitled "A Day in the Mayor's Office."

The Craig-Rawlings act will show the Kerfluka Film company engaged in the preparation of their massive superdrama, "Vampires and Other Nuisances," which has a cast of their leading luminaries, such as Francis X. Bushwomen, Theda Bearcat, J. Warren Herring, Dorothy Gush and a long list of others.

The minstrel act, which is being practiced every Monday and Thursday evening by a cast of nearly a hundred talented comedians, will be the opening feature of the show. Vincent Hurley, who has put on several shows of this kind, expects to make this one the triumph of all his past productions.

The political farce-comedy, "A Day in the Mayor's Office," was completed just last night, and it is said to be a scream from start to finish.

The Ad Men are expecting to send a big delegation to Philadelphia to the convention, and are going to take every opportunity to give Atlanta a great deal of publicity.

The committee in charge of raising funds for the Philadelphia trip is: P. C. McDuffie, general chairman; Julian V. Boehm, president of the Ad Men's club, ex-officio; L. D. Hicks, Sam C. Dobbs and F. J. Paxon.

George Sciple Given $4,500 Damage Verdict In Suit Against City

A jury in Judge H. M. Reid's division, city court, yesterday morning awarded a verdict of $4,500 to George M. Sciple, business man and realty agent, in his suit for $25,000 against the city of Atlanta for damages alleged to have been done his two stores in Whitehall street by the regrading of that street between Mitchell and Garnett streets several months ago.

It was contended by the plaintiff that the changing of the Whitehall street grade had depreciated the value of his store properties. He was represented by Reuben Arnold and Lamar Hill. The city had as counsel City Attorney Mayson and Assistant Attorney W. D. Ellis, Jr.

JITNEY BUS HEARING POSTPONED SATURDAY

The hearing of the injunction of the jitney bus drivers of the city to prevent the city of Atlanta from collecting the licenses as provided under the city ordinance was postponed by Judge George L. Bell in superior court yesterday morning. This was done at the request of Attorney T. B. Felder, representing the plaintiffs. City Attorney Mayson, however, counsel for the prosecution, insisted upon an immediate hearing because of the importance of the matters involved.

The illness of Colonel Felder was the cause of postponement.

Marietta Street Merchants Now Planning Big Carnival, Many Surprises Are Pledged

Beginning Monday, April 3, Marietta street, from Five Points to Bellwood avenue, will be one huge carnival for five days, ending April 8.

Somewhere along this broad thoroughfare, at a point yet to be selected, will be erected a large pavilion in which there will be booths for all the Marietta street merchants. The big carnival is being backed by the Marietta Street Merchants and Manufacturers' association. This street is one of Atlanta's principal business and industrial sections and this fact will be fully exploited during the carnival week.

The celebration will be termed a Spring Jubilee. Many merchants have promised to place special decorations for the occasion and some have already started painting up for the week.

Will Last Until Midnight.

Festivities have been planned for every afternoon and night and will last until midnight. Many surprises are being promised by the members of the association, but the exact nature of these features will be kept back for the last moment.

One of the features of the week will be a marriage on the big pavilion. The couple must swear that the girl proposed. The bride will be showered with presents from members of the association and other merchants of the street. Already seven inquiries have been received in the office of the secretary asking if this feature will be a real marriage or simply a fake. It is stated on positive authority that the marriage must be a legal one.

Merchants and firms along the street have promised great inducements to the bride who meets the requirements of the offer. The Morrow Transfer company, of 184 Marietta street, has offered to haul all gifts for the bride free of charge. The Mitchell Manufacturing company, of 128 Marietta street, will give the bride a skirt. Kennedy's garage, of 120 Marietta, will furnish the happy couple with a ride around the city.

Jacobs' Pharmacy company has offered a handsome gift from their stock for the bride. The Golden Harness factory, of 130 Marietta, will give the bride and groom a lap robe. Ballard & Ballard, of 182 Marietta, have arranged to give the couple a sack of flour. Many other gifts have been promised by merchants and it is very probable the transfer company will have more than one load of gifts to handle.

John Silvey & Co., of 114 Marietta, promise their hearty co-operation for the week. Their letter to the secretary in part: "We expect to decorate our building for the jubilee April 3 to 8, including the alfalfa patch.

"We will take pleasure in giving the bride who has the nerve to take on an encumbrance which she finds on Marietta street, one-fourth dozen bronze, white, tan, black, pink or green silk stockings. Will also take pleasure in donating to your worthy association the decorations for the exhibit building. Call on us for further donations if necessary."

Will Support Jubilee.

The letter from the Mitchell Manufacturing company also promises hearty support of the jubilee. "This street," says the letter in part, "has more manufacturing enterprises than any other street in the city and the pay rolls give a living to more men and women than any other. We are proud of the street and commend your enterprise. We will cheerfully give the bride a handsome skirt."

Walter P. Andrews, imperial potentate of Yaarab Temple, Shrine, has given the use of the Andrews building, Magnolia and Marietta streets, for the exhibit of products from the merchants. This large building will be suitably divided for 44 booths, each to bear the products of some merchant. Electric lights and decorations will be used to make the building attractive for visitors. Spaces for this building may be obtained from David Golden, of the Golden Harness company, 130 Marietta. All visitors will be admitted without charge to the exhibition building. Many other attractive features will be announced from day to day by the secretary of the association.

C. A. HENDERSON SOUGHT BY POLICE

Chief of Police W. M. Mayo was requested through a communication from Sergeant of Police E. N. Hardy, of South Boston, Va., to be on the lookout for C. A. Henderson, a prominent merchant of that city, who is said to have left home, headed toward Atlanta.

The telegram states that the man is demented and requests that in the event he is apprehended here, he be given every consideration possible.

Georgia Welcome for Dixie Highway Commissioners In Recent Tour Between Macon and Jacksonville

By Ned McIntosh.

The directors and officials of the Dixie Highway association, upon their tour last week of the two proposed eastern routes of the Dixie highway between Macon and Jacksonville, left Macon as preachers and returned as converts. Apostles of good roads, they found staunch true believers in Georgia, who not only said a ringing "Amen!" to every doctrine of progress, but had already put into practice what they preached.

The charm and interest of Georgia's people, country and traditions wrote a new chapter of history in the hearts and minds of the tourists.

The tour left Macon last Monday morning to inspect the two proposed routes for the eastern branch of the highway between Macon and Jacksonville, the one being by way of Fitzgerald and Waycross, and the other being by way of Milledgeville, Louisville, Savannah and Brunswick.

EVERY MINUTE OF TRIP FILLED WITH INTEREST.

After a five days' run through eastern Georgia and a part of Florida the directors returned to Macon Friday night and Saturday morning selected the Savannah route as the official eastern route of the Dixie highway, but were so tremendously impressed with the work and the hospitality of the people of the Waycross route that they also unanimously adopted the Waycross route as one of the routes of the highway and officially designated it as the central route.

Every moment of this five days' run was filled with interest and entertainment. Many of the directors who went upon the tour were from states north of Georgia, where winter comes early and stays late and is most of the time a rather unwelcome guest.

These directors, some of them, will not overlook the opportunity to enjoy the pleasures of a land of summer in midwinter again and they will send friends on this wonderful trip.

TOURISTS HAVE VOYAGE IN SEA OF BLOSSOMS.

Jack Frost was still nipping at their ears when the directors pulled out of Macon last Monday morning and rolled southward upon the first leg of the journey. Before sunset they saw peach trees in bloom. Not one here and yonder, but acres on end, as if the foam from some wonderful sea of pink had been blown inland and lodged in the tree tops. And as they sped through long avenues of pink-white blooms, the air was heavy with the scent of the blossoms, and when they stopped for a second the hum of bees made music for them.

In south Georgia the pear trees and the apple trees are white with blooms, too, and every once in a while a gnarled wild plum thicket, white-petaled, around a quick turn in the road springs into view in a fence corner or in the edge of the piney woods.

From Macon by Fitzgerald and down to Waycross the road leads as smooth as a floor—a royal road through a country of splendid farms, rich fields and prosperous, hospitable people.

At every town the people turned out to make the tourists welcome, giving them not only the evidence of their welcome by their mere presence, but pinning flowers on them and giving them the best things the land produces to eat.

The people of Georgia were neighborly as only the people of Dixie know how to be neighborly.

UTMOST IN HOSPITALITY FOR THE VISITORS.

Judge Colgrove, from Michigan, said: "We have known people from Dixie. We have many of them living in Michigan, and from them I had thought that we had learned something of the far-famed southern hospitality which is known the world over. I know now that we have not learned the first principles of its all-giving genuineness!"

Neighborliness between the people of Dixie and their friends of the great middle west is one of the things which the Dixie highway is expected to promote. It is already bringing a devoutly-to-be-wished state of neighborliness into being, and as more tours are held over the Dixie highway by the people from the north, and as, bye and bye, the people of the southland begin more frequently to travel northward in leisurely fashion, over the Dixie highway, the Dixie highway will make real neighbors of these sections.

But one does not have to wait for the full realization of that day. It is already here to a very appreciable extent.

Not only did the people along the Dixie highway in Georgia make the commissioners from the north feel that they were welcome and at home, but lo, and behold, the commissioners from the northern states found their own northern home folks out to meet them.

NORTHERNERS GREETED BY HOMEFOLKS.

When the tour arrived at Fitzgerald, where the directors were entertained at luncheon on the first day's run, Judge Colgrove, commissioner from Michigan, found the Fitzgerald Michigan club there to greet him and give him the town, if he wanted it! Meanwhile the Fitzgerald Ohio club was insisting that Judge Colgrove be kind and generous enough to share the town with Lieutenant Governor Harry L. Gordon, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

While the tourists were still dreaming over the beauties of a sea of peach blooms they rolled into Waycross and found the first inkling of that charm which lies in the semi-tropics through which this great highway, along which there is no monotony, leads in Florida. The white streets and buildings of Waycross and the palms and weird, vividly colored flowers made one imagine Kipling could write some interesting things about that town.

Down through the turpentine forests the tourists dropped southward into Florida itself, with its stretches of white sand, its deep jungles and swamps, palmettos, palms and strange flowers and vegetation—perhaps the most unreal looking spot upon the face of the earth.

WONDERFUL SHELL ROADS AND JACKSONVILLE.

Then came Duval county with her wonderful brick and shell roads, and Jacksonville with her magnificent hotels and quaint shops and good things to eat, and the picturesque yachts lying in the blue of the St. Johns river. From there, too, it is but a brief fifteen minutes' spin at an easy 40-mile clip to the sea itself, where the broad beaches stretch away for miles on end and where one can "open her wide and see how fast the old machine will go!" It's warm enough there now to jump in the surf, too!

Heading back northward the tourists found the same genial wholesouled hospitality and the same wonderful charm and weirdness of scenery, with the long Spanish moss festooning the giant live oaks and the lank pines and the palms reaching up with a rosette of foliage upon the end of bare stems like feather dusters to dust the clouds out of the skies.

MARSHES OF GLYNN OF WHICH LANIER SANG.

Over fine shell roads they came to the vast salt wastes of the "Marshes of Glynn," of which Sidney Lanier sang. At Brunswick the story of the pioneer days of Oglethorpe and other first-comers began to unfold at every turn of a street or road.

Across broad slow-moving streams where the salt water and the tides come creeping back inland the tourists went by ferry, one of the most interesting and unique experiences of the trip being the crossing of the great delta of the Altamaha river between Brunswick and Darien, accomplished upon flat cars over a railroad trestle spanning broad reaches of the river and flooded rice fields, where the lumbering turtles go tumbling into the water from their sunny spots on the banks as the train comes rumbling by.

The ferry over the Satilla river furnished a thrill of danger and some delay, owing to a strong tide and a high wind running in the same direction. The first car which attempted the crossing drifted upon the lighter for a quarter of a mile down the river, because the cable which usually holds the lighter was out of commission.

SEE OLD CHURCHES AND NEW SKYSCRAPERS.

In the quaint city of Savannah, where old churches and new skyscrapers line the beautiful tropical parks in the center of the city, the tourists could have found enough to interest them for several days.

Here was where the general assembly of the state met in the days before there was a state capitol, and Savannah is one of the cities from which the route which the directors selected as the eastern route gains the name of the Old Capitol route, by which it is sometimes called.

Up through Waynesboro, where the old house still stands in which General Washington sojourned upon his journey from Savannah to Augusta to Louisville, the first capital of the state, the tourists were entertained at every town.

At Louisville the tourists had lunch in the courthouse, which stands upon the site of the first capitol building that Georgia ever had. In the court square they saw the spot where the historic incident of the burning of the Yazoo fraud papers occurred. In the center of town is the old slave market, still just as it was in the colonial days when slaves were auctioned there.

As the tour approached Milledgeville the line of hills in which this, another ancient capital of Georgia nestles, presented an ever-changing and engaging prospect at every crest. Broad acres of cultivated land with a white farmhouse and barns, surmounted by the farm bell, charm from the hilltop, and as the car rumbles across the bridge at the foot of the hill a dogwood tree in full bloom stands like a beautiful specter in the purple twilight of the pines.

OLD STATE CAPITOL AT MILLEDGEVILLE.

In Milledgeville is the old building which served as the capitol of the state before the civil war, and from which were taken many valuable documents by Sherman's soldiers, one of which documents—a letter from General Washington to the governor of Georgia—has but recently been returned to the archives of the state by one of the soldiers who picked it up from a smoldering pile of papers in that statehouse more than half a century ago.

It has been said that the commissioners found that Georgia has good roads. That is true. But that does not mean that Georgia has perfect roads. There are many counties which have well graded roads that need top-surfacing; there are counties which have let good roads go to pieces for lack of maintenance; there are counties which have not yet really built roads.

A good road must be a good road all the year! When every county has roads of that character, Georgia will really have good roads.

WILLIAMS IS INJURED BY MACHINE SATURDAY

J. V. Williams, an employee of the Exposition Cotton mills, residing at 167 Echo street, was run down and severely bruised early Saturday night, at the corner of Marietta and Broad streets, by an automobile driven by G. Rhodriquez, a salesman of Fitzgerald.

According to Williams when seen at the Grady hospital by a Constitution reporter he was crossing the street in front of 14 North Broad street, when the car turned from Marietta street into Broad just as he stepped from the curb.

"He was running fast," stated Williams, "and the minute I saw him I knew he would not stop in time for me to get out of the way. I hurried as fast as I could, but he hit me before I could cross."

Rhodriquez was arrested by Officers Powers and Lasseter, and late last night was being held at police headquarters under charge of reckless running of an automobile.

Peace Murmurings Played Havoc With War Shares

New York, March 25.—(Special.)—Rumors of peace have been heard before, but not from such authoritative sources as was the case during the past week or so, and so when it was reported that the nation's leading banker had said that "peace was not far off," there was a vigorous raid on all war stocks in the New York market, and prices dropped perpendicularly for many such issues, carrying all other securities' values down a little with them. Subsequently, it was discovered that the exact remarks of the banker were somewhat different from the early interpretations of them, and consequently, the market improved a little. The drive of the bears served to scare the public out of the market for a time, however, and so effectively interrupted the bull markets which had been in progress for two or three weeks. Many shorts who had not covered before found an opportunity to buy stocks at a profit to them on the breaks, and, after a day or two of dullness, it was their buying which again rallied the market towards the close of the week. It is the general opinion in the security markets that a large number of small speculators with weakly margined accounts had been flocking into the market in the previous week or two, and as such were undoubtedly shaken out by the sudden drop in prices. It is believed that the position of the market as a whole has been strengthened. It has been the objective of leading bankers for over a year, whenever strength develeped in securities, to prevent people of small means from buying on very narrow margins. Such conditions are dangerous in markets such as have been seen during the last year, and so it is broadly hinted in Wall street that the sudden prominence of peace rumors was merely an excuse for strengthening the position of stocks by driving out the petty gambling element. Bankers are not adverse to an orderly advance in stock prices, nor are they opposed to participation in profits by small investors and speculators who do not take undue risks by carrying stocks on slender margins, but they are ever wary of inflation and especially so at a time when the enormous surplus money supply of the country might easily become diverted into gambling in securities by thousands of people too uninformed as to securities to use discretion in their commitments. Brokers catering to the dealings of small speculators are continually combating the work of the more conservative houses and of banks by making alluring statements about various securities of small value and in view of the general strength of the financial situation, which would result in steady gains in all high-class securities sooner or later, the public has been taken into many enterprises of questionable merit in recent months in spite of opposition by conservative interests. On such a situation, professional traders have been making all of the money in the stock market in recent months.

Money and Foreign Exchange.

The money market has been a little firmer lately, although without any special reason, excepting the increased borrowing of early in the month for opreations in securities.

German exchange continues making new low records. It is believed that the continued failure of the Teutonic objective at Verdun will be followed by still further heavy declines, but a rally in marks might follow final success in that attack. In the exchange market, however, failure at the French stronghold would be considered the "beginning of the end" of the war and a point from which steady decline in German credit and financial strength might follow. As a result of such a belief in the international money market, coincident with the decline in marks, there has been a resumption of firmness for English and French exchange.

Foreign Security Sales Exaggerated.

Reports of the huge amount of American securities mobilized and ready for sale in London have been exaggerated, according to statements given out on his return home by J. P. Morgan. This is also borne out by the decrease in the cable offerings of securities from abroad which has been witnessed in recent weeks, although it is believed that selling would increase in volume if there should be any large advance in securities' prices. This is especially true of high-grade bonds, as it is said that investment holders on the other side of the Atlantic prefer to hold their high-grade securities until prices are so high here that the yield is below normal. In view of the possibility of a large amount of selling from abroad, there is no desire to advance the market for the best railroad bonds at this time.

In connection with weakness in securities resulting from peace talk, it is being pointed out that most of the companies doing business with the allies have cancellation clauses in their contracts for materials and munitions by which the corporations here will be protected in case of the cessation of hostilities. Furthermore, even during the last few days when peace talk has been so prominent, there has been a large amount of new business for the allies placed in this country, some of it for deliveries through 1917 and even into later years. This does not indicate that the military authorities look for peace at an early date.

Talk of peace has been followed by discussions of trade conditions expected to prevail after the war, and it is agreed that there will be keen competition in many lines. On the other hand, however, there will be many things which the nations of Europe will have to turn to the United States and Canada for after the war is ended, and North America is expected to play an important part in the rebuilding of Europe and the reconstructive work in industry and finance which will follow the end of the war. One of the keenest forms of competition expected to develop after the war will be for ocean freight control, and there, North America is not expected to figure as a leader.

New Financing Ahead.

New financing has been resumed on a fairly liberal scale, after severa' weeks during which new offerings had been small in volume. It is expected that a large number of new issues will be brought out during the spring months if present money market conditions continue. Funds are plentiful for financing and bankers are disposed to be liberal in lending to underwriting syndicates.

The money market strength has been shown in the quick absorption of several new issues, of which exceptionally good results were obtained in the case of the $44,000,000 Chesapeake & Ohio bond issue. Subscription blanks were sent out one morning and before evening of the same day all of the issue had been taken by investors.

The railroads have become liberal purchasers of rails and equipment, while they are also planning a number of additions and improvements which will mean additional large buying of supplies of all kinds. This is a direct result of the great increase in earnings which have been flowing in in ever increasing amounts for many months. If it were not for the tie-up of cars and the shortage of available equipment, it is probable that earnings would be running much larger. To judge by the plans for spending money over the next six or eight months made by many railroads, the managements do not seem to be much afraid that there will be a strike of employees this year.

Competition of Foreign Goods.

One of the serious problems which will follow the war will be that of wholesale "dumping" of foreign goods at very low prices in this market. It is not certain that such will be seen, and some advocates of a low tariff believe that it is not at all probable. There are many economists, however, who are in fear of the above results after the war. No matter which side is right in its views, and only events after the war will make the answer known, Great Britain seems to be afraid that there may be "dumping" of German goods in the British markets after the war, and agitation has started for legislation there to prevent it. While recent business and political thought in the United States has centered around international developments, preparedness and other questions, it is probable that serious attention will be given to the tariff question during the next few months prior to the presidential campaign in the autumn.

Active steps have been taken during the last few weeks for the acquisition of control of several railroads by a group of financiers on the one hand and by a large railroad system on the other. While nothing like an active contest for control, such as was of frequent occurrence fifteen and twenty years ago, has been seen in the security markets, the quiet buying up of large blocks of railroad shares by these interests, much of it accomplished by private transactions, has had its effect of tightening up offerings and advancing market prices for these securities.

Petroleum Industry in Lead.

No industry has made as much progress during the last six months as has the petroleum industry, although others have had as much expansion during the last eighteen months. Long after others had improved, however, oil was a laggard. With the recent advances in crude oil, many grades are now at the highest point of a generation, and in some districts at the highest point on record. Gasoline and other products are also at record high prices in some cases or the highest in years in others. Demand is growing far beyond the present supply, especially for gasoline, and there are signs of a famine in gasoline unless there is a falling off in home and export buying.

New strength has developed in copper abroad, which is a direct result of the large orders for munitions placed with manufacturers in Europe by the governments. This will probably be reflected by a big buying movement in the metal here before long, with the price firmer as a result of this expectation. An inquiry for several million pounds of copper to be delivered before the first of June is before the market here, but as nearly all manufacturing interests using copper in this country have tried in vain to find any large supplies for quick deliveries, it is probable that this million-pound inquiry will not be covered even though it carries with it a premium over current prices. No copper, even for the more distant months, is for sale at under 27 a pound, and as high as 30 cents has been obtained for small lots to be delivered immediately.

Steel Prices Soar.

Cotton and Wheat Outlook.

Peace talk affected the wheat market to some extent, although declines had been preceded by strength early in the week as a result of good export buying, with unfavorable crop advices also tending to offset some tendency to liquidate long accounts.

Cotton was easier, as a whole, even though peace talk ought to have been a strong bull argument. The very unsatisfacory freight situation continues to offset all other factors, however. With freight rates of 3 cents a pound from Galveston to Liverpool, only such cotton as is absolutely needed abroad is being bought. The report of 1915 production of under 12,000,000 bales, exclusive of linters, was a fullish argument which was made use of for only a short time.

SPRING RISE JOLT PUZZLES WALL ST.

Sudden Collapse to Apparent Full-Fledged Bull Market Causes Sleepless Nights for Owners of So-Called "War Babes."

New York, March 25.—Owners of the so-called "war baby" stocks spent their nights early this week walking the floor. During the "spring rise" in the stock market that began the first week in March, Baldwin Locomotive advanced 16 points from 99½ to 115½. Industrial Alcohol, 16¼ points from 142¼ to 158½; American Locomotive, 17 from 66⅝ to 83⅝; Studebaker, 18 from 133 to 151; Crucible, 29¼ from 70¼ to 99½; Bethlehem, 100 points from 450 to 550. The high prices for those and other war babies were touched at the close of last week. With the opening of this week speculative Wall street was full of hope, firm in the belief that the "spring rise" was rapidly developing into a full-fledged bull market.

Instead of continuing to advance, however, the market began to collapse under a flood of selling orders. Before the close of the first day, Industrial Alcohol had lost 4 points from its high, Studebaker 8, Baldwin and American Locomotive 9, Crucible 10 and Bethlehem 30. All day old-time speculators, after nervously fingering the tape, would exclaim: "There is important news hanging over this market that is known to only a few big people who are throwing over stock." Tuesday was a repetition of Monday, and then, after the close of the market, it was reported in Washington dispatches that Germany had put out a peace feeler at Berlin through Ambassador Gerard.

Peace a Question of Months.

After the news was once out, Wall street was not slow in arriving at the conclusion that the allies were not in a frame of mind to accept Germany's overtures. Nevertheless, this week's developments left the financial district with the impression that it was only a question of months until there would be serious discussion of peace terms between Germany and the allies. And after having arrived at that conclusion, the inquiry at once arose: When that time comes what will happen in the bond and stock markets?

That question was put this week to two of the best-known international bankers in the financial district. One of the bankers, who is the head of his house, was found at his desk in his private office. When the question was asked, he sat without speaking for all of a minute unconsciously fingering a small but very handsome bronze donkey used for a paper weight, which, on another occasion, he had explained, with a significant laugh, was a present from his wife, intended as a useful reminder.

Effect of Peace on Securities.

"That is a big subject," was the slow reply, after Mr. Donkey had been carefully replaced on a pile of papers. "As I have thought it out, the results in the bond and the stock market will not be the same. Capital with a fixed interest return, that is long-term bonds, will have to compete with the demand for money in Europe, first for reconstruction purposes and next in refunding the war issues. Many of our first-class railroad bonds are now selling so high that the income return is only a fraction more than 4 per cent. In competition with Europe for capital, our bond market, as I see it, is bound to suffer, because money always goes where the interest return is the highest. Investors will not hold bonds which are selling on a 4 or 4½ per cent income basis when money in the open market is offering a much larger return.

"Stocks, on the other hand, especially railroad shares, after perhaps a preliminary decline, should advance with peace in Europe, because the foreign selling which has been depressing prices will cease, and because, unlike bonds, the income return is not limited. Larger earnings for the railroads means larger dividends.

"As for the so-called war-order stocks, any one can foresee what will happen there. Many industrial shares, however, not identified with the war-order business, should advance with the railroad stocks on prospects for larger earnings."

Believing that peace negotiations in Europe was only a question of months, the second banker who had just returned from the South flatly declined to make any predictions. After a few minutes' talk on his golf form he volunteered.

Technical Conditions a Factor.

"Returning to your question, how the stock market takes peace, will depend on how peace will be accepted by Wall street; in other words, the immediate action of the stock market will depend on the technical conditions existing at the moment. If the market is oversold at the time it will probably advance rapidly; if prices have advanced rapidly in anticipation of peace, on the actual news there will be a decline.

"Personally, I do not care to go on record with a prediction as to how the stock market will accept the news. I am willing to say, however, that I expect, after the first excitement is over, that the stock market, excepting the war order shares will go on advancing for a year or two in anticipation of the wide-spread prosperity that this country will experience before the day of reckoning arrives.

"Peace negotiations, once started in earnest, are likely to last for months and, during that period the industrial companies now engaged in the manufacture of war supplies will be given an opportunity to readjust affairs and thus offset the shock stockmarketwise."

His views on the bond market were similar to those expressed by the first banker.

Both bankers were of the opinion that on the actual announcement of peace negotiations the Anglo-French 5s would advance, that the price of wheat and steel would decline, and that cotton would have a substantial rise.

SECURITY MARKET LACKED INTEREST

Trading Was Light in Short Session—Many Popular Issues Exhibit Sagging Tendency—General Motors Rises 35 Points.

New York, March 25.—Today's two-hour session on the stock exchange was barren of interest. Trading was lighter and more narrow than usual and the heavy undertone was due to a combination of circumstances, including further adverse news from abroad and the customary week-end settlement of open contracts by the professional element.

Prices were confusing at the outset, but became irregular later, closing with numerous net losses, none of which was especially substantial, except in the specialties, Studebaker, Crucible Steel, United States Industrial Alcohol, Mexican Petroleum and Mercantile Marine preferred were lower by 1½ to 3 points, and such rails as Reading, New York Central and Southern Pacific, which bolstered the session of the preceding day, averaged one point declines.

There were a few neutralizing features, for instance, General Motors, which made up some of its recent severe decline by an advance of 33 points to 485; Harvester Corporation, which rose 4 points, and 1 to 3 point advances in Maxwell and Willys-Overland, the fertilizers and American Writing Paper preferred.

United States Steel and other former leaders were altogether neglected when not under marked restraint. Dealings in steel were exceeded by a half dozen other issues, some of which often fail of quotation for days at a time.

Week-end news dealt mainly with general trade conditions, authorities agreeing as to unprecedented activity in all the larger lines of industry, with an increase of merchandise distribution. Purchases by interior merchants are in some instances stated to be the largest ever known.

Reduction of activity in stocks was reflected in the moderate contractions of loans by clearing house institutions, and reserves decreased slightly over $7,000,000.

Today's bond market was slightly irregular, with activity and firmness, however, in Anglo-French fives. Total sales of bonds, par value, were $1,580,000.

New York, March 25.—The cotton market was very quiet today with fluctuations correspondingly narrow. July contracts, for instance, sold at 11.97 at the start, rallied to 12.02 and closed at 12.01, with the general list closing steady, net unchanged to 2 points lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 6 points in response to relatively easy cables. May sold at 11.95 and October at 12.09 on the call but the decline seemed to meet a little renewed demand from trade interests below 12c for July contracts, while there was also some buying here for Liverpool account, and the market soon became steadier.

The idea of local map readers that barometric conditions pointed to clearing and cooler weather over the southwest may possibly have tended to restrict offerings as the light scattering rains in Texas have not generally been considered sufficient to relieve droughty conditions. A comparatively small increase in the amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance as reported by a local statistical authority probably had some influence, but trading was not active enough either way to suggest any fresh sentiment, and after the rally to 11.91 for May and 12.14 for October, the market showed practically no feature.

The reviews of the domestic goods trade indicated continued activity and advices from Fall River said that the business of the past week might have been twice as large had manufacturers been willing to accept orders for forward delivery at prevailing quotations. There has been little disposition to question bullish estimates on domestic mill consumption in the trade here, however, and conflicting views as to the end-season statistical position result from differences of opinion with reference to the export movement. It is felt also in many local circles that the end-season course of prices will depend largely upon war news or early new crop prospects, and some of the traders around the ring have attributed most of the day's small business to the evening up of scattering accounts while waiting for fresh developments.

New Orleans Practically Unchanged.

New Orleans, March 25.—While the cotton market here was steady today, fluctuations were extremely narrow, and trading was small in volume. Week-end covering by shorts furnished much of the demand. The close was unchanged to 1 point down, compared with yesterday's final prices.

The market opened at the decline, in sympathy with lower cables than due, and the small spot trading in Liverpool. In the early business here prices lost 4 to 5 points, which carried the market to the lowest levels of the day. The failure of rains to extend into south Texas and somewhat better accounts from interior spot markets created uneasiness among holders of short contracts, and on buying from them the market recovered and, late in the morning, stood unchanged to one point higher than yesterday's close.

Very moderate buying for long account was stimulated by the forecast of fair weather for the western half of the cotton region and telegrams from interior points saying holders of unhedged cotton were as indifferent as ever to the course of the market.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, March 25.—(Special.)—Those who are buying futures are speculating on peace, those who are increasing their acreage are also speculating on peace. Buying for peace and planting for peace may prove to be a profitable operation, provided we have peace. If we do not have peace, then those who bought speculatively and those who planted too many acres, will compete as sellers later on.

The most fortunate thing that could happen for the south would be for peace to come when there was a short interest in the actual cotton and a short interest in speculative circles. If peace could come when only ten million bales were in prospect for the coming season the inadequacy of the supply would cause an upheaval that would establish cotton on a permanently higher level. If peace is brought about with a 17-million-bale crop in prospect or with huge reserve supplies being held from previous crops any advance in price will be met with a wave of actual cotton that will stop it. For the ultimate good of values, the best thing that could happen in all the cotton markets would be for them to be short when peace came, and for a limited crop to be in prospect.

The market today was without feature, except the weakness of Liverpool, which market looks dragging and willing to make lower levels. The local market did not show a wide range nor a pronounced tendency, but seemed willing to await the patience of spot holders who have recently sold at 12 cents again are as yet unwilling to accept less. We had rather not be long during the rest of March—speculators on that side are likely to become tired even if spot holders develop no impatience.

RENSKORF, LYON & CO.

New York, March 25.—(Special.)—Liverpool cables stated that the decline in that market was due to selling orders from Montreal in a small market. Here, a buying order on the opening for a Canadian firm would seem to indicate that both markets were affected by the closing of an arbitrage operation. Otherwise there have been the smallest transactions in several months in the market today. The traders are waiting for some new facts upon which to base their judgment of the future. Rains reported from Texas seem confined to the northern part of Texas.

HUBBARD BROS & CO.

New York, March 25.—(Special.)—The market today was very dull and uninteresting and left little to be said regarding the trading. Further rains in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Mississippi caused some selling, but these offerings were easily absorbed by Liverpool. Different points in the south are now sending reports here of a smaller spot demand and a lowering of freight charges owing to the reduced inquiry for cotton space. With rain in the southwest and a slower demand for spot cotton, the local trade is more inclined than ever to anticipate lower prices and consequently liquidation is going on here.

BANK LOSES SUIT

The bank had reported, and believed, its Cashier's books honestly kept when his bond was issued and renewed, and based its statement to the Bonding Company on the favorable reports of the Bank Examiners and of its Examining Committee.

It was demonstrated to the Court and Jury how lacking such examinations are, and the bank lost its suit.

Atlanta Bank Deposits Score New High Record

Gain for Year $5,029,000, or 16 Per Cent—Cash Resources Are Also Greatest Ever Held by Local Institutions.

By R. N. Berrien, Jr.

The Atlanta Clearing House banks, in line with those of the other important financial centers of the nation, are staggering under a plethora of idle cash funds, as well as continually scoring new high records in the matter of deposits. At the date of the recent governmental call for the publication of the condition of banks, the local clearing house institutions exceeded previous high records both in the matter of deposits and cash resources.

The deposits held by the seven associate banks of the local clearing house are $36,958,000, being an increase of $5,029,000, or 16 per cent, over the totals shown at the approximate similar date a year ago, well exceeding the previous high record of November 10, 1915. The substantial increase is shown in spite of the fact that the secretary of the treasury has withdrawn all United States deposits from the national banks, of which over three-quarters of a million dollars were held by the local national banks on March 4, 1915.

The cash resources shown of $14,785,000 is an increase of over 20 per cent above the figures shown at this time a year ago, and exceed the previous high record of October 21, 1913, by nearly two and a half million dollars.

Adding the auxiliary reserve of unpledged bonds and stocks—$2,374,000 to the cash resources of $14,785,000, we have $17,159,000, which is very nearly ten million dollars above the required legal reserve to be held against deposits.

The Demand for High Grade Bonds.

Another evidence of the substantial amount of funds available and seeking investment in the southeast is the fact that a local bond house sold $2,500,000, or over two-thirds of the recent issue of State of Georgia Refunding 4¼ per cent bonds in Georgia, and at a competitive sealed bid sale of $400,000 Savannah 4½ per cent bonds this month, bought the issue at about a basis of 4⅛ per cent to be retailed to investors in this section, outbidding the very largest bank in the country, as well as some of the most important bond houses in the east.

The accumulation of this vast amount of idle funds naturally brings up the question: Why can't a portion of this money be loaned on farm lands and for other real estate development? The answer is a simple one. Banks who receive money, repayable on demand, naturally have to keep their loans in a liquid or self-liquidating nature, and it would be unwise in the extreme to tie up funds in fixed capital or loans of greater maturity than two to four months. To emphasize the necessity of this, it may be mentioned that the total deposits held by the local clearing house banks, on an average, change hands twice a month. Any bank undertaking to invest any appreciable portion of their resources in anything but loans of a self-liquidating character, cannot meet the ordinary demands on a commercial bank, nor discount such loans at the Federal Reserve banks, or at the banks of the large financial centers.

Need of Rural Credit Legislation.

Should our national or state legislators provide legislation by which rural credits might be facilitated, there is no doubt but that large portions of the vast accumulation of funds would seek investment in those channels, but so long as our law makers evade such promises to their constituents, so long will the funds so greatly needed in the development of our greatest of all industries—agriculture—be withheld.

A glance at the appended comparative statement of the combined and individual condition of the Atlanta Clearing House banks will show that during the period under comparison all of the banks have made gains in cash resources, deposits and total resources. Including the dividends paid by the banks at rates ranging from 6 to 12 per cent per annum, the profits of the banks for the period were:

Atlanta National Bank	$133,000
Lowry National bank	93,000
Fourth National bank	120,000
American National bank	71,000
Third National bank	125,000

WEEKLY REVIEW OF DRY GOODS MARKET

New York, March 25.—Cotton goods markets are very strong and are moving without any regard to the standing of the staple. In the past two weeks values on cloths have gone up fully 3 cents per pound on print cloths without an advance of more than ¼c in the spot price of the raw material. Many buyers of print cloths have operated for deliveries to run into December. Staple ginghams have been advanced to a basis of 8c a yard, ½c higher than the top price reached in 1907. Prints are very firm, leading lines of percales having been withdrawn from sale. Duck continues in very broad and active demand, army duck being especially scarce.

There is a very large demand for goods for export to various countries and a much larger business could be booked at asking prices if it were possible to make satisfactory shipping arrangements. Fine cottons are being bought in a large way for late delivery. Yarn mills and knit goods mills continue to operate to full capacity.

The one weak spot in the market is 36-inch heavy sheetings, but there has been some gain there, compared with a short time ago. The 40-inch goods are very strong. Prices quoted are as follows: Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64s, 4c; 64x60s, 3⅞c; 38½-inch, 64x64s, 5⅝@5¾c; brown sheetings, southern standards, 8c; denims, 9-oz., 17½c, nominal; tickings, 14½c (8 oz.); staple ginghams, 8c; staple prints, 6½c; dress ginghams, 9½c.

GERMAN SUBMARINE DOWNTURNS WHEAT

Oats Also Declines—Small Receipts Strengthens Corn. Higher Hogs and Demand Continue to Boost Provisions.

Chicago, March 25.—Torpedoing of vessels with Americans aboard resulting today in lower prices for wheat. The market closed unsettled ⅜@½ to ⅝c down at $1.08⅛ for May and $1.06⅜@⅞ for July. Corn gained ⅛@¼c net. Oats finished ⅛ to ⅜@½c off, and provisions up 2½ to 10c.

Wheat had rallied from an early decline, but when attention was turned to the notable increase of hostilities against shipping the market headed sharply downgrade. The weakness at the outset was due chiefly to rains in the southwest, where the lask of adequate moisture of late has been impeding growth. Advices, however, that prolonged winter conditions in Canada and a scarcity of labor there were virtually certain to cause a big decrease in the extent of seeded acreage led afterward to an advance above yesterday's closing prices. It was explained that help from soldiers had not been obtained and that farm work on last year's scale appeared to be a physical impossibility.

Aggressive selling and a lack of support characterized the wheat market in the final hour of the session. In addition to the bearish effect of the destruction of vessels and of the chances of renewed tension between the United States and Germany the influence of the breaking of the drought seemed to be gaining in force, as many reports were coming in from all sections of the rain-soaked territory telling of the revival of the crop.

Weather of a kind to retard the movement of the corn crop brought about strength in the corn market. A prospect of smaller receipts made speculative short sellers unusually inclined to week-end evening-up of trades.

In the oats trade bears had an advantage owing to reports that planting was actively going on, especially throughout central Illinois. It was said that for oats the ground was in the best condition in years.

Provisions rose with hogs. Besides the shipments of meats this week were liberal as compared with a year ago.

New York, March 25.—The market for raw sugar was unchanged as to spots, no further sales being reported, but the undertone was firm, prompted by reports that Italy had purchased about 20,000 tons of raw sugar in Cuba. Trading locally was quiet, with refiners again indifferent, although there were sales of between 15,000 and 25,000 bags of Cubas to operators for April shipment at 4⅜c cost and freight. In the absence of spot business prices remained nominally unchanged at 5.71 for centrifugal, 4.94 for molasses and 4 11-16c for Cubas cost and freight.

The market for refined sugar was firmly held at 6.90 to 7 for fine granulated, and while there were fair withdrawals on old contract, new business was light. Although no further business was reported for export account, there were inquiries in the market from Switzerland.

Futures were influenced by the firmness in raws and on some scattered covering and further buying by trade interests prices advanced, closing unchanged to 5 points net higher. Sales, 2,700 tons. Sales, 2,700 tons.

Realty and Building News; Professional Views Given On Local Realty Market

New Building Was Active During Past Week—Entertainment by the Atlanta Board of Chicagoans.

The past week has been a most active one in new building projects disclosed in announcements.

Several new apartments were announced, and the week's permits boosted building for March considerably over $100,000.

A feature of the week was the entertainment last night by the Atlanta Real Estate Board of the Chicago delegation passing through the city, en route to New Orleans to attend the ninth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges. Details of this entertainment are found elsewhere in these columns.

Another important phase in the past week's real estate news was the reorganization of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, which recently disbanded without giving out notice of their action.

The real estate board has been reorganized with 48 members taking active part in its affairs, each firm putting in capable men who are determined to make their board an important feature in making of Atlanta a greater and greater city.

The reorganization plans are scientific, and stipulate that the various branches of work of the real estate board shall be divided into sections with a chairman and committee at the head of each section.

With Robert R. Otis as president, and B. M. Grant, Forrest Adair and S. B. Turman as vice presidents, and Jack Beasley as secretary and treasurer, the new board is destined to make a name for itself in Atlanta's civic and commercial growth.

Loan and Insurance Interests Merged.

Herbert Kiser, well-known loan agent, and Ed Clarkson, a popular insurance agent, have merged their business, and are now jointly occupying a suite of offices at 1108-9-10 Empire building, where they are operating a general insurance and mortgage loan business.

Birmingham Contractor Comes Here.

Allen J. Krebs, general contractor and builder of public and commercial buildings, who has been doing business out of Birmingham in Alabama and adjoining states for the past 15 years, is making plans to move his offices to Atlanta.

Mr. Krebs considers his opportunities better here, stating that Atlanta is in closer touch with general business in the south, as there are branch offices or agencies representing practically every large concern in the country here.

His new office will be located at 502 Forsyth building, and will be under the supervision of Otis A. Barge, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Barge was connected with the construction of some of the most important buildings of Detroit, having been associated with Albert Kahn, the leading architect of the middle western states. He is an old Atlanta boy, having graduated at the Georgia Tech.

Saturday's Building Permits.

Building permits issued Saturday aggregated nearly $8,000, boosting March figures to date to $345,453, exclusive of an application on file for an apartment house that has not yet been issued.

Featuring Saturday's building was a permit to F. L. Irwin to build a two-story, 11-room, frame house at No. 327 Lee street, at a cost of $5,000.

By Forrest & George Adair.

"When a real estate agent does get hold of an actual consumer, he finds out that there is a strong spot-holding movement among owners.

"If one sets out merely to buy land, there is plenty of it to be had at reasonable prices.

"But if one sets out to buy a certain kind of land in a particular locality, he finds it difficult to get what he wants.

"The general buyer who simply wants to make an investment can obtain favorable concessions. But the particular buyer who lays down specifications finds that land is as high in price as it ever was.

"We have lately had an experience in trying to locate an ultimate consumer in a certain section. Much to our surprise we could find nothing cheap. Few owners were disposed to sell at all, those who were willing to sell named prices as high, or almost as high, as the ruling prices before the war.

"We have noted lately the advent of the actual consumer in the market. A good deal of property has been entirely removed from sale by outright purchases or a long-time lease.

"Take the notable case of the forty-acre place occupied by the Candler warehouse. Here was a piece of land offered for sale; a threatened subdivision that would have diluted the market for building lots. The price of land is no longer real estate. It is an institution.

"Land once purchased for actual use is permanently out of the market. A few consumers will take up all the loose real estate in sight. Who doubts that in the next year or two we shall have these actual users of land?"

JURY OUT FOR 17 HOURS AFTER SAMPLING FRUIT

Waycross, Ga., March 26.—(Special.) A new record for time required to settle a civil case was established in city court today when the jury trying the suit of the White Crown Jar company vs. the J. M. Cox company remained out seventeen hours and forty minutes before reaching a verdict in favor of the Cox company.

Suit was instituted for $470 to cover a bill sold several years ago, rejected by the Cox company, who claimed the contract was obtained by fraud.

Jurymen went through the unique experience of sampling various preserved fruits submitted as evidence, and tried fitting caps on jars as a means of determining contentions made by the plaintiff.

Monroe, Ga., March 25.—(Special.)—The question of a Carnegie library for Monroe is now being agitated and the probabilities are that active steps will soon be taken to secure one.

Mrs. W. H. Nunnally, regent of the local chapter of the D. A. R., has recently had some correspondence with the Carnegie Foundation, at New York, which agrees to furnish the money for a building here, provided the city will donate the lot and appropriate 10 per cent of the amount donated for upkeep. There are several splendid locations for the library and a number of public-spirited citizens are ready to contribute to a fund for purchasing the site.

Change in Advertising Field

J. C. M'MICHAEL WILL GO TO PHILADELPHIA

Popular Advertising Expert Has Accepted Responsible Position With N. W. Ayer & Sons—Friends to Tender Him a Dinner.

After a residence of twenty years in Atlanta, ten of which have been successfully applied to conducting a large and growing advertising agency, J. C. McMichael will leave the city within the next few days to join the advertising forces of N. W. Ayer & Sons, of Philadelphia, known throughout the country as "advertising headquarters."

Mr. McMichael will enter upon his new duties with the big Philadelphia agency on April 1, taking a position of much responsibility, but one in which his company will find him well equipped by reason of his large and practical experience in the advertising business. He will move his family, consisting of wife and son, to Philadelphia within a short time.

Personally and socially Mr. McMichael is leaving in Atlanta a host of good friends, who will regret to learn of his change in residence, but who will be pleased to know of the excellent position he has secured. Numbered, too, among Mr. McMichael's closest friends are the heads of many large commercial and manufacturing concerns, for whom he has handled advertising accounts for the past few years, and their regrets will be mingled with his many other friends over his leaving the city.

N. W. Ayer & Sons, with whom Mr. McMichael is to be connected, are among the very largest and most successful advertising agencies in this country. Through them thousands of the largest advertising accounts for leading commercial houses in the United States are placed in the newspapers and magazines of the country. They employ a large force of expert copy men and a big corps of artists. To be numbered on their staff is a compliment to the ability and genius of the men employed, and that Mr. McMichael has been tendered a position of responsibility with them is a recognition of his ability as an advertising man.

As a testimonial of the very high esteem in which he is held by the advertising men, clients and publishers in this city, a dinner will be tendered Mr. McMichael at the Capital City club on Thursday evening, March 30, at which time he will make his formal withdrawal from the southern advertising field.

JOHNSON-DALLIS CO. TAKE NEW ACCOUNTS

Business of J. C. McMichael Has Been Transferred to Well-Known Advertising Firm—Organization to Be Increased.

Announcement is made that effective April 1, the Johnson-Dallas Company, advertising and printing, located in the Greenfield building on Marietta street, will take over the advertising agency of J. C. McMichael, Inc., located in the Healey building.

The transfer of a number of valuable advertising accounts was made with the consent of the clients to the Johnson-Dallas company by Mr. McMichael, who is leaving this territory on the above named date to make his future home in Philadelphia.

This announcement will be read with a great deal of interest by the advertisers in the south, many of whom have, for years, employed the services of one of these well known advertising agents.

Already one of the leaders in the south in handling large advertising contracts, the Johnson-Dallis company has added to its prestige, and will further increase its organization to meet the increased business which will come by reason of taking over the business of Mr. McMichael's agency. The staff of men employed by the Johnson-Dallis company, under the supervision of E. E. Dallis, in charge of the advertising department, are among the most expert in the south. That they will please the new clients added by the deal effective April 1, is a foregone conclusion, judged by the large number of satisfied patrons for whom the company is now handling advertising accounts.

In taking over the McMichael accounts the Johnson-Dallis company is to be congratulated, as well as the new clients who are to receive their courteous and efficient service.

Mr. Lippincott delivered an address, illustrated with motion pictures of "Old Pennsy," which was greatly appreciated by the twenty-five members present, even if it did bring on a spell of "homesickness," as many declared.

Mr. Flagler is desirous of getting in touch with as many as possible of the Pennsylvania graduates in Atlanta, and asks that they call at his office, 1502-3 Healey building.
